

WHEELER'S TRIALS ARE FUNERAL NEARING END

Was an Imposing Military Affair at Washington. Honorary Pallbearers From the Highest Walks of Life.

Washington, Jan. 29.—With full military honors, the body of Gen. Joseph Wheeler, the veteran of two wars, a former representative in congress and a retired officer in the United States army, was laid at rest today in the National cemetery at Arlington. The spot selected for his final repose lies on the grassy slope in front of and to the right of the historic Lee mansion, and is regarded as one of the most beautiful sites in the home of the soldier dead, as it overlooks the nation's capital across the Potomac.

Honors were paid by the blue and by the gray. Veterans of the two conflicts in which Gen. Wheeler distinguished himself as a gallant soldier, friends, representatives of the two branches of congress and citizens joined with the nation's military in paying tribute to the dead general. The funeral cortege was a most imposing one. The honors due a major general was paid. Although the late brigadier general in the regular army, Gen. Wheeler held the rank of major general of volunteers and was buried accordingly by the government he served. A guard of honor selected from the ranks of the Spanish war veterans, which met the body on its arrival from Brooklyn last night and escorted it to St. John's Episcopal church, remained in charge of the casket during the night and until relieved this forenoon by the regular army guard.

At 2 p. m. very brief services were conducted at the church by the Rev. Dr. Roland C. Smith, rector of the church, and the Rev. Dr. Ernest Stines of St. Thomas church, New York, who conducted the funeral services held in New York yesterday, and who accompanied the body to Washington to perform the last rites here.

After these services were concluded the solemn procession to the cemetery was started. First in line was the United States troops, detailed by the war department as the military escort. In the absence of an infantry organization, the line of officers from Washington barracks represented that branch of the service. A squadron of cavalry from Fort Myer, and the cavalry band, and a battery of field artillery, also from Fort Myer, will complete the military escort. The cavalry was led by a platoon of soldiers, which was followed by the ranks. The body was laid in state in the caisson drawn by four horses, and the caisson was draped with the stars and stripes.

Following the caisson came the veteran organizations, as follows: United Confederate Veterans' association of Washington, under command of John T. Gallagher, president; Grand Army of the Republic, commanded by Corporal James Tanner, commander-in-chief; Spanish War veterans, commanded by the department commander, John L. Lewis; Company A of Wheeler's Confederate cavalry of Atlanta.

HAPGOOD TO PUSH THINGS

Disclosures Made in Town Topics Trial to be Followed.

New York, Jan. 29.—Steps were taken today by James W. Osborne, counsel for Norman Hapgood, editor of Collier's Weekly, in the recent trial on a charge of criminal libel, to follow up the disclosures made by witnesses in the hearing of that case. The case now is in the direction of John Doe proceedings.

A representative of Mr. Osborne secured from a police magistrate a dozen subpoenas for witnesses whose identity was not disclosed. Mr. Osborne's representative told the magistrate that Mr. Osborne expected to cooperate with District Attorney Jerome in conducting the proceedings which he said would be based on the evidence given in the Town Topics case. It is expected that witnesses will be summoned before the grand jury.

COURT OVERRULES BEAVERS' DEMURRER.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Justice Gould today overruled the demurrers of George W. Beavers to the indictments charging him with conspiring with former state Senator George E. Green of Blount, N. Y., and W. D. Doremus, to defraud the government in connection with the furnishing of postoffice supplies and also to the indictments against Beavers individually, charging him with bribery.

Justice Gould also overruled the pleas in abatement of state Senator George E. Green of New York and W. D. Doremus, to the indictments charging them with conspiring in connection with George W. Beavers to defraud the government in the furnishing of postoffice supplies.

Tokyo, Jan. 29.—The emperor today received in audience M. Korino, former minister to Russia, and appointed him ambassador to France.

Board Which Investigated Hazing About Ready to Adjourn. Pleas at Bar by Defendant's Attorney Overruled by Court.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 29.—The court-martial, in session at the naval academy today resumed the trial of Midshipman George H. Melvin, on charges of hazing.

The court adjourned on Saturday, at the request of the judge advocate, in order to allow him to examine authorities on the point raised by the plea in bar submitted by Melvin's counsel. The question is one of great importance, as if it is allowed, the whole proceedings will be declared invalid and the sentences of dismissal already imposed on a number of midshipmen will be rendered nugatory. It is claimed that the court should have been convened by the secretary of the navy under the act of 1855, instead of by the superintendent of the naval academy under the act of 1874, as amended by the act of 1903.

The board of investigation, which has produced the data upon which all the charges of hazing have been founded, is expected to adjourn today, and this indicates that the end of the trial of midshipmen for hazing is not far distant, though it is known that there will be others. The board will not be dissolved, however, but will be ready to review its investigations if the condition of affairs at any time make it necessary.

The court overruled the plea in bar of Melvin's counsel today, and this indicates that the end of the trial of midshipmen for hazing is not far distant, though it is known that there will be others. The board will not be dissolved, however, but will be ready to review its investigations if the condition of affairs at any time make it necessary.

Melvin's counsel then submitted an additional plea, raising the contention that the act of 1903 was repugnant to the act of 1874, and that the naval academy had failed to make rules and regulations in regard to hazing, which, the counsel alleged, he was required to do under the act.

Judge Advocate Harrison stated that the act required no definition, and that the official reports of the superintendent to make rules to suppress hazing. The court overruled the plea.

HEAVY TRADE

Its Value Estimated at Not Less Than $55,000,000.

Washington, Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Trade of the United States with Russia, including the Asiatic part, was valued at $55,000,000 in 1904, according to the bureau of statistics, department of commerce and labor, amounted to $28,000,000 of which $11,000,000 represents the imports into the United States, and $17,000,000 the exports to the United States to Russia. These figures are somewhat lower than the figures for the preceding year, when the total trade figures were in excess of $60,000,000 of which $24,000,000 imports and $36,000,000 exports. The shrinkage is due largely to the war and the unsettled conditions of the country.

It should be noted that these figures do not include the entire trade movement between the two countries, goods shipped from this country and ultimately reaching Russia, and vice versa, are in many cases consigned to various European ports (Liverpool, Bremen, Hamburg, and others), and thence transshipped to the ports of ultimate destination, or in the case of American shipments to Russia, are placed aboard the railroad cars for overland transportation. This is particularly true of raw cotton, by far the largest export of the United States to Russia. As a matter of fact, the official reports of the bureau of statistics to have been 25,000,000 pounds, or less than 10 per cent of the direct imports recorded by the Russian customs authorities. So can it be said that the Russian figures credit this country with all the cotton shipments originating here.

It is clear that, for the reasons just stated, the figures of our imports from Russia are a better index of the movement of commodities from Russia to the United States than the Russian export figures. As a matter of fact, the annual value of Russian exports to this country for the five-year period 1899-1903, $23,000,000, was only a smaller proportion to the corresponding import for the five-year period ending June 30, 1904, than the American export figures bear to the corresponding Russian import figures.

A conservative estimate of the total value of the commerce, both direct and indirect, would place the value at not less than $55,000,000, of which $25,000,000 represent the value of goods shipped to Russia from this country, and about $30,000,000 the value of goods shipped from Russia to the United States.

KING CHRISTIAN OF DENMARK IS DEAD AT THE AGE OF 88, AFTER RULING THE DANES FOR FORTY-TWO YEARS

Passed Away at Copenhagen Surrounded by Intimate Family.

News of His Majesty's Death Spreads With Great Rapidity.

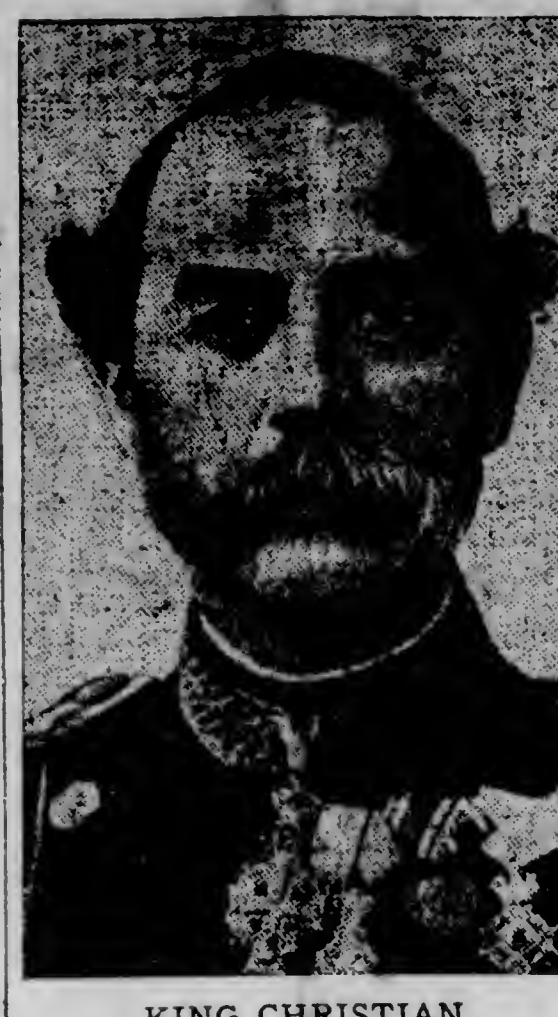

Signs of the Greatest Grief Observed on Every Hand.

Copenhagen, Jan. 29.—The king of Denmark died at 3:30 this afternoon. The king passed away quietly, surrounded by the crown prince and the crown princess and their children, and the dowager empress of Russia. The news of his majesty's death spread with great rapidity, and signs of the greatest grief were to be seen everywhere.

London, Jan. 29.—The sudden death of King Christian of Denmark, called the "Father-in-law of Europe," will place the majority of the royal houses of Europe in mourning. The rulers of Russia, Great Britain, Greece, Sweden and Norway are directly related to the dead monarch either personally or through their consorts. His sons and daughters were preparing for their annual trip to Copenhagen to celebrate Queen Alexandra's birthday.

Queen Alexandra received the news of the death of her father at Windsor. It came as a great shock to her, as apparently there had been no previous intimation of any indisposition.

Christian IX, king of Denmark, was born April 8, 1818, and was the fourth son of the late Duke William of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg and of Princess Louise of Hesse-Cassel. He was appointed to the succession of the crown of Denmark by the treaty of London of May 8, 1852, and by the Danish law of succession of July 21, 1853. He succeeded to the throne on the death of King Frederick VII. Nov. 15, 1863. He married May 28, 1863, Queen Louise, the daughter of the Landgrave William of Hesse-Cassel. She was born in 1817 and died in 1898.

KING CHRISTIAN.

Prince Frederick, the eldest son of the late King Christian, who succeeds to the throne, was born June 3, 1843, and married July 25, 1869, to Princess Louisa, daughter of King Charles

The Late King the Father of Queen Alexandra of England.

Also of King of Norway and Dowager Empress of Russia.

Prince Frederick Will Succeed to the Throne of Denmark.

XV of Sweden and Norway. Their second son, who married Princess Maud of England, is now king of Norway. The late King Christian's eldest daughter is Queen Alexandra of England, and his second son, Prince William, was elected king of Greece, under the title of George I, in 1863.

Another daughter of the late King Christian, Marie Dagmar, is the dowager empress of Russia, Maria Feodorovna, who married Alexander III of Russia. He died Nov. 1, 1894, and his son, Nicholas, is now emperor of Russia.

Princess Thyra, third daughter of King Christian, is duchess of Cumberland. Her husband claims the throne of Hanover.

Prince Waldemar, the youngest of the children of King Christian, married the Princess Marie of Orleans, eldest daughter of the Duc de Chartres. In this case it has not been a mere technical violation of the injunction but a persistent one, and an utter disregard for the order of the court. If this court cannot be upheld the government is a fraud and a sham.

Before the announcement of the decision counsel for the union asked leave to file an affidavit signed by sixty members of the union which stated that they are opposed to violence in any form in connection with the strike. Attorneys for the typothetae objected to the admission of this, but it was allowed by the court, to go into the record.

STEAM AUTO WINS AGAIN
The Cigar Shaped Car Makes Thirty Miles in 28:38 2-5.

Omond, Fla., Jan. 29.—With the weather fair and warm, the beach course in excellent condition and the first event finished before 8 o'clock this forenoon, all the early contests today pointed to a speedy finish for the automobile tournament. Had the regular schedule been carried out the last event would have been run off last Saturday but unfavorable weather during much of the week made numerous postponements necessary. When the racing ended Saturday five events remained on the card and it was decided to make every effort to finish them today.

The first race scheduled for today was the thirty mile championship for American built cars and the contestants were lined up ready for the start at 7 o'clock. Marriot in the cigar-shaped steamer which has shown superior bursts of speed upon several occasions during the tournament and which set a new mark for the mile for all cars, won the event although he delayed more than five minutes at the start. His official time for the thirty miles was 28:18 2-5, but he did not consume by the car in covering the distance was 28:38 2-5.

AN ATTEMPT TO SHOOT MINISTER

Danish Official Has a Narrow Escape From Assassination.

Copenhagen Jan. 29.—An attempt to shoot M. Alberti, the minister of justice, was frustrated by the bravery of the minister, who grappled with his assailant and wrested the revolver from him before it could be discharged. The minister's assailant, who was promptly arrested, was formerly an insurance agent, named Boye, who had been sentenced to a term of imprisonment for burglary in spite of his protests that he was innocent. Boye called at the ministry today and drew a revolver immediately after he had been admitted to the presence of Minister Alberti. Friends of the prisoner say he had become mentally unbalanced by his alleged wrongful imprisonment.

THE FRENCH BARK COURBET IN DISTRESS.

Victoria, Jan. 29.—A bark believed to be the Admiral Courbet is in distress off the Vancouver coast near Carmanah. The lighthouse keeper reported at 5 o'clock p. m. yesterday that the bark was within a mile of shore, with a big swell setting in. Tugs have been dispatched to her aid. The weather is calm, but the heavy swell is carrying the bark ashore.

The Admiral Courbet is a French vessel of 1,740 tons and is bound for Tacoma from San Francisco, whence she sailed Jan. 17.

PRINTERS IN CONTEMPT

Members of Chicago Union Fined and Sentenced to Prison.

Violation of Injunction Issued by Court Cause of Punishment.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—President Wright of Typographical union No. 16 was today fined by Judge Holden of the superior court, $100 and sentenced to thirty days in jail for contempt of court. Edward Besette, a member of the union, was fined $50 and sentenced to thirty days in jail. The union itself was fined $1,000. The charge against the union and its members who were fined by Judge Holden was violation of an injunction granted some weeks ago by which the members of the union were enjoined from interfering in any manner with the operation of the printing establishments operated by members of the Chicago typothetae and from interfering in any manner with the non-union workmen employed in these establishments.

In announcing his decision Judge Holden said: "It cannot be tolerated that any class, condition, or combination of men can show their hostility to this court, and flout its judgment, and in open meeting express their contempt for the order and the law. The law is merely the instrument of the law, as has been done in this case. It is not a question whether the injunction is right or wrong. That will be decided by the upper court, but while it is in force and effect, it must be obeyed. In this case it has not been a mere technical violation of the injunction but a persistent one, and an utter disregard for the order of the court. If this court cannot be upheld the government is a fraud and a sham."

Before the announcement of the decision counsel for the union asked leave to file an affidavit signed by sixty members of the union which stated that they are opposed to violence in any form in connection with the strike. Attorneys for the typothetae objected to the admission of this, but it was allowed by the court, to go into the record.

USE BILLIES ON LUNATIC

Peoria Police Successfully Knock Out Would-be Murderer.

Insane Man Had Held Officers at Bay All Night.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 29.—After holding a large number of police officers at bay all night, Charles Harwood, a former policeman, and insane, was captured this morning.

Capt. Wilson, who had charge of the squads surrounding the house, induced Harwood to talk with him. Harwood consented to walk to police headquarters and talk matters over, but stated that he would kill the first policeman to make a hostile move. At the city hall, Harwood demanded that all policemen walk ahead of him into a back room and see Sergeant Walsh and Officer Couch passed close to him they wielded their billies with good effect, knocking Harwood down and out before he could fire a shot. After being disarmed he begged the officers for mercy and asked them not to use him roughly. When his home was searched three revolvers in addition to the one he carried, all .38 and .44-calibre, were found. He was also plentifully supplied with ammunition and threats to kill Capt. Wilson as soon as he got out for betraying him.

Charles Harwood entered the police headquarters yesterday afternoon and at the point of a revolver, held up the chief and seven officers for fifteen minutes, while he vented his insane wrath in curses. After threatening to shoot the eight men and failing to shoot because a loaded cartridge did not discharge, he backed out of the station, then made his escape. Within an hour after the holding of the station, Harwood appeared near his home on Bigelow street and entered the residence of a Mrs. Montgomery, whom he knocked to the floor. Taking a shotgun and a revolver from the house, he barricaded himself in his own residence. A force of officers further stood off a squad of police, who could not force an entrance. Saturday night he compelled his wife to disrobe and then drove her into the street, and Sunday morning he made an attempt on the life of the children. Chief Kennedy and the officers in the station were unarmed.

At 1 o'clock yesterday morning Harwood suddenly appeared on the porch of his house, dressed in his underwear and with a gun in each hand. He cut loose on the officers in front of the house and the fire was returned, but no shots took effect. Harwood then reentered the house and the posse settled down to a siege.

STOCKMEN MEET AT DENVER, COLO.

Western Live Stock Show to be Held There This Week.

Denver, Jan. 29.—Hundreds of stockmen have come to Denver to attend the western live stock show and the meetings to be held here this week. The live stock show, which is to be made an annual event, opened this afternoon with 336 entries, over 100 carloads of fine stock being exhibited. Tomorrow the National Live Stock association and the American Stock Growers' association, organized a year ago by seceders from the national association, will assemble in joint session. It is expected that the association will be reunited at this convention. Many important questions to engage the attention of the stockmen this week, including railroad rate legislation, reciprocity and the use of public lands for grazing.

"This convention," said President Yurdo Mackenzie of the American Stock Growers' association, "will mark the beginning of a great epoch in the history of the American stock grower. With the cattlemen of the country united in one strong organization, working entirely to the benefit of the producer, almost anything can be accomplished to the settlement of present conditions."

LA FOLLETTE BOOM

For President Said to be Device of Wisconsin Stalwarts.

Washington, Jan. 29.—While political Washington is diligently devoting its spare moments to long range consideration of presidential possibilities for 1908, there has swooped down on the capital all the way from Wisconsin, a boom for Senator La Follette for president.

The suggestion comes seriously from a leading member of the stalwart management in the Badger state.

The idea of La Follette as a presidential candidate is by no means novel, but that the stalwarts of his state would support his ambition is new. The explanation is that this would open one way for them to get rid of the militant senator as an immediate factor in state politics.

It is the stalwart claim that he is the typical state boss; that nowhere in the Union is another man who has so completely dominated his party and state. Therefore, it is said, the stalwarts, whose chief concern is to get themselves back into the saddle, would be prompt to fall into line under the banner of state pride, supporting La Follette for president.

ANNUAL CLEARING SALE

ONCE EVERY YEAR at this time comes our great stock-reducing and cleaning-up sale. The event has come to be looked upon as the most important sale of the year—first, because every department is represented and nothing reserved. Secondly, because the price reductions are deep—in some instances a mere fraction of regular prices—and not merely a few leaders thrown out as “bait”—and third (and perhaps most important of all) because nothing but high-class, up-to-date and desirable merchandise of the very best make and style is offered. The response to this annual announcement is always of the most satisfactory kind—hundreds waiting for and availing themselves of the great savings offered, and the store is usually crowded to its capacity during the progress of the sale. Knowing women come early to secure the best “plums” and choice of stock. Don't be one of the “late” ones this year.

OF CARBAGERecommended In Annual Report of Health Commissioner.Duluth's Death Rate Is the Lowest In the Country.

The immediate installation of a municipal system for the collection of garbage is recommended by the annual report of Health Commissioner Murray, which was filed with the city clerk this afternoon and will be submitted to the council this evening.

The health commissioner calls attention to the fact that the city will soon have in operation a garbage collection system of the most improved type, and he recommends that some system be immediately adopted whereby the garbage may be of the most possible benefit.

For years the plan of collecting garbage has been considered a greater or less extent, but now that the city is about ready to commence operations, the health commissioner urges that some immediate steps be taken.

The report also reviews the work done by the milk inspector and gives a very interesting and instructive summary of the work of inspecting milk for tuberculosis, which was undertaken by the department for the first time last year.

The first year's operation of the inspection ordinance passed last spring, has proved a very successful one. It required three or four months to get it in proper working order, but at the present time all cows furnishing milk to the city are regularly inspected, and have passed the inspection test of the department.

The work of the new branch of the state laboratory installed in St. Mary's hospital is also reviewed, and the great benefits accruing to the city from it are discussed. At a combined cost of about $25 a month the city has practically all of the advantages for which St. Paul and Minneapolis have to pay.

Prompt service for tests of diphtheria cultures is here a matter of course, and the work done by the laboratory, and during the coming year it will take up much experimental work in connection with the inspection of the water, milk and food supplies, which is expected to be of great benefit to the city.

In spite of the addition of these two new departments during the year, there has been saving over the previous year in the amount of money expended by the health commissioner, amounting to $3000. The laboratory more than pays for itself in the saving of expenses.

The vital statistics of the city for the year 1905, given by the health commissioner, show that the death rate is nearly 1 per cent lower than the rate given for the year 1904. The report was carefully gone over by the health commissioner, and he found that the figures are correct, and that the city is in a better position than ever before.

The result was that the actual death rate is nearly 1 per cent lower than the rate given for the year 1904. The report was carefully gone over by the health commissioner, and he found that the figures are correct, and that the city is in a better position than ever before.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—"Liberty Bells," also to METROPOLITAN—High School Girls.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Wednesday evening, Jan. 31, "Liberty Bells," also to METROPOLITAN—High School Girls.

LYCEUM—Friday and Saturday, "The College Widow."

"THE LIBERTY BELLS." The Liberty Bells will be at the Lyceum tonight and tomorrow night. The story is almost entirely humorous, and is a comic play, which has its foundation in a sentimental escapade on the part of Margery Lee, a stage-struck girl, engaged to Jack Everleigh, an Annapolis cadet, and Dorothy Grey, a fellow student, engaged to Phil Fullerton, a Yale Junior. These parts are played by Tola Cange, the widely known comedian and mimic, and a beautiful young actress and vocalist, Leonora Robertson. The opening act is unique. It represents the dormitory of a female seminary, in which are discovered twenty young girls in all sorts of disheveled costumes, enjoying a midnight supper in the absence of their teachers. The second act finds the "Liberty Bells" conducting a cooking school. A great variety of songs, choruses and specialties are introduced in this act. The scene of the third act is in a Florida orange grove, where the fun increases after the manner of high class comedy, until a rather unconventional denouement is reached. The comedy element is largely in the hands of William Mausey and William H. Conley.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS. The High School Girls will begin a week's engagement at the Metropolitan this evening. The company arrived in Duluth yesterday from Minneapolis, where it played an engagement at the Dwyer theater. It has a wealth of special scenery and property costumes, and the musical numbers and comedy are said to be good. Nat and Sol Fields, brothers of the famous Law Fields, are the principal comedians.

HONORED BY MANY RULERS. Kubelik, the great Bohemian violin virtuoso, who plays at the Lyceum Wednesday, enjoys several unique distinctions. He was the last artist to play by command for Queen Victoria at Windsor Castle, previous to her death, and the first to play before King Edward VII. after his coronation. Kubelik has played by command several times before each ruler in Europe—more than has any other artist of his time.

QUEEN MOTHER GREETSS PRINCESS King Alfonso Takes His Bride-to-Be to San Sebastian.

Madrid, France, Jan. 29.—King Alfonso, accompanied by the military members of his household in full uniform, arrived here yesterday in automobiles, to conduct Princess Ena of Baden, her mother, Princess Henry and Prince Alexander of Baden to San Sebastian. The start for San Sebastian was made at 11:15 a. m.

Everywhere along the route the royal party was enthusiastically greeted. At San Sebastian the entire population turned out to meet the queen mother. Princess Ena and Prince Alexander were shown on the princess, to whom the municipality presented magnificent bouquets.

The queen mother, Maria Christina, received Princess Ena in the most gracious manner. After lunch at the palace, the king and princesses took a trip around the town and the surrounding country, returning for tea at the palace.

At 5:30 o'clock, the princesses, accompanied by their majesty and Prince Alexander, left for Biarritz, arriving at the villa Mouret at 6:45 o'clock. The king left for San Sebastian on a special train at 7 o'clock, in order to dine with the queen mother. Premier Mon arrived at San Sebastian at 11:30. He spent the day at the palace and returned to Madrid at midnight. It is understood that King Alfonso will proclaim an unusually extensive amnesty on the occasion of the attainment of his betrothal.

DUNNE SIGNS MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP MEASURE.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—"I have appended my signature to the municipal ownership measure recently passed by the city council and am resting content in the belief that my plans for the municipalization of the Chicago street car lines will be realized before my present term of office is ended."

Mayor Dunne made the foregoing announcement yesterday. He said he had signed the so-called $7,000,000 ordinance Saturday night while lying ill at his home, in the belief that it was necessary for him to sign the ordinance within ten days of the date of passage, in order that it might become legal under the provisions of the city charter.

That legal obstacles will be placed in the way of the consumption of his plans is anticipated by Mayor Dunne. "I believe that right after election there will be a natural attempt made to test the validity of the act," he said. "That, however, is a thing to be desired. We wish to have it done as quickly as possible, and I believe we shall get a decision within three months at the minimum, and twelve months at the maximum."

INCREASE VERY LARGE

Average Ore Cargoes Show Gains During Past Year.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern Road's Figures Are Interesting.

Figures of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road for the past ten years show an interesting increase in the size of the average cargoes loaded at the road's docks in Duluth.

They give some illustration of the progress that has been made in the construction of ore carriers on the lakes since 1895, and of the increase in the shipments of ore from the Head of the Lakes, particularly the latter.

The average cargo loaded at the Missabe docks during the season of 1905 was 6,101 tons, which was $29 tons more than the average cargo for the season of 1904. The average cargo for 1904 was 5,272 tons, which was lower than the average for the year previous.

But it is a well known fact that the season of 1904 was a very poor one from a mining and ore shipping point of view.

The season of 1895 was not as good as the season of 1897, according to the figures but with the exception of the years 1898, 1899 and 1900 the average cargoes were all larger than the one for the season just previous.

The season of 1905 led all those of the ten years in the size of the average cargoes. The season of 1903 was its nearest competitor, the average cargo for that year being something like 5,628 tons. This was a gain of 356 tons over the average for the season before.

The increase in the ore shipments during the past ten years is most strikingly shown by a comparison of the average cargo for the season 1905 with that for the season of 1895, ten years ago. The average then was 1,899 tons, or 4,201 less than that for 1905.

COUNTY DIVISION FIGHT IN ITASCA

Ripple and Northome Have Second Proposition—Third Probable.

Leer River, Minn., Jan. 29.—Ripple and Northome have come out with a second proposition for county division. This petition names "Forest" for a new county, and embodies all the territory asked by the Koochiching people, and in addition takes in other parts of the northwest corner of town 62-27 to the southwest corner of 47-28, thence west on the Mississippi river to the southwest corner of the county.

It appears the people about Northome and Ripple are not satisfied with the Koochiching proposition, and they find that many in other parts of the county share that view with them; and the petition they now are circulating is not expected to be a winner, but it will have the effect of splitting up the whole vote to such an extent that neither proposition will receive the necessary majority of all the votes cast, to carry.

The news says: "The sentiment in Deer River is strongly against division as proposed, and there is some talk of making a third petition and designating this place for a county seat. In fact, to make three new counties is a plan frequently mentioned. Advocates of this idea say that at the rapid rate this section is populating it will be but a few years when four counties would easily be made of Itasca, and it may as well be done at first move. Then they point out that to add a piece from the northwest corner of the county to another would be beneficial to all the territory thus made together; and further objection is made to a single division because Koochiching is now beginning to pay some noticeable tax to help sustain that end of expenses, and that owing to two railroads from the south entering the Ralby river country soon will make that corner easy of access and cut down the expense about 50 per cent."

TO ESTABLISH BRANCH HERE

Great Lakes Dredging Company to Have Duluth Office.

The Great Lakes Dredge & Dock company of Chicago, which has absorbed the old Lake Superior Dredging company, is to establish a branch at Duluth yesterday. Among those who attended the meeting were B. J. Cook of Duluth, who is a heavy stockholder in the concern, T. C. Lutz, vice president and general manager, and Thomas Mackie of the Soo, representing the interests of the absorbed Lake Superior company.

This decision was made at a meeting of those most heavily interested in the concern in Duluth yesterday. Among those who attended the meeting were B. J. Cook of Duluth, who is a heavy stockholder in the concern, T. C. Lutz, vice president and general manager, and Thomas Mackie of the Soo, representing the interests of the absorbed Lake Superior company.

Negotiations in this matter have been pending for some time and the dredging men have been the guests of Mr. Cook while in the city. Although those interested have been figuring on it for quite a while, the merger of the Lake Superior company with the Great Lakes company was accomplished only yesterday.

It is expected that the Chicago concern will establish itself in Duluth as soon as possible and prepare for the work of the coming season. Some big contracts have already been secured, it is said.

LOCHINVAR IN THE RUNNING

James Glaser's Gelding Tied With Sellwood's John for Cup.

Lochinvar owned by James Glaser, took two straight heats in the race for trotters with a mark under 2:20 and placed under 2:25, Saturday afternoon on the ice track at Twenty-first avenue west.

John Billie and Prince finished second and third in each heat. The victory leaves Lochinvar and Richard Sellwood's John tied for the trophy which is offered, each horse having won one event.

The free for all race had to be postponed owing to the sickness of James Henderson's pacer, Beulah Smith.

In the third class for horses with a mark slower than 2:40, Motor Girl lost a good opportunity to win by breaking in each of the two heats. She seemed to have the most speed of any of the horses in the entry list, but ruined her chances each time by breaking. Verah Dell and Prince finished first and second in each heat, Motor Girl being third and Kitty Birchwood fourth.

The third race in the series will be pulled off next Saturday.

SKATING RACE.

The race will be for two heats, out of three.

JACK LONDON AS A SOCIALIST

Predicts Class War With the World as the Prize.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 29.—Jack London made a Socialist speech before an audience of 3,000 Yale men and their friends in Woolsey hall, the great Yale amphitheater. London's views were so radical that they even exceeded the views of the Yale faculty, which only reluctantly consented to London's appearance before a student audience. In his address on "The Coming Crisis," he predicted a great social revolution. He said in part: "When I write to a Socialist I start the letter with the phrase 'Dear comrade,' and I close the letter with the phrase 'Yours for the revolution.' That is the practice among 40,000 Socialists in the United States."

"There are throughout the civilized world $5,000,000,000 Socialists, organized in a great international movement. Their purpose is based on intelligence and on economic facts, the doing away with the ownership of capital and with patriotism, in brief, the overthrow of existing society."

"We will be content with nothing less than the overthrow of existing society. We will be content with nothing less than the overthrow of existing society. We will be content with nothing less than the overthrow of existing society."

"Socialism is going shoulder to shoulder with the world. It is the only force that is spreading even into Cuba and the Philippines. The grip of Socialism is tightening on the world. The blood-red banner soon will be waving wildly in all winds. This is not a vague utopian propaganda based on intelligence and on economic facts. The workers as a class are nearing capitalism as a class."

"My indictment against capital has never been answered. I challenge capital to answer it. Capital has managed society and failed utterly because it is based on selfishness and on economic facts, the doing away with the ownership of capital and with patriotism, in brief, the overthrow of existing society."

"When the food-getting efficiency of the human race is put to the test, the best of men in this great land? Why is it that 50,000 children in New York City go to school without breakfast each morning? There are 1,200 millionaires in New York."

"The capitalists are in the minority. We are in the majority. All capitalists are bad and all workmen are good. If people object to our program, let them object to the program of the constitution. Yes, to hell with the constitution. Yes, to hell with the constitution. Yes, to hell with the constitution."

"President Roosevelt is frightened by our revolution. He says that class is the greater danger to the country. Class war is our watershed."

The Bible class, which meets at the Y. W. C. A. rooms Monday evenings, at 6:30 o'clock, for the study of the International Sunday school lesson, has been postponed until 7:30 o'clock, in order that more people may take advantage of the opportunity to study the lesson who were unable to attend when the class met at the earlier hour. ### The Great Kubelik.

Jan Kubelik, the great Bohemian violinist, wizard of technique, poet of tones, musician of moods, the most fascinating as well as the most sensational virtuoso of the new century, will visit this city Wednesday evening, wielding his magic bow at the Lyceum. Opportunities to hear Kubelik play are rare. This is his first visit to America in four years, and it will be his last for some time, for at the end of his present visit he will go on a tour around the world that will prevent his return to this country for two seasons at least. Kubelik's visit thus far has been a series of colossal triumphs. He has appeared in six concerts and recitals in New York, at each of which the applause reached the proportions of an ovation. Kubelik will play an exceedingly interesting and highly spectacular program here. He will make his selections from some of the most beautiful and difficult works of Handel, Beethoven, Bruch, Vieuxtemps, Wieniawski and Paganini, selections certain to reveal the depth and poetry of his musical feeling as well as his astonishing technical equipment. Melody to stir the soul and dazzling musical fireworks are his specialties. He will be assisted by Ludwig Schwan, accompanist, and Agnes Gardner Eyer, solo pianist. Miss Eyer will play numbers by Chopin, Saint-Saens and Liszt.

Events of Interest.

The Duluth Chamber Music club will give the second concert of the year this evening at Cityway hall. The program arranged is a most interesting one. The soloist will be Mrs. James McCullough, who will play the violin. She will take part with Mrs. Fred Bradbury, Miss Marie Geist, and Fred Bradbury, Miss Rogers, Oliver Colborn and Mr. Evans.

The Matinee Musicals held its regular meeting this afternoon at Cityway hall. The program was arranged by Mrs. S. P. Stocker and Mrs. Carl Sheldon.

The Cecilia society will meet Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, with Miss Mary Paine of the London road.

The Evening Browning class of the Twentieth Century club will meet this evening at the club room of the library. Rev. John W. Powell will speak on "Balaustion," the hero of two of Browning's poems.

The Unity club will meet this evening at the church, on East First street. The subject for the evening's discussion will be "Federal Control of Railroads and Rate Making," with G. Joerns and W. W. Walker as the principal speakers of the evening. Mr. Joerns will take the place of E. M. Ferguson, who is absent from the city.

The Westminster auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, with Mrs. W. P. Heimlich of 1123 East First street.

The Busy Bee Klog Daughters met yesterday afternoon with Miss Beth Johnson of 715 Ninth avenue east.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Wessinger left Saturday evening for a several months' trip in the South and West. They will visit at New Orleans, in Mexico and California before their return.

Miss Ella Butler of Fargo, N. D., will arrive tomorrow to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Knudsen have returned from a trip to West Baden and Louisville.

WOULD REVERSE IT.

Suggested Change for the Marriage Ceremony.

New York World: Mrs. John H. Judge wants the marriage service rewritten. She objects to have women considered as a chattel, and in place of "Who giveth this woman?" would insert "Whom chooseth this woman?"

The Society for Ethical Culture, to whom she put the matter yesterday afternoon at Genealogical hall, widely applauded the suggestion. The two voices of remonstrance were those of Mrs. S. M. Cory and Mrs. Belle De Rivera. Mrs. Cory thought it might be dangerous to rewrite the marriage service, lest by mistake that important clause be stricken out: "With all my worldly goods I thee endow." Mrs. De Rivera said a girl had no chance to choose a husband; she had to wait to be chosen.

"Any smart girl," retorted Mrs. Judge disdainfully, "can choose a man. I never yet saw a girl fall if she made up her mind to it. If a girl is so foolish she can't get a man to propose I am sorry for her."

Five minutes before she had objected to the custom that prevailed in savage tribes of knocking a woman on the head as an announcement that a man wanted to marry her. The reversal of the order of things, however, seemed to her entirely justifiable.

"In the United States," said Mrs. Judge, "we have laid the corner stone of the true marriage. We believe in the romantic marriage—courtship before marriage—the consent of the woman being asked first and the parents' afterward. The Bible does not refer to any romantic courtship. Europe has few, and America is the cradle of this basis of happiness and advancement. Here woman is not the slave of the man, but his companion, his queen."

She admitted that marriage was the one thing of all others that every woman desired, but said it was very wrong to let any man say he supported his wife.

"If she takes care of his home she has given up more than he has," she concluded.

Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates took exception to the assertion that there were no courtships in the Bible. Miss Mary Garrett Hay opined that most of the trouble in marriage was caused by the husband's habit of doing out the money penny by penny, and having "when you never can tell whether you could do either till afterward."

"In which case," replied Mrs. Le Roy Sunderland Smith, "she would make him pay all the bills and keep the rest herself."

There was much discussion over the word "obey" in the marriage service, and Mrs. Belle Gray Taylor held that it was equally wrong to promise to love and honor "when you never can tell whether you could do either till afterward."

CANNOT BEAT CUPID.

Fable of Two Who Never Intended to Marry.

There was once upon a time a Man who had resolved to sidestep the matrimonial snare, says the Philadelphia Telegraph.

Also at the same time lived a Maid who saw his game and went him one better.

She intended never, never to marry, but spotted him for her steady.

He was shy at first, kept looking out for the halter, but she patted his nose, fed him sugar, and made him understand it was a Frolic and no Double Damned scheme at all.

Who cannot see the End of this Tale?

He often caught himself looking sideways at her, and the shape of her mouth kept him awake nights. Sometimes he feared he had been ordained to Kiss it.

For her part, the Wheels in her head kept running on the same track—namely, the last time she had seen him and when she would again behold his Manly countenance.

Moreover, the way he had looked at her once or twice, like a Hungry man at Hot Mince Pie, had caused something to run Tiptoe across her nerves. They went everywhere together, and agreed that their Friendship was the Finest Ever. As for Marriage, it was made for slaves; as for Love, they laughed.

So time went on and their Pleasure was something Great. Friendship was something even better than they expected.

If it hadn't rained they might have been Friends yet, whereas now they are Merely Married.

It rained; so hard that it was up to him to hire a carriage, getting in the mischief was done by a Circuit completed, and so sooner was the door banged than he could stand it any longer, and Kissed.

So they were Married and lived Married ever after, which is, as we all know, not as good as being Friends and Worse off than Long in Love.

Moral: Cupid can give everybody Cards and Spades and beat them with his Hands tied behind him.

NOT TO BE LAKING.

Kaiser Does Not Care for the Opera "Otello."

Just what the kaiser's musical tastes are is not known definitely, for he changes them at will, this being his royal prerogative, says a Berlin dispatch. Recently he visited the Prince Regent of Brunswick who gave a performance of Verdi's "Otello" at the Brunswick opera house in honor of his guest.

The kaiser did not like the opera, and after the performance he invited the leader of the orchestra, to his box and said:

"When I next come to Brunswick you must play my favorite music. 'Otello' is not to my taste; it is interesting in a way, but has not affected me in the least."

He, however, gave the poor old man a gold scarf-pin with diamonds in it. Then he called up the three principal singers, Otello, Desdemona and Iago, all of whom appeared in their stage costumes. The Emperor gave the men scarf-pins, and the Fraulein Lauten a gold brooch, but accompanied the gifts with another lecture.

"I cannot remember a note of what I have heard," he said. "What is the opera for? To amuse and instruct. I go there with my wife and children, and we like to hear something we can take away with us, something that sounds in our heads long afterward. There is nothing of this in 'Otello.' I am not impressed; I like being impressed. When I come, sing me something I like."

Almost everybody is agreed that every girl and woman should know how to cook and keep house, and the ladies who write household things for magazines and never do a tap of housework or cooking themselves, especially are a unit on this question. And the bride who has a good cook book and reasonable income and then fails, gets naturally the sympathy from feminine friends, whatever the newly made husband may provide in that line. However, if there be a bride of anything less than fifty years, standing who doesn't know how to fix skinned perch, she will be forgiven, one comical cook book having failed to give the required information under perch, skinned, fish or any other head that suggested itself. Skinned perch are just the sort of thing that men would like and presumably if he likes them he will know how they must be cooked. If your family hankers after this sort of thing the perch in the market are really quite nice looking.

The pheasants are getting smaller and cheaper, which keeps them at about the same price. In the grape fruit in the market is delicious, and the new vegetables are also a change and an attractive one.

FINDS SUMMER AT PITTSBURG

W. V. Grubbs Tells of Warm Weather in the East.

"The East has been experiencing some real summer weather," says W. V. Grubbs, Northwestern manager for the Pacific Entry Quarries company, who returned Saturday with his daughter from a three weeks' visit at various Eastern points.

At Pittsburgh a week ago Sunday a man was told that the effects of heat would not have told that story in Duluth unless he had the papers from that city showing that the temperature was 84 deg. on the date mentioned. It was something of a surprise to find that the weather was so warm. People were walking about and visiting the parks garbed as for real summer weather. The rose bushes were budding out, the grass was green, and even the peach trees showed signs of blossoming.

If they got some more freezing weather in Pennsylvania this spring it will be all off with the fruit crop.

"We went out to one of the parks where there is an immense reservoir with the water supply of the city. I noticed that a thermometer in the shade of a building and exposed to the wind that was blowing right across the lake body of cold water registered 56 deg. Warm rains have started the vegetation in and about Pittsburgh."

Mr. Grubbs attended the national convention of the cut stone contractors and quarriers that was held for several days at Pittsburgh and Homestead. He says the plants are simply swamped with orders for cut stone. The two largest quarries are now working to their fullest capacities.

dications are that there is a large body of it. The Robinson Iron company have also had two drills working in this place for several months, but what success they have met with cannot be stated.

George Hutchings, superintendent of exploration work for the Oliver Iron Mining company, is here, arranging for the removal of the company's drill which has been working at Mud creek for the past seven months. The machine will be taken to lands near Ely. Three holes were put down on the Mud creek property, but aside from a small vein of low grade ore, nothing was found. Work would possibly have been continued longer had it not been for the drill encountering a rugged extra expense and delay that operations were ordered stopped.

SCHOONER CAPSIZES; SIX MEN LOSE LIVES.

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 29.—A telegram from Bamfield says the halibut fishing schooner, Ella G., has turned turtle and six men on board were drowned. Among them was Alexander McLean, who was commander of the illegal sealing vessel Carmichael. Capt. Alexander McLean, who was interested in the ownership of the vessel, was a sealer who has become notorious as a result of sealing raids and a recent illicit sealing cruise to Behring Sea in the schooner Carmichael.

Jack London, the novelist, stated McLean was the foundation for the character of Larsen in "The Sea Wolf," in his novel of that name.

With a brother, Dan McLean, who died when two years ago, McLean was sealing on the Pacific coast for many years, and on one occasion was seized by the Russian cruiser Aleut, which was in consequence of this that orders were given for McLean's arrest, but the warrant was never served.

WORK AMONG THE BLACK PEOPLE

On West Coast of Africa
Related by Missionaries.

New York, Jan. 20.—The Rev. Dr. A. Woodruff Halsey, who recently returned from a tour of the Presbyterian mission stations on the west coast of Africa, brought back with him a number of incidents told by teachers and missionaries of the work among the black people. He tells, for instance, of the difficulties of discipline in schools where there are boys of different tribes, grown to fighting among each other. One of the teachers tried a new method of stopping it.

Two boys got into a fight, and the teacher called them outside of the school house and put in the hand of the smaller boy a switch. He then told the larger boy that he must fight the larger one until he was satisfied, and that the larger boy would be given a chance at him. As the teacher told the story, "It was really the most beautiful performance imaginable, for it is rarely that one sees two boys more badly scared. It took all the authority that the teacher could muster to keep the boys from rushing to the fight. The smaller boy almost went into hysterics. During the process of the switching the larger boy put back his hand to protect himself, as boys will, and received a good rap on the knuckles. When it came his turn to do the switching, he could hardly hold the switch long enough to strike, and the mixed look of hate and misery on his face cannot be described. All the boys were looking on, and I am quite sure the lesson was effective."

The native African is extremely superstitious and believes "finly" in witchcraft. One of the teachers told this story: "While on a trip after school-boys we saw beside the road a table loaded with food. By inquiry we learned that two men had recently died in a nearby town and that the people had put this there as a propitiatory offering to the evil spirit that was troubling them. Discussion about this incident led Dr. Halsey to tell us of a conference he had had a few days before. As he was on his way home one evening, a man came to him and asked for some medicine that would keep his wife from troubling him at night. He said she had died two months ago, but did not trouble him during the first month. At the beginning of the second month she had knocked at the door and wanted to come in. He sat up in bed, but she did not offer to let him in. However, that did not hinder her, for she came over to the bed and lay her head on his breast. 'Now,' he said, 'she comes every night, and I cannot sleep.' The doctor told him he was despondent, and it may be a 'Nile' man who is trying to get a hold on him. The power of suggestion over the native mind is something wonderful. At Old Calabar we were told that even Christian boys could not be induced to cross a line which they had been forbidden to cross on pain of death. This was due to the fact that death had actually occurred under such circumstances. "Travel in the African forest," Dr. Halsey says, "is very difficult. It is not that the trees are so thick, but that there are so many vines to impede progress. Worst of all is a sort of triangular grass with razor-like edges which cuts like a knife. If after rescuing yourself into a sort of open, you are able to unwind some twenty or thirty feet of this grass which lies across your path, you may consider yourself fortunate that your eyes are in your head. The least you can expect is to get out looking as though you had been in a bramble-bush, and clothes that indicate intimate relations with a barbed wire fence. The swampy mist also be considered, so in Africa "stick to your path" is a better motto than "stick to your bush."

LUMBERMEN MAKE SALES

Several Deals for Advanced Cuts Are Being Made.

Present Weather Conditions Mean Curtailment of Log Supply.

The week just closed showed something more than the usual activity in lumber circles for this period of the season. Besides the sale of 10,000,000 feet of No. 3 lumber of the O'Brien stock for shipment to Saginaw, a deal was closed in the past few days for the delivery of 25,000,000 feet of No. 2 O'Brien lumber at the Mulberry mill, to Chicago, Cleveland, Toledo and Grand Rapids. Some of the lumber in this sale will undoubtedly be cut at the St. Louis mill at West Duluth, which is operated by the O'Brien interests. Most of the stock will be cut in winter and the remainder will be cut this coming summer.

The price of this lumber sale shows that white pine of all grades is still holding up well in the market. No. 4 boards are selling for $15.50 per thousand and No. 3 common and better at $25 to $27 per thousand.

The log receipts are running especially heavy just now. In one day, of ten to twelve hours last week, eleven train loads of logs shipped out over the Iron Range road. Most of this log supply went to the Alger-Smith mills at Rice's Point and West Duluth, but a considerable amount of logs are being left every day at the O'Brien and the Mulberry mills. The receipts are running approximately 600,000 feet per day.

The Virginia Lumber company is an important factor in the lumber market this winter. The company's mill at West Duluth has an annual capacity of about 60,000,000 feet and it has actually contracted for the sale of about 40,000,000 feet of the output. The company is manufacturing lumber at Virginia for the trade in the north about 1,000,000 feet left in stock of the 75,000,000 feet that it manufactured last season.

The company is even now getting orders right along for about 4,000,000 feet of piece stuff every month, and its output only runs about 600,000 feet per month. Sales are being made, it is claimed, as fast as the company is able to make pieces. Shipments are heavy, both of dry and newly cut lumber.

Besides the immense amount of white pine that is being brought in by rail to Duluth, it is estimated that about 40,000,000 feet of white pine of all grades will be consumed here and along the South Shore road this season, and the timber is now coming through in Duluth in carloads. Plans for a large dressing and distributing yard for Pacific coast timber are already well along and the yard is bound to be established before the summer season.

Logging operations are not proceeding at any rapid rate. Warm weather and heavy snows have tended to hinder the loggers. It is practically impossible for hauling purposes except in a few localities where the low temperature of the few days of the week put a little frost in the ground. The larger camps can make a fair showing, but the total output of the month will be small. The loggers expected at the beginning of the season.

A NEW SAVING IS EFFECTED
In Turpentine Industry by Experiments by the Forest Service.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The recent experiments of the forest service, designed to conserve the life of turpentine trees, gives promise of remarkable success. It is believed that the improvements tested in these experiments will, in addition to prolonging the life of the trees, greatly increase their total yield of turpentine.

When the cup and gutter system of turpentine was introduced by the forest service, some three years ago, the economy which it secured led to its adoption on a large scale by Southern turpentine producers. What was the cause of its great value is the fact that it does away with the old practice of "boxing," which consists in cutting a deep cavity, the "box," at the base of the tree for the purpose of catching and holding the resin which flows from the chipped "face" of the tree trunk above. In place of the "box" an earthenware cup, of the same capacity, is fastened to the tree. To this tin flowing resin is directed by means of metal gutters. The disease of the "box" effected a two-fold gain—first, a saving of the deep, fatal wound in the base of the tree, and consequently a conservation of its vitality; and, second, much less waste in the gathering of the product, with a greater yield of turpentine and better grades of resin.

While this decided improvement spared the tree very considerably, the method of chipping "faces" stimulate resin flow remained unchanged. This in itself necessitates a deep wound, which, it is believed, exhausts the vitality of the tree. It is necessary. Exhaustion is evident from the fact that after the first year the yield quickly falls off and the total productive period is thus limited. A further step in advance, to supplement the gains already secured by the cup and gutter system, was therefore sought in the new plan. This aimed to reduce the size and number of "faces" chipped, and also the depth of the chipping, without diminishing the quantity of resin. In the experiments carried out during the past season the first object was to show that at least an equal flow of resin can be secured from shallow and shorter "faces." The success of these experiments has tentatively established the practicability of this plan. A great saving naturally results, for by reducing the depth and the superficial extent of the wound the drain on the vitality of the tree is reduced, and at least an equal yield is secured without discounting the product of future years.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Under the old system the annual yield gradually falls off, largely in consequence of the formation of "dry-face," which is a kind of local death, affecting the exposed wood of the tree. It is highly probable that with this diminution in the severity of the operation the ordinary yield of three or four years during which a forest is now worked can be greatly increased. This means not only a larger total return, and consequently larger profits, but also that the investment period for turpentine capital is lengthened, a fact which especially appeals to the investor.

The experiments are being conducted in co-operation with the Hillman-Sutherland Land company, which last year placed four crops of trees, of about 5,000 trees each, at the disposal of the forest service, and for the season of 1907 has contracted for the sale of 100,000,000 feet of the output. The company is manufacturing lumber at Virginia for the trade in the north about 1,000,000 feet left in stock of the 75,000,000 feet that it manufactured last season.

FERGUS FALLS WATER PLANT
Likely to be Acquired by the City for $89,000.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Slowly the city of Fergus Falls and the city water works company are getting together, and in time they will close the deal which will make the city the owner of its own water works plant. Last fall the city voted $89,000 bonds for the purchase of the present plant or the establishment of a new one and after much negotiating the water works company has offered its plant to the city for the amount voted—$89,000. The city government will now secure an estimate of the value of the present plant by outside disinterested parties, before deciding upon either an acceptance or refusal of the proposition.

Last Friday night the Fergus Falls and Ada high school debating teams met at the Fergus Falls high school building to decide the championship of the Ninth Circuit in debating. The Fergus Falls team was composed of Alex Nelson, Charles Nyberg and William Bell, while Ada was represented by Paul Ostad and Misses Verna Ollers and Minnie Bratland.

The question was: "Resolved, That all electric state, district, county and city officers should be nominated by direct primaries under state regulation, rather than by delegate conventions." The affirmative was taken by Fergus Falls and the home team won, which makes the Fergus team champions of the district.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 20.—Two thousand dollars' damage to the engine and hoisting machinery of the Speculator mine, of the North Butte company, was caused by the breaking of a friction band on the north shaft of the engine, permitting the machinery for the time being to run wild and partially wrecking the engine.

Two men had narrow escapes from injury. The accident will not hinder operations in the Speculator, according to a statement made by Superintendent A. C. Carson. It will require a number of days to repair the damage suffered by the hoisting machinery. The Ore will be hoisted through the High Ore shaft, and while the engine is temporarily out of service, no one will be laid off and the work of development will go on as usual.

NEW KINDS OF FRUITS

That Are Being Introduced by Bureau of Plant Industry.

Bureau's Work in Matter of Studying Seed Adulterations.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report of the secretary of agriculture, or the year book of the department of agriculture, is a publication of which nearly 1,000,000 copies are distributed every year. It is read in every farming community in the country, but very few residents of the cities ever see a copy of this publication. And yet its pages are replete with information of the greatest interest to every American citizen. But while the published reports of the work accomplished are of prime importance, the detailed work of the men in charge of the work is brought out more clearly in the hearings before the committee on agriculture of the house than in any other manner.

Chairman Wadsworth of this committee is one of the most painstaking members of the house. He insists that the heads of the various bureaus of the department shall explain in detail just what they propose to accomplish with the funds for which they ask, and in consequence the hearings on the agricultural appropriation bill last for several weeks, and each member of the committee is loaded with information which traces him what occasion arises, to explain and defend each item of the appropriation.

During the past week Dr. B. T. Callaway, chief of the bureau of plant industry, has appeared each morning to explain the work of the men employed in the bureau and its accomplishments. He has proven himself to be, not only a most intelligent witness, but as a most entertaining narrator of the work of the department and its accomplishments. Recently the newspapers and magazines of the country have printed much about the experiments in plant breeding, which "Warrior" Burbank has conducted in California, and while the gentleman has achieved remarkable results in the way of producing new species of fruits and flowers, the department of agriculture has made giant strides in demonstrating that the breeding of fruits and flowers, and heros, not indolgent to the soil of this country, can be properly produced here.

Reference was made to the important work the bureau of plant industry has been conducting in the matter of breeding many new kinds of fruits. Special attention was called to the new hardy oranges that have been developed and are now being disseminated. It was stated that these oranges will be hardy as far north as South Carolina, and will grow as far west as Middle Texas. The department has not yet been entirely successful in securing a supply of successful plants are imported annually and it was pointed out that a good many of these plants could be profitably grown here. It was mentioned that the department has been making a special effort to determine whether it would be successful in growing the tree already well established in certain portions of the South and the department has had for its object the demonstration of the feasibility of extracting camphor from the trunks or prunings of the tree. This has been done, and it is given strict attention to the question of handling the fruits in the orchard before they are shipped. The bureau of plant industry has demonstrated the fact that a great deal of the loss of fruits in transit can be prevented by proper handling of the oranges, apples and other fruits after they are taken from the trees and while in shipment. Many experiments have been made to show the importance and value of proper methods of caring for the fruit before it is shipped. Attention was specifically called to the important work of the department in the matter of storage of fruits, especially apples. It was pointed out that apples in storage behave very differently when taken from different kinds of soil, and that at different times of the season and taken from different parts of the tree. All of these questions have been taken up by the bureau, and quantities of the apple after the fruit is put in the storage house. The department is making an effort to extend American fruit markets into foreign countries and to this end has made trial shipments of apples, pears, peaches and other fruits.

A great deal of interest was aroused in the committee by the discussion of the work of the bureau of plant industry in the matter of studying seed adulterations. Under a clause inserted in the last appropriation, the department has been gathering seed from all over the country, making examinations of the same, and publishing the names of the firms who are adulterating the seed, especially foreign crop seed. It was pointed out that about 700,000 pounds of Canadian bluegrass is brought into this country every year for the purpose of adulterating Kentucky bluegrass. The Canadian seed is worth about half as much as the Kentucky product. Two hundred and fifty thousand pounds of trefoil, a common and almost worthless seed, is imported every year for the purpose of adulterating alfalfa seed. A great deal of red clover is adulterated with seed of bur clover, which is obtained as a waste product in the cleaning of wool. This wool is sent in from South American countries, the bur clover is cleaned out of it, and then used for adulterating the higher grade clovers.

A special feature of the bureau of plant industry's work is a study of what is called "farm management" in different parts of the country. These studies have for their object the securing of facts bearing on the manner in which some of the best farmers are managed. When this data is once secured it is used to advise the farmer in its application to other sections of the country. Here and there throughout the country there are men who are successful in raising crops and raising animals and crops practiced with the successful, these are being studied, and records made of the cost of production and profits resulting therefrom in such a way that the results can be applied as already indicated.

Attention was also called to the extensive work of the bureau in its investigation of the improvement of the conditions in the Far West, so far as they relate to forage crops and the improvement of range lands. It was pointed out that some special investigations have shown that the cactus, grown over the region mentioned, could be made very valuable by simple methods of treatment so as to remove the spines.

In connection with the foreign exploration work being carried on by the department, attention was directed to the efforts being made to introduce crops of all kinds from different parts of the world, the object being to secure things not heretofore grown in this country and which might be profitably in building up new industries.

Attention was also called to the very varied work of the bureau in the investigation of such things as the growth of medicinal plants in this country. Four or five million dollars worth of medicinal plants are imported annually and it was pointed out that a good many of these plants could be profitably grown here. It was mentioned that the department has been making a special effort to determine whether it would be successful in growing the tree already well established in certain portions of the South and the department has had for its object the demonstration of the feasibility of extracting camphor from the trunks or prunings of the tree. This has been done, and it is given strict attention to the question of handling the fruits in the orchard before they are shipped. The bureau of plant industry has demonstrated the fact that a great deal of the loss of fruits in transit can be prevented by proper handling of the oranges, apples and other fruits after they are taken from the trees and while in shipment. Many experiments have been made to show the importance and value of proper methods of caring for the fruit before it is shipped. Attention was specifically called to the important work of the department in the matter of storage of fruits, especially apples. It was pointed out that apples in storage behave very differently when taken from different kinds of soil, and that at different times of the season and taken from different parts of the tree. All of these questions have been taken up by the bureau, and quantities of the apple after the fruit is put in the storage house. The department is making an effort to extend American fruit markets into foreign countries and to this end has made trial shipments of apples, pears, peaches and other fruits.

A great deal of interest was aroused in the committee by the discussion of the work of the bureau of plant industry in the matter of studying seed adulterations. Under a clause inserted in the last appropriation, the department has been gathering seed from all over the country, making examinations of the same, and publishing the names of the firms who are adulterating the seed, especially foreign crop seed. It was pointed out that about 700,000 pounds of Canadian bluegrass is brought into this country every year for the purpose of adulterating Kentucky bluegrass. The Canadian seed is worth about half as much as the Kentucky product. Two hundred and fifty thousand pounds of trefoil, a common and almost worthless seed, is imported every year for the purpose of adulterating alfalfa seed. A great deal of red clover is adulterated with seed of bur clover, which is obtained as a waste product in the cleaning of wool. This wool is sent in from South American countries, the bur clover is cleaned out of it, and then used for adulterating the higher grade clovers.

A special feature of the bureau of plant industry's work is a study of what is called "farm management" in different parts of the country. These studies have for their object the securing of facts bearing on the manner in which some of the best farmers are managed. When this data is once secured it is used to advise the farmer in its application to other sections of the country. Here and there throughout the country there are men who are successful in raising crops and raising animals and crops practiced with the successful, these are being studied, and records made of the cost of production and profits resulting rean chiefs who were summoned before the committee to explain their reasons for asking for deficiency appropriations when the urgent deficiency bill was under consideration in that body. The manner in which he conducted these examinations shows how well qualified a business man can be to look after the business interests of the country, even though he may never have "swallowed a law book."

Every official who found his bureau running short of funds for the current fiscal year was put through a cross-examination by the committee, as that which Col. Mann and Justice Deuel were forced to undergo when Mr. Osborne was on the rack in New York and not an item was permitted to go in the bill until it had been fully and clearly explained to Mr. Littauer and his associates.

The New York congressman had charge of the bill when it was called up in the house and by his manner of handling it he demonstrated that he might have made a reputation for himself as a pleader at the bar if he had chosen the law as a profession instead of devoting his talents to business pursuits.

As lawyers are necessary in congress, of course, but the affairs of the country might perhaps be conducted more smoothly if there were a few more seats in the house occupied by business men who, like Mr. Littauer, proceed upon the theory that this country is a great business institution in which business methods instead of legal technicalities should prevail.

DYNAMITE BOMB
Hurled Into Worcester Residence, Badly Smashing Things.

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 20.—A dynamite bomb, hurled through a second-story window of the house of Paul Moszynski, 32 Union avenue, at an early hour yesterday morning, exploded and tore away the rear part of the house, blowing out the floors and the rear wall.

Twenty-two persons were asleep in the house, but no one was injured but Miss Valerka Burakivich, aged 22, who was asleep in the room adjoining the one where the explosion took place. She was not seriously injured. A second bomb, eight inches long, and made of two and one-half inch gas pipe, was found in the yard and in the possession of the chief of police.

It is believed the bomb was thrown by some parties who formerly owned the property, but were evicted on a mortgage foreclosure.

WEAKENS THE SYSTEM AND INVITES DISEASE

Every part of the body is dependent on the blood for nourishment and strength, and when from any cause this vital stream of life becomes impoverished or run-down, it invites disease to enter. No one can be well when the blood is impure; they lack the energy that is natural with health, the complexion becomes pale and sallow, the vital energies are at a low ebb, and they suffer from a general broken-down condition of health. The system is weakened and unable to resist the diseases and disorders that are constantly assailing it. The Liver and Kidneys, failing to receive the proper stimulation and nourishment from the blood, grow inactive and dull, and the waste matters and bodily impurities that should pass off through these channels of nature are left in the system to produce Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases or some other blood disorder.

When the blood is in this weakened and diseased condition it should be treated with a remedy that is not only thorough, but gentle in its action. S. S. S., a purely vegetable remedy, made of roots, herbs and barks, is just what is needed. It not only cleanses the blood of all impurities and poisons, and enriches and strengthens it, but gently builds up the entire system by its tonic effect. S. S. S. reinvigorates every member of the body, gives tone and vigor to the blood, and as it goes to the different parts, carries robust health and strength. S. S. S. acts more promptly and gives better results than any other medicine. It cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases and all other blood disorders, and cures them permanently. Our Medical Department will be glad to give advice without charge to all suffering with blood or skin diseases. Address

RUSHING THE SEASON.

On Saturday a big shipment arrived from the factory that makes those good "Columbia $1.00 Shirts," and in view of the mild weather we've unpacked them in a hurry, put them in stock for sale, and filled the show window with them, so that you can take a look at the kind of shirts this store is going to sell regularly at $1.00. There are over six hundred shirts in this one shipment, and we think the patterns will find instant favor with the public, while we know that the quality of the goods and of the making will create as big a demand for Columbia $1 shirts as there is for Columbia $3.50 shoes, Columbia $3 hats and other all-the-year-around bargains, deemed worthy of bearing our own Columbia label.

STATES HIS POSITION

Mayor Cullum Replies to Certain Campaign Stories in Circulation. Calls Attention to Police Record on Gambling and Vice.

Campaign stories to the effect that no effort has been made by the Cullum administration to put an end to gambling and assignation houses in the city have been going the rounds, and Mayor Cullum has prepared a formal statement in reply to these charges. It is as follows:

"In answer to your inquiry about gambling and assignation, I have to say that the next time you are told that these things are going on, do not deny it. It may be true, but bring your information to me. He will not want to come, because he is not interested in these things; but this is his campaign poison. He does expect you to pass it along, but not to use. He probably comes from the position headquarters, with two shining silver dollars in his pocket, as his daily wage, and this is his harvest time. His family may support him the rest of the year, or he may have the promise of a job, but his labor will be light; but if he has facts and if I will give him courteous treatment and speedy action, and proclaim him a public benefactor. But the chances are that he will not come, but continue to peddle his poison from door to door.

"The public is gambling mad, as it were, from the old king down to the present time who lift each other up to drop their enemies in the slot machine. The public complains to the proper official of almost any other evil, but seems determined to protect the tin horn, and will not touch unless they are pitched. For that reason we can not control or prevent poker being played under lock and key, in some cases. The parolman walks his beat to protect the public and respond to any call. Poker is not played on the streets. There is one detective on routine work, two who work together on special, and some times outside work, and officers at headquarters ready to act on information. Eighty-one arrests for gambling were made in 1905, as against eighteen in the year 1904, and 125 level women were arrested during the past two years, as against thirty-two the preceding years.

"If you do not think that we will act on proper information, come and prove it."

ABBOTT BLUNT PASSES AWAY
Editorial Writer of the News Tribune Dies at Minneapolis.

A Minneapolis special to The Herald states that Abbott Blunt, editorial writer of the Duluth News Tribune, died this morning at St. Mary's hospital in that city after a lingering illness from diabetes. The news will be received with deep regret by the many friends made by Mr. Blunt during his residence in Duluth and by a host of friends throughout the West.

Mr. Blunt was about 50 years old and was a native of Indiana. He had been engaged in the newspaper business for over thirty years and was an excellent editorial writer. About twenty years ago he came to Minneapolis from Kansas with the famous "cow boy staff," as it was called, when Allen J. Blunt, editorial writer of the Minneapolis Tribune, died. Mr. Blunt was one of Mr. Blunt's ablest assistants and no feature of the Tribune was more widely read than the daily column of editorial paragraphs written by Mr. Blunt. He was generally recognized as one of the best paragraphers in the country. He remained with the Tribune until Mr. Blunt's death, and was then connected with the Minneapolis Times as editorial writer, and upon the demise of that paper came to Duluth as an editorial writer. His health had been impaired and several times he was obliged to take a vacation from his duties. Mr. Blunt's wife died in Minneapolis several years ago.

ALL RECORDS BROKEN IN CITY'S REGISTRATION

Largest Number of Voters Ever Registered for Municipal Election.

Public Interest in Political Campaign Shows General Awakening.

With the largest registration ever secured for a municipal election, it is evident that the citizens have become aroused over the approaching election, and are determined to exercise their right to choose who shall represent them in the municipal legislative and executive offices.

On top of Tuesday's big registration came a total of 2,288 names added to the lists on Saturday and the grand total for the three days is 8,641.

The Second and Seventh wards lead the list. They are normally the largest wards in the city and they held their place at the top with 1,285 and 1,279 respectively. This was in spite of the fact that the Aldermanic fight in the Second has not fairly warmed up yet, and that Alderman Haven has no opposition whatsoever in the Seventh.

Mayor Cullum's home ward, the First, turned out in a manner that showed the interest taken in that part of the city. The total is 1,154 and it probably represents a larger percentage of the eligible voters than the registration of any other ward.

The Fourth ward has also been thoroughly canvassed. The four candidates for alderman have given over to it with a fine tooth comb and Trevellick's friends have also turned out in force. The total is larger than it was for the presidential election.

The Fifth ward is another that has been thoroughly worked. It stands about on a par with the First and Second wards, and is a most creditable showing. The Eighth ward is a very good showing, but it has a smaller number of voters than most of the wards. The total of 1,052 is therefore a very good showing.

The Sixth ward was the only one in which the registration was rather low. It is probably the smallest ward in the city, but 770 voters is scarcely a fair percentage based on the standard set by the others.

The following table shows the registration by precincts on Saturday, and the totals for the three days:

deny the report that the company will be forced to sell its own solid freight trains to the Head of the Lakes this year. At present all Milwaukee freight trains going this way are hauled by the Northern Pacific, on a tonnage basis. The road has an agreement whereby it can run either freight or passenger trains from the Twin Cities to Duluth over the Northern Pacific. It is thought very probable that the report regarding the operation of freight trains is not without foundation.

THE TICKET SCALPERS.
Railroads Are Winning Victories Over Them in Court Cases.

It is said the ticket scalpers in the Twin Cities will be forced out of business before the beginning of the summer excursion season as a result of a supreme court decision. The decision has it that the scalpers are conducting an illegal business because they have no license. Scalpers and ticket brokers are among the states which have already abolished ticket scalping, and low Chicago railroads have also won a successful victory over the ticket brokers. Master in Chancery James S. Hopkins filed a report Saturday with Judge Keneshaw that the scalpers had petitioned for an injunction prohibiting the brokers from doing business in the Windy City. The suit in which the master rendered his report was begun by the Pennsylvania railroad.

REDUCTION OF RATES.
Santa Fe and Armour Lines Lower Those for Fruit Refrigeration.

San Francisco, Jan. 28.—As the result of a three days' conference between J. S. Leeds, representing the refrigerating car service of the Santa Fe road, and Edward Graham, a Pacific coast representative of the Armour refrigerating service, a reduction of rates on deciduous fruits from California to the Eastern markets has been agreed upon. The action will take effect at the beginning of the coming season of deciduous fruits shipping.

From San Francisco and Antioche to Chicago a reduction of $10 per car is made; from the same California point to New York a cut of $12.50 is demanded. From San Joaquin valley points such as Stockton, Fresno, Hanford and Bakersfield, the rate to Chicago is reduced to $70 and to New York from the same points to $82.50, thus practically effecting an equalization of rates from points in the Sacramento and the San Joaquin valley to Eastern points.

One of the most important features of this new compact is a clause providing that no rebates or other special concessions shall be granted to any fruit shippers in California and that the reduced rates shall be strictly maintained.

Railroad Notes.
James J. Hill, in Chicago Saturday, said that neither he nor his railroads had bought the property of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad company, nor had he bought the "Katy" road. He said he was not seeking an outlet to the Gulf.

The Lake Shore and New York Central roads have been compelled to put into service a new fast mail train in order to prevent the Pennsylvania from securing a portion of their mails, and to Century Century Limited.

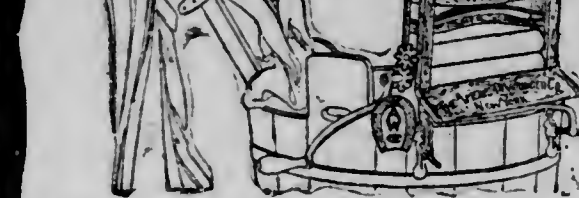

When the latter was placed in service the government insisted that a mail car be put on, and the railroads said if they had to do this they would have to take off the train. The new train is the result, and, barring the Century, it is the fastest train on the road.

REAL COW IN THE BIG BUILDING

One is Quartered in Pittsburgh Steamship Company's Offices.

It is not very often that a cow is quartered in the Wolvin building, but one belonging to Capt. F. A. Bailey of the steamer W. E. Corey has been sojourning in an office on the seventh floor of that handsome structure ever since the holidays.

Of course it is not a really truly cow, but it is a mighty good imitation, in miniature. The animal stands about two feet high, and is built in proportion. Its hide is the genuine article, and, if you twist its head, it gives vent to the most natural and realistic moo you ever heard.

Ever since the arrival of the bovine beauty, denizens of the Wolvin building have sought out its temporary abiding place in the Pittsburgh Steamship company's offices, whenever the day was dull and they longed for a breath of the pastures green.

Some of the wags on the seventh floor have suggested charging a small admission fee to those who would examine the cow, and if the demand to look her over continues at the rate which has been manifest for some time, this may be done.

The cow was sent to Capt. Bailey by a prominent Cleveland man. It is a remarkable toy, and contains a pure stomach, into which drinking water or any other liquid may be put.

Of course there is some joke about the cow, but the captain refuses to tell what the wheeze is, but is willing to share his pet with others.

PROBLEM OF RATE MAKING

Discussed in Detail by Representative Townsend of Michigan. Thinks Hepburn Bill Best Solution of Difficult Matter.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Opening what promises to be a week's discussion on the railroad rate bill, Mr. Townsend of Michigan addressed the house for more than an hour today, touching on and elucidating practically every phase of the rate-making problem, and describing in detail the terms of the Hepburn bill.

Resuming the question, as one of the most important in the country, Mr. Townsend said he called attention to the fact that the bill as it exists is not a remedy for the evils which exist and threaten that notwithstanding the objections of the roads, greater publicity would come to them under the Hepburn bill than otherwise. To substantiate this, he called attention to the tremendous strike of a year in the transportation business and this in the face of legislation which the last congress had enacted and which the present congress is taking up in somewhat less strenuous form.

Like the bill of last year, which bore Mr. Townsend's name, he said the present bill was the very best the people could expect, yet the present bill contains some provisions and extends over every facility of transportation. However, the present bill, he believed was not only fully within the constitutional powers of congress, but was simply an expression of the plain duty of congress in the American republic.

In brief statements, he said, to place under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission, every form of

BANKS TO PAY MORE INTEREST

Important Financial Measure by Russian Government Announced.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 30.—An important financial measure dictated by the demand on the savings banks, in consequence of the revolutionary agitation and the impossibility of competing with the rates of private banks is announced. It increases, by imperial order, the rate of interest of the government savings banks from 2.5 to 4 per cent. The government hopes it will have a favorable effect on the re-depositing, which has already commenced. According to the official statement, the increased deposits in the savings banks for the first half of the Russian January were $2,500,000, ten times the increase during the similar period of 1905. At Moscow, the rate of the savings banks, the depositors of gold are demanding receipts, stating explicitly that their deposits are refundable in the same metal. The banks refuse to do so. The rate of interest was decreased from 1 per cent to 3.5 per cent in 1905, on account of the unfavorable position of the government and the low rate of money at that time. An order has also been signed by the emperor raising the rate paid on deposits in perpetuity in the imperial bank, from 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 per cent.

LAKE CARRIERS WILL NOT RECEDE

President Livingstone Reiterates Declination to Hire Union Mates.

Detroit, Jan. 30.—William Livingstone of Detroit, president of the Lake carriers' association, yesterday gave out his reply to the request of the Lake Pilots' Protective association for a conference to settle a wage settlement for 1906.

President Livingstone in his reply clearly states a resolution adopted by the carriers at their annual meeting on Jan. 12. This resolution declared the purpose of the carriers not to hire any union men as mates.

President Livingstone says in his letter that this resolution covers the question at issue. "The Lake Pilots' Protective association," he says, "advised me that they were not in a position to accept their invitation to a conference."

SHOCKING MURDER OF GEN. GRIAZNOFF, CHIEF OF STAFF TO VICEROY

One of Most Audacious and Dramatic Tragedies Enacted in the Caucasus. Terrorist Bomb Strikes the General in the Neck, Blowing Off His Head.

Tiflis, Caucasus, Jan. 29, via St. Petersburg, Jan. 30.—The murder today of Gen. Griaznoff, chief of the staff of the viceroy of Caucasus, was a most dramatic and audacious tragedy. The assassin evidently had studied the habits of his victim and lay in wait behind a wall of the Alexander garden opposite the entrance of the palace, where carriage was drawn up to take the general for his daily ride. As all suspicious persons are liable to be searched in the streets by the police and military patrols, the assassin impersonated a porter, carrying the board which he committed the crime concealed in a paint can. He was thus able to pass the sentry posted at the gates of the park and reached his place of ambush without arousing suspicion. Gen. Griaznoff, clad in a common uniform and the white hands wool shawl or cap worn by the viceroy's aide-de-camp, made a shining target for the cowardly assassin when he entered from the palace. As the general stepped into the carriage the man sprang on the well, swung the can by a cord and the bomb as it thrown from a sling, with marvellous precision, sped straight to the mark and struck the general on the neck. A flash of fire and a terrible explosion followed and Griaznoff was literally blown out of the carriage, and with his head, neck and shoulders killed. A body who was passing at the time of the explosion was mortally wounded.

When the correspondent of the Associated Press reached the scene of the crime immediately after the tragedy the ghostly figure of the general's body, surrounded

FIREMAN ANDY WHITE, Hamlet, N. C.
Two unknown United States railway mail clerks.

An official report given out at the Seaboard offices in Portsmouth, this afternoon, says that Engineer Robertson and Fireman Douglas were injured. The wreck, according to an official statement, was caused by the men in charge of the freight train overlooking the passenger train.

OIL PRODUCERS UP AGAINST IT

Cannot Sell Oil If Missouri Shuts Out the Standard.

Kansas City, Jan. 30.—Several oil producers from Indian Territory and Kansas met today to discuss the question of the market for their product. J. C. Carl of Bartlesville, I. T., said before going into the conference: "We want a market. We are up against it to get rid of our product. Either the Standard oil will take our oil or we must provide more tanks. That will take time. We want to talk over the situation and decide some way out of the dilemma."

The conference called for the purpose of sending a delegation to Governor Folk and Attorney General Hadley to ask them to come to the fight on the Standard oil.

"I have heard nothing about such a delegation," H. L. Woods of the Oil City Derrick who is in the city said.

"I understand that as the Standard has ordered work stopped in Missouri on its Whiting pipe line and the producers see their chances of a market slipping away from them, the agitation against the Standard in Missouri is hurrying the oil business in the Indian Territory and Kansas. I think the oil producers will send a committee to Governor Folk and Attorney General Hadley to ascertain, if possible, what are the prospects of a cessation of hostilities."

LEGISLATIVE PITFALL

HOW THE UNITED STATES SENATOR LABORS FOR HIS SALARY.

IS POLITICS, SAYS BEDE

In Referring to Republican Views on Single Statehood. Are Afraid Democrats Might Control the States Later.

Cleveland, Jan. 30.—Congressman J. Adam Bede of Minnesota was the principal speaker at the annual banquet here last night of the Minneapolis club. In an interview yesterday Congressman Bede made the following comment relative to the admission of New Mexico and Arizona into the Union.

"The only thing that I can see back of the contention of the national Republican leaders that Arizona and New Mexico must be admitted into statehood together is simply politics, nothing else than politics. They appeared to think that if we Republicans did not vote to admit the two territories as one state then the Democrats might do it some time, and the result would be that the new state, which, by the way, it is proposed to call Arizona, would crowd over into the Democratic column. But I do not believe it. The West is not so strongly Democratic as it once was, in 1896 for instance."

Congressman Bede said the statehood matter was not a matter of politics at all and that in opposing this Republican measure he considered himself none the less a good Republican. He asserted that during the last six months there have been thirty-six congressmen in both these territories for the crime of polygamy and he thought that before they were admitted to the Union there should be a visitation of the "big stick" and a clearing up morally, while they are territories, thus amenable to the powers of the general government rather than until they have passed beyond the pale of the arm of Uncle Sam. Mr. Bede said he believed that if polygamy were not stamped out before they gained statehood that they would pass under the control of the Mormon hierarchy.

MOB ATTEMPTS TO ASSAULT EVANGELIST.

The local ministers first rushed Oliver out of the church and held to a secondary building, and as a result, Oliver was rescued from the mob.

To Rule in Accordance With Example Set by Father.

Copenhagen, Jan. 30.—Frederick VIII, was proclaimed king of Denmark at noon today in Amalienborg square in front of the palace. The ceremony lasted only a few minutes. The premier, M. The premier then called for cheers for King Frederick VIII. The new ruler of Denmark joined the premier on the balcony and in a short speech declared that he would rule in accordance with the example set him by his father and trusted that the same accord between the king and the nation would continue as heretofore. His majesty concluded with calling for cheers for the fatherland. King Frederick received a warmhearted greeting from the assembled crowd, whose cheers mingled enthusiastically with the national anthem.

Since 9 o'clock in the morning all the church bells have been tolling, minute guns have been booming from the forts, flags everywhere have been displayed at half mast and business practically has been at a standstill, the sorrowing inhabitants of Copenhagen gathering in the streets and discussing the virtues of their beloved King Christian and the probabilities of the future. Prior to the proclamation of his accession King Frederick held a council of state at which the ministers rendered their resignations and were requested

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—George A. Ralph and party of engineers left last evening for points in Clearwater county, where they will take up the work of the state survey of swamp lands where it was left off some time ago for lack of funds. He stated that with any kind of fair weather and good luck the survey would be completed by June. He took with him five engineers and as many helpers and stated that he would add to the force in the near future if his present plans carried out. There still remain to be surveyed parts of Clearwater, Beltrami, Roseau and St. Louis counties. The work will be started in the west end and it is expected that the work in Clearwater county will be taken up last as that is much the driest that will be worked on.

Red Lake Falls, Moorhead and Crookston were in the contest. The prize is an elegant silk banner that will be presented to the lodge on Friday evening.

THE DANGER OF "ALMOST."

Dr. Rice Preaches on Agrippa's Words to Paul.

The fourth week of the special revival services at the First Methodist Episcopal church began last evening, with an evidence of an abatement of the deep interest which has characterized these meetings. For a Monday evening meeting the attendance was the largest of the series, more conversions occurred. Dr. Rice preached powerfully from Acts xxvi, 28: "Then Agrippa said unto Paul, almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." In part his remarks were as follows: "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." That is a most dangerous condition. It is full of uncertainty, and the uncertainty of it fills it with interest. One step more and saved, but sharply standing still means lost. The condemnation of this verse, which on first mention sounds as hopeful, is that it is not safe. Almost is but to fail. The other evening we saw this same preacher, Paul, before another listener. He, too, was a convicted man, and he said, 'Well, Paul, I like your message, I believe you're right, and I hope some day to embody it in my life, but go thy way for this time.'

INTEREST AWAKENED

Good Old Fashioned Political Campaign is Now in Progress.

Chances for Mayor Cullum's Re-election Were Never Brighter.

For a campaign which promised at the outset to be so dull and uninteresting, the one now in progress has lived up wonderfully during the last week, and before next Tuesday night some of the excitement of the 'old' time political battles for which Duluth used to be famous, is likely to be seen. The gunshots of the campaign have been adopted by the candidates, and the quiet personal canvass of the voters seems to be the general method of campaigning.

The chances of Mayor Cullum's re-election never looked brighter than they do at the present time, and he is 2 to 1 on his election are freely offered, while odds of 3 to 1 have been offered in small amounts. "Trevillion stands about as much show as Parker did," said one of the mayor's warm supporters this morning, "and while the odds of 2 to 1 on Cullum having unsuspected strength in some quarters, I think you will find it will be as big a landslide proposition as it was in the presidential election. 'Doc' has given the city the best administration it ever had, and he is far stronger now than he was two years ago. I believe you will see a much larger majority than anyone expected or hoped for. There is a great deal about the mayoralty fight, but most of the voters have made up their minds which way they are going to vote, and it will be much less trying to change them."

The fourth ward fight appears to be between B. J. Cook, the Republican nominee, and George Van Buren, the Democratic, with the two independent candidates running about even for third place. The ward is being very thoroughly worked. Alderman Walker is showing some strength in the first precinct across the canal, and also in the fifth precinct, but in the other three he has not been able to make much headway. Van Buren will split up the vote on the Point and parcel in the fourth and fifth precincts, while Cook and Kinnear appear to have the second and third precincts well split up between them. Cook also showing some strength in the third and fourth.

It is a pretty fight, and one in which it is very difficult to predict the outcome. Frank Jordan, the Democratic candidate in the Third ward, is giving Alderman Vaughn a merry chase, and his supporters claim that it is now only a question of majority. His long residence in the ward, and his wide acquaintance, have given him a firm hold, which Alderman Vaughn will have difficulty in shaking off.

One hot battle was made this morning between two well known politicians, the outcome in the six wards where there are contests. One of the better known politicians, who is a Democrat, is now in the city, and he is being very thoroughly worked. The ward is being very thoroughly worked. Alderman Walker is showing some strength in the first precinct across the canal, and also in the fifth precinct, but in the other three he has not been able to make much headway. Van Buren will split up the vote on the Point and parcel in the fourth and fifth precincts, while Cook and Kinnear appear to have the second and third precincts well split up between them. Cook also showing some strength in the third and fourth.

KILLED BY WIFE'S SHOT

Albert Schramm of Albion Accidentally Shot While Hunting Rabbits.

Died at St. Mary's Hospital From the Loss of Blood.

While out shooting rabbits with his wife, near the town of Albion, William Schramm, a fireman, received a charge of shot in his right leg and died from the effects of it in St. Mary's hospital this morning.

Schramm and his wife had always been enthusiastic hunters and spent much of their spare time in the woods together. Yesterday they started out on a rabbit hunt, near Albion station. Schramm caught sight of a rabbit running through the brush, and called to his wife, who was carrying the gun, to shoot. She was wearing a pair of mittens at the time, and her fingers were slightly numb from the cold. As she fumbled with the hammer, trying to cock the weapon, her fingers slipped, and the gun exploded. Schramm had been standing about 100 yards from his wife, and he received the charge in his leg.

His wife, although badly frightened, managed to summon assistance, and Schramm was taken back to the village, later being brought to Duluth. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital, where he died from the loss of blood. Schramm was a fireman on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road.

Coroner McCuen visited the hospital before he died, and secured an account of the shooting from him, in which he completely exonerated his wife from any blame in connection with the affair, saying that it was purely accidental, and that he was himself partly responsible for it.

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Horse Thief Makes His Escape From the Jail at Lakota.

NORTH DAKOTA. Grand Jurors—J. H. Howard, who was brought back to Nelson county on a charge of stealing a team of horses from McCall Bros., Michigan City, pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary by Judge Fisk. He made his escape from an excuse of a jail at Lakota, and the matter has stirred up something of a sensation at that place. The jail is a makeshift affair, and for better protection a guard was employed to stay with the prisoner at night. This guard reported the disappearance of his prisoner and explained that just after midnight he unlocked the outside door of the calaboose to give Howard an opportunity to do some work. He did not return, and an hour later the guard gave the alarm. Howard has not been captured, and an investigation will result.

The vital statistics report for the month of December, issued by Dr. H. H. Healy, secretary of the state board of health, shows there were 471 births and 190 deaths. The report for the year shows 4,924 births and 1,747 deaths. Of the deaths, 149 were from tuberculosis, 150 from typhoid fever, 42 from diphtheria, 22 from scarlet fever, 5 from measles, 25 from smallpox, and 56 from other infectious diseases.

Malay is under arrest at East Grand Forks, charged with being a fugitive from justice. He is wanted in this country on a charge of running a blind pig establishment at Singara. He declines to come to this state, and steps will be taken to bring him over by requisition proceedings.

Fargo-Lally & Atkins' general store.

Moran Bros., the Hotel Leonard and A. J. Fredrick's meat market, were Monday destroyed by the fire at Leonard, thirty miles southwest of Fargo. The fire originated in the second story of the general store, and is thought to have been due to a defective flue. The postoffice on the east side of the fire was badly scorched, and the big brick store of John Hise checked the fire on the west side and saved that part of town. The loss of the general store and hotel is estimated at $200,000, with $25,000 insurance. The meat market is reported as $100,000, with $80,000 insurance.

SOUTH DAKOTA. Vermillion.—The report comes from Meekling that an attempt was made recently to blow Editor P. G. West of the Meekling and vicinity. A quantity of dynamite was placed near his hotel building and exploded. The report was heard for miles in the country, and a few of the farmers even went to town to learn the cause. The dynamite was placed a little too far away from the building to wreck it, and the editor escaped unhurt. He has since notified his hotel building since the attack on his life, and he has devoted all his time to running a newspaper.

Lead-Black Hills streams are becoming well stocked with trout and this season will see many thousands of fish sent from the Spearfish hatchery throughout the entire hills. Some time ago Game Warden Rice gave notice that the application for fish must be received within a few days, and only citizens are now pouring into the department at Washington and many thousands of trout will be sent out to the hatchery, Spearfish creek, Whitewood, Castle Creek, Little Rapid, and elsewhere.

The managers of the hatchery have made a careful study of the kinds of trout best adapted to this country, with the result that the rainbow trout, brook and salmon trout have been put in great numbers.

Aberdeen.—The commissioners of Brown county are considering a proposition to purchase a county poor farm. At present most of the poor of the county are cared for by the purchase of groceries and fuel or the payment of their rent, while those totally destitute are cared for at the county hospital and poorhouse. The commissioners believe better results can be obtained at less expense to the county by purchasing a farm where the paupers may help earn their living by doing as much work as their strength will permit.

The executive committee of the South Dakota Traveling Men's association met at the Commercial club for the purpose of making preliminary arrangements for the annual meeting to be held here June 1 and 2. Committees were also appointed for shows, sports, railroads and transportation. A resolution was adopted favoring the hearty cooperation of the traveling men with the retail dealers of the state to combat the mail order houses and other evils that affect alike the retailer and the traveling man.

WILL CHECK A NUISANCE

Local Authorities Take Steps to Stop Promiscuous Snowballing.

Boys Are Destroying Property and Causing Great Inconvenience.

The rights of others of the feelings and of others is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. The mild weather of the past few days has caused the snow to soften and make it easy to pack into convenient form for throwing and this has been a temptation apparently too strong to be resisted and the snowballing has reached such proportions that in some localities make it a menace to safety and a nuisance.

Many complaints have been made to the authorities that the boys, not all of them small boys, either are exceeding all bounds of good manners or respect by snowballing men, women and girls, that are passing along the street attending strictly to their own business. Gatherings of boys on street corners have fairly terrorized certain localities for pedestrians, be they male or female and the complaints on that account have been most vigorous.

The greatest damage is reported in localities where there is vacant property. One of the city officials remarked yesterday that the removal of tenants at the present time seems to be a signal for young hoodlums to break every window in a building with snowballs. This has aroused the ire of several rental agents and they threaten to prosecute the boys concerned in the act of vandalism.

Police Agent and Probation Officer Withrow has had numerous complaints made to him personally by citizens and he is taking steps to apprehend and have the boys punished if they do not cease their actions.

"There is not the least objection on the part of any citizen if the boys want to snowball each other," says Mr. Withrow, "but the line must be drawn when they begin to infringe on the personal rights of others. We shall take prompt and decisive steps to stop the boys who are going a little too far in their play, and some of these may have cause to regret it if they do not heed the warning."

Mr. Withrow has already attended to several cases of an exaggerated nature. In one of these some boys maliciously threw snowballs through the open windows into a house. He rounded up the boys participating in the act, and made them apologize to the lady residing in the house. She was very good natured about it and was willing to drop the matter.

Transfers complain bitterly of being snowballed at nearly every corner by big and little boys, after school has been dismissed for the day.

On two or three of the street rail cars in their play, and some of these may have cause to regret it if they do not heed the warning."

to regard the street car and its crew as legitimate prey, and the fusillades are so fierce at times that the conductor has had to seek refuge inside. One conductor on a West Duluth car is said to have been nearly put out of business for a little time on Buleigh street by a hard snowball which struck him in the neck. Attempts have been made to stop cars to enable the conductors to capture assailants, but the tormentors usually scatter quickly.

BOGUS MONEY CIRCULATED

Some Bad Gold and Silver Coins in This Vicinity.

Persons whose vocation causes them to handle a great deal of change are said to be exercising much caution in this vicinity at the present time, because of a considerable amount of counterfeit money said to be about. Imitation silver and gold coins, particularly the latter, are said to have been placed in circulation at the Head of the Lakes, and warnings have been issued to men handling money to look out for bad coins.

Less than two weeks ago one of the street railway conductors is said to have been given a bogus $5 gold piece by a woman passenger. The coin was of nickel, bronzed over, and was well executed in design and figures. The conductor did not notice until some time afterward that counterfeit money had been passed on him. He was able, however, to give a good description of the woman, who lived in another city and was visiting friends here. The matter was put in the hands of the local police and the woman was located. She denied positively that she had been on the car or had seen the coin, but when informed that it would be necessary for her to appear in court if she persisted in her denial, she weakened and reimbursed the conductor the full amount in good money. The bogus coin was retained by the police department.

WISCONSIN COUPLE

Make Up Their Quarrel and the Husband Leaves Jail.

Green Bay, Wis., Jan. 29.—John Shiren, a prominent farmer of Bellevue, has left the county jail after serving five weeks time for his refusal to furnish a peace bond of $500, which he could easily have done. Shiren was stubborn and declared he would not pay till his wife came to see him. On her first visit Saturday, a reconciliation was effected, Shiren paying the sheriff $12.50 for his board saying, "Our troubles are over; we have concluded that it is better to die fighting than to live apart. The jail wasn't home by a long way, but I was determined to stay till my wife came to see me."

CAPITALIST IN CHAIN GANG.

Convicted of Wife Beating, Forced to Work in Streets.

Duluth, Ala., Jan. 29.—With shackles or iron riveted on his ankles and with a pick in his hands, Robert Beachman, aged 50, a prominent local jeweler, was forced to work on the streets here as a punishment imposed upon him for wife beating by Mayor Henry A. Skogers in the police court.

Under the state and municipal law a man may be forced to work in a coal mine or on the city streets for wife beating. In the police court Beachman was fined $25 and costs and thirty days on the street for assaulting his wife. Mrs. Beachman swore out the state warrant against her husband.

Beachman tried to make an appeal this morning but failed. He and his wife had numerous quarrels and recently he threatened to kill her. The Beachmans came here about fifteen years ago from Rochester, N. Y. He owns much property here and is a jeweler and optician of high repute.

SESSION IS QUIET ONE

Little Business of Any Importance Comes Before Council.

The Annual Reports of Several City Officers Are Received.

Aside from the receiving of the annual reports of the city officers, little business of importance was transacted by the council at the meeting last evening.

The reports of the building inspector, the health commissioner, the police department, the library board, the city assessor and the city comptroller were all filed with the council last night, and referred to the proper committees for consideration.

All of these reports, with the exception of that of the city assessor, have already been made public. The city assessor's report is largely a formality, as it contains merely a statement of the assessed valuation of the real and personal property in the city, which was made public last spring when the property was assessed.

The total real property is valued at $26,948,197 and the personal property at $6,856,028. There is an increase for the year amounting to $169,000, in the real property, caused by new buildings.

The city comptroller, in making his statement of the city's finances, which has already been published, recommended greater economy in the expenditure of the city's funds, and urged the council to watch all appropriations closely. He said that this was especially needed in the fire department, library and general funds.

In accordance with a request from the council, Manager Case submitted a report of the manner in which the money received from the last bond issue of $140,000 had been expended. He said that the general construction fund contained $115,161 and that there was a cash balance remaining of $32,601. The board estimates that it has expended $25,000 of the earnings of the plant and $80,000 of the bond money, leaving $50,000 of the bond money still on hand.

Mr. Case stated that fuller information would be given in the annual report of the board, which would be ready within a few days.

Social and Amusements

An account of the first picnic of the season of 1906 has been received at this office. It was all the things that picnic always are to the enthusiastic participants, and it had occurred anywhere between April and November, would, by force of circumstances, been dismissed as a "delightful affair," but a picnic at Fond du Lac on Jan. 28 is an event that the most blasé must admit has elements of originality and uniqueness that is not encountered every day, especially so far north as Duluth. These ahead-of-the-season people left their homes Sunday morning. Did it deliberately. It wasn't a case of getting stranded, as you know, and then trying to convert the affair into a picnic. They got up with plans made, they packed luncheon baskets, they took coffee, sandwiches, bread, steaks, and other things that appealed to them, and they went to Fond du Lac. They didn't leave by the back door, or anything of that sort. They blazoned their originality and disregard for church right in the faces of the folks who were planning to attend when 10:30 approached.

RUSSIAN COMPOSERS.

Represented in Program Given at the Matinee Musicale.

The regular meeting of the Matinee Musicale was held yesterday afternoon at Steinhay hall. The program was in charge of Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker and Mrs. C. S. Sheldon, and the Russian composers were represented by Miss Grace Gilchrist, Miss Clara Stocker, and Miss Clara Stocker. The program was an interesting one, opening with a suite for two pianos, "Caucasian Sketches," by Rimsky-Korsakov, played by Miss Isabel Pearson and Miss Clara Stocker. The other piano numbers were "Scherzo," C. Sharp Minor, Op. 38, and an étude, "Dance des Elfes," by Scriabin, both played by Grace Stocker. The vocal numbers were "The Song of the Sea," by Borovskii, played by Mrs. Norma Williams, who was heard for the first time before the club, was enjoyed. Mrs. Carl Sheldon played a violin number, also, her selection being a "Fandango on Russian Airs," by Rimsky-Korsakov.

One of the most interesting numbers was the double quartet, which sang a Russian folk song and the Russian national hymn, without piano accompaniment. The singers were Miss Frances Woodbridge, Miss Mason, Mrs. Leo Bull, Mrs. Scholer, Miss Mary, Mrs. Stocker, Miss Fleming and Mrs. Currie. The vocal soloist for the afternoon was John Martin, who gave much pleasure in two Schubert numbers, "The Star" and "Folk Song." The accompanists were Miss Ethel, Mrs. Miss Ruth Rogers and Miss Turner.

CHAMBER CONCERT.

Fine Program is Presented at Steinhay Hall.

Last evening the Duluth Chamber Music club appeared in the second concert of its season at Steinhay hall, and a large and delighted audience listened to one of the most interesting programs that have been presented before a Duluth audience for some time. The members of the club, Mrs. Marie Geist, Mrs. Fred G. Bradbury, violin, piano, and Fred G. Bradbury, violin, present in their concert many of the most artistic and carefully musical efforts of local musicians. The selection played by the club last evening was in four movements. Two of the numbers presented, a violin duet, Op. 33, of Sarasate, played by Mr. Bradbury and Olga Bradbury, and the closing number, "Quintet, Op. 81," by Dvorak, have never been played before. The quartet was composed of Mrs. Geist, Mrs. Geist, and Messrs. Bradbury, Colburn, and Evans. The duet was received with especial favor, and was repeated. A string quartet, "Jesensky's," by Colburn and Evans and Mrs. Geist, played a Haydn number, "Quintet, Op. 34, No. 2."

The soloist for the evening was Miss Alice Sjöstrand, who appeared in place of Mrs. James McLaughlin, who was ill. Miss Sjöstrand sang Handel's "When You Walk," and she was enthusiastically received.

The club will appear in one more concert before the end of the season.

Browning Class.

The Evening Browning class of the Twentieth Century club met last evening at the club room of the library. The character of Browning is the heroine of two of Browning's poems was the subject of the evening's talk by Rev. J. W. Powell. These poems were chosen for study, said Mr. Powell, because in these poems the most finished and artistic work that Browning has done is found therein. Although the poems have not the limpid flow of time as has Tennyson, they have a beauty and fineness all their own. And in the character of Balaustina, one of the most types of womanhood is presented, one that gathers up all that is best in Greek thought.

The next poem studied by the class will be "Christmas Eve and Easter Day."

Jan Kubelik.

Jan Kubelik, the renowned Bohemian violinist who is to play here tomorrow evening at the Lyceum, is even more of a social lion in the East this year than he was upon his first visit to America four years ago. A short time ago, in accordance with a special invitation, he was entertained at the White House by President Roosevelt.

A few days prior he had played at an exclusive social function given by W. K. Vanderbilt at the multi-millionaire's palatial country home, Idle Hour, on Long Island. He is to entertain Mrs. Astor's annual reception in New York city next month and has been engaged as star performer by the Lyceum. Every town and city of the most famous matrons of the metropolis "400," for her New Year musicale. Because his public appearances are so numerous, Kubelik had to decline invitations to appear at several private functions of other New York society leaders, though he was offered almost fabulous sums to accept. It is said that Kubelik never plays in private for less than the amount he receives for a public performance—$2,000.

Events of Interest.

Mrs. Giles Gilbert entertained at luncheon today at her home, 1001 First street, in honor of her daughter, Miss Grace Gilbert, and their guests, Miss Knight of Chicago.

The Zenith Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star will entertain at two functions tomorrow at the Masonic Temple on Second street. In the afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, a card reception for the women friends of the members will be held, and in the evening men will also be guests of the members at a card party. The committee in charge of the affair is Mrs. J. E. Goodman, Mrs. Van Wagner and Mrs. McDougal.

There will be no rehearsal of the Altruistic club of the Congregational church tomorrow evening, because of the Kubelik concert to be given at the Lyceum.

Personal Mention.

Miss Jane Carrell is visiting friends at Winnipeg.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lemon and son, who were the guests of Mrs. R. G. Proudlock, have returned to their home at St. Paul. They were accompanied by Miss Frances Proudlock.

Mrs. J. H. Ball left last week for a few months' visit to Kansas City.

AFTER THE CARDS.

Souvenir Collectors Anxious for Wedding Announcement.

Fifteen hundred invitations will be issued to the wedding reception of Miss Alice Roosevelt and Representative Nicholas Longworth. These will be in addition to those who have already been sent out by the president and Mrs. Roosevelt to the ceremony, says a Washington dispatch.

Various reports concerning the number of wedding invitations have been circulated, but it was learned definitely today that 700 cards were sent out last Friday. There will probably be another hundred issued, making the total 800.

In issuing the additional 1,500 President and Mrs. Roosevelt are exceeding to the demand which they know exists among their friends and the community generally. These cards will be sent out within the next day or two, and will go to persons who are not intimately acquainted with the president's family, but who are, nevertheless, held in much esteem.

Mrs. Alice Hagner, secretary to Mrs. Roosevelt, directed each one of the 700 wedding invitations and she will personally supervise all others that go out. In order to insure that the cards of the president and Mrs. Roosevelt wished to go shall receive wedding cards the task of directing the envelopes was assigned to clerks in the executive office. The detail was given to Miss Hagner, thus limiting to one person the responsibility for every card.

The invitations, admission cards and envelopes were delivered to her in packages marked with the exact number of each card. When they left Miss Hagner's hands and were sent back to the offices for delivery they were again checked, although the number, so no mistake or irregularity was possible.

Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Roosevelt and Miss Hagner made up the list of wedding guests. Aside from members of the cabinet, the supreme court and diplomatic corps and a few members of Congress, the list was confined to the families of the young people.

In making out the list of guests to the wedding reception the women of the household were assigned to the president, who had many suggestions to make, and who materially increased the original list.

The White House and executive offices have been besieged by souvenir hunters in search of cards to be added to their collections. Every known device has been resorted to in order to gain possession of the coveted pastedboard, and even the stationery has been appropriated with all sorts of offers if they will obtain a card for the souvenir hunter. Promises never to tell where they got the cards have been given, but even if the attaches of the White House or offices were inclined to favor these people, it would have been impossible for them to comply with the requests, so carefully have the cards been guarded. The few who do all the engraving for the White House has been swamped with requests for a "form," but all applicants were referred to the White House and no amount of persuasion would move him.

Secretary Taft was much amused at the reports current relative to his alleged kindly gift to the two large blond pendents to Miss Roosevelt. The secretary said he really had no recollection of having bought anything so handsome as was reported, and that he would have been happy to have made so valuable a contribution to Miss Roosevelt's gift-collection. Secretary Taft gave a jolly laugh, and is reported to have said the bride would be lucky to get a stick pin from him. As a matter of fact, the general representative of the Roosevelt's donors, but not to the extent reported.

LONGWORTH ON LOVE.

Makes Happy Allusions in Speech at Philadelphia.

At Saturday night's dinner in Philadelphia, Nicholas Longworth simply, as a member of the lower house and as the sponsor of the bill to increase the salaries of our representatives in the diplomatic service. He did add, "It is suspected that he is to be congratulated in more ways than one."

Everybody laughed at that, they applauded. Miss Roosevelt joined in both the laugh and the applause, and she rose to get a better view of the "lucky man." While the other speeches were being made she had remained seated and frequently joined in the conversation with her order member of her party, but she never took her eyes from Longworth nor spoke a word while he was speaking.

"As his excellency, the ambassador from Brazil, said," began Congressman Longworth, "I am a lucky man and I know it."

A general laugh and more applause greeted this remark, and Miss Roosevelt blushed.

"And in fact, I realize," continued the congressman, "that this kind of applause with which you have greeted me is not because I deserve it, but because I stand here shining in reflected glory. I might not like it much if the rays came from the Japanese lanterns or the electric lights which I see here, but when the rays come from the sun then I am indeed glad."

Another burst of applause and another blush from Miss Roosevelt. It is not often a girl has the opportunity of hearing her fiancé talk such glowing love language as this.

"And though late," went on Mr. Longworth, "I think I see the sun shining beyond the palm trees in the other room."

Wild applause and many blushes. He then proceeded to speak on his bill to provide residences for our ministers abroad.

WHAT RETAIL MARKETS OFFER.

Best Minnesota macaroni, 19 cents a lb.

Italian macaroni, 15 cents a lb.

Cheese, 17 to 22 cents a lb.

Fresh eggs, 22 cents a dozen.

Veal steak, 20 and 25 cents a lb.

So many housewives regard macaroni as a typically Italian dish, imagine that the best product comes from Italy, and consequently pay 3 more cents a pound for the imported stuff than the native product.

The imported stuff is not so fine nor so good as that made from the best wheat in the world, grown really just in this neighborhood.

Macaroni with cheese is a typical food, and according to the folks that know, is not eaten half enough by the people of America.

The Italian laborer almost exists upon it, and in addition to being wholesome, which is enough to condemn it for lots of people, it is very palatable. The small boys, who just date on macaroni and cheese, will agree that it doesn't appear at the table half often enough.

Fresh eggs, which, it only 22 cents a dozen. Did you ever hear of such a thing in January in Duluth. Now is the time for the person who has a few chickens and an unlimited amount of theories concerning their culture, productivity and profits, to look a bit blue and wonder if he has made a mistake. When he got the chickens last spring, he counted the profits from the first of last month, when eggs should, by all that thrifty, be 40 cents a dozen. But, however the chicken owner feels, now is the time when the household enjoys for breakfast a dish of deliciously palatable eggs, mixed with a bit of cream, made possible because the eggs are cheap, served on a platter with a border of delicately fried ham, and for luncheon more eggs. If they are wanted—oh, nothing tastes quite so good as fresh eggs in January that cost only 22 cents a dozen.

THE PATRIOTISM OF THE JONESES

By H. C. Pearson.

(Copyright, 1906, by Daily Star Pub. Co.)

When Henry Jones and his brother, Luther, were elected to the state house at the recent election, the occurrence was not deemed remarkable in any way.

Arriving at the state capital the night before the party caucus, Henry and Luther, who were in the room with them, would occupy together in a quiet board room on a side street, where they themselves do not consider the fit place.

"Late," said Henry, the elder brother, to his junior, "I've been thinking over this legislative business considerable since I got stuck and the more I think the more I am convinced that I'll make a damned fool of myself here this session. I don't think I can do it."

"I've assented Luther with brevity, and waited for his brother to continue. "Maybe you and I don't know so much as some of the fellows in the house, but that we do know that there's two sides to every question, a right side and a wrong side. Now, my brother, let me tell you where it comes to a vote on anything. I'll go one way or the other, and if it doesn't give us a majority, I'll go the other way."

Henry and Luther were satisfied in their belief that what they were doing was for the best of the state. They knew that the legislature would have ended without a majority for the Anti-Merger bill.

It is not necessary for the purposes of this narrative to discuss the merits of the bill in detail or to discuss its merits. Suffice it to say that one corporate interest, very powerful in the state, earnestly desired the passage of the bill; while another great corporation was just as earnestly opposed.

The lobbyists swarmed upon the scene, drawn to the state capital like flies to a pile of manure. There was open corruption and secret intrigue. Plots were laid and counterplots. Every spring was pulled, every weakness played upon, every dark place threatened, in order to secure votes upon one side or the other.

And when at last it came to a vote Henry Jones voted no and Luther Jones voted yes, and there was a tie.

The speaker could not vote, being a director in the Black Mountain Railroad, and the result was a deadlock.

But the fight was not over. How the Mergers took a man by giving him a $100 a year office. But the Anti-Mergerists retaliated at once by pointing out to a "yes" member that his son who ought to have had the place. The Mergers kidnaped an Anti and sent him to sea in a cable boat. The Anti arranged with a physician of a "yes" member to declare that he was insane and to pack him off to Florida.

None of these attacks was directed against Henry and Luther. The leaders of the respective lobbies charged the Joneses as too honest to be bought, and stubborn to be argued with and too independent to be lured by the lustre of the session salary. Six times had the question come up in one form or another, and six times the vote had been a tie.

At last, the end of his rope in sight, Jack Graham, head of the Mergers, sallied forth to seek Henry Jones. The interview was private and protracted, and six times the vote had been a tie.

POLICY IS JUSTIFIED

Russian Government's
Acts Against Revolutionists
Not Severe.

Constant Discoveries of
to the Officials.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 31.—The government is finding ample justification for its severe policy against the revolutionists in the constant discovery of bombs, bomb factories and depots of arms and munitions in all parts of the empire which are now so commonplace that such matters scarcely obtain individual mention in the papers. The Novoe Vremya today, however, prints half a column of statistics of last week's captures, showing the seizure of bombs in a score of cities and the discovery of regular bomb laboratories, explosives and filled and unfilled bombs at Ekaterinburg, Samara, Tiflis, Vitebsk, and Ekaterinburg. Terrorists having in their possession two to twenty bombs have been arrested at Warsaw, Minsk, Vitebsk, Lodz, Odessa, Gomel and Tiflis. There have been attempts to kill police, military or civil officials at Warsaw, Minsk, Tiflis, Gomel, Tiflis, Minsk and other cities. Though not included in the Novoe Vremya's list bomb factories have also been discovered here and at Moscow. Searches of the Prokhorov and other factories at Moscow last result in finding explosives and weapons.

To curb the revolutionary outbreaks and enable estate owners to defend their property against return peasant uprisings the government is distributing the arms captured on the British steamer John M. Grafton sunk in the Gulf of Bothnia. Found in Scotland, last and rifles and revolvers captured elsewhere to responsible applicants and is also distributing the arms of the armed estate guards, which are often composed of veterans and commanded by former non-commissioned officers of the regular army.

ZION IS TO ABANDON
DOWIE'S BIG SCHEME.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—John Alexander Dowie's Zionite plan for a new scheme, which has cost him so much time, promises to be practically abandoned under the plan of the Zionite now ruling the fiscal affairs of Zion.

It was declared yesterday by a member of the Zionite that no outside ventures will receive development at present and that all efforts will be concentrated into bringing order into affairs at Zion City itself. The same man said the land acquired by Dowie in Alaska had turned out to be largely of poor quality and the irrigation necessary to use it will probably occupy a number of years.

For these reasons the Zionite will check the operations in Mexico, although a few hundred acres will be held in order to furnish a nucleus for taking up the project again, if it ever becomes possible to do so.

TO ORGANIZE A
TRI-STATE LEAGUE.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 31.—Baseball magnates from three states gathered in Grand Rapids today to organize a new tri-state league. The promoters are here from Saginaw, Flint, Jackson and Kalamazoo, Mich., and it is also possible that Muskegon may bid for a franchise. Indiana is represented by magnates from Fort Wayne, Marion and Anderson. Application has also been made by Lima and Ellettsburg, Ohio.

The league is being organized by E. W. Dickerson of Grand Rapids, who will probably be made president.

BRITISH CABINET MEETS.

London, Jan. 31.—The cabinet today held in the foreign office its first meeting since the general elections. The premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, presided. The draft of the king's speech at the opening of parliament and the legislative program for the session were discussed.

WIDOW OF CHARLES T.
YERKES SAID TO HAVE
MARRIED 'FRISCO MAN

While Confirmation is Not Obtainable,
No Denial is Made by Parties.

Man of California, Aged 29 Years.

New York, Jan. 31.—Several New York newspapers announce today the marriage of Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes, widow of the traction capitalist, to Wilson Mizner of San Francisco. No confirmation of the marriage, however, was obtainable from Mrs. Yerkes or Mr. Mizner, but when Mr. Mizner was asked if he would deny that the marriage had taken place, he replied that he would not. He added that he had no statement to make on the subject. The witnesses to the ceremony are reported to have been J. L. Eastland and Emil Brugere of San Francisco.

Efforts to confirm the marriage report were unsuccessful up to 11:40 p. m. At that time communication with Mrs. Yerkes' home by telephone had been cut off and Mr. Mizner could not be located. No denial, however, had been made by any of those interested or supposed to be in possession of the facts.

San Francisco, Jan. 31.—A special dispatch which was received in this city says that Wilson Mizner this morning positively confirmed the report of his marriage to Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes.

Wilson Mizner is the son of the late Lansing B. Mizner, former minister to Mexico and Guatemala, who resided at Benicia, Cal., for many years.

and was one of the prominent lawyers of California. He is 29 years old, a native of Benicia, and has been extensively engaged in mining in California. For some time he was in Alaska, engaged in mining ventures. More recently, he has resided in New York. He has four brothers in this city—Dr. William G. Mizner, Edgar, Lansing and Addison Mizner, all of whom were surprised at the news of the marriage in New York.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Louis S. Owsley of this city, who is financial agent for Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes, said today, regarding the reported marriage of Mrs. Yerkes to Wilson Mizner in New York:

"I know nothing about the matter beyond what I have seen in the papers. I do not believe the story, however, and cannot understand how it could get abroad."

Clarence Knight, attorney for the Yerkes estate, said:

"I received my first information regarding the matter from the papers. I know nothing about the private affairs of Mrs. Yerkes, and am familiar with the legal matters only. I do not believe the story, however."

Charles B. Yerkes, son of Charles T. Yerkes, declared that the story was without foundation. "I do not care to discuss it," he said, "but I know that it is absolutely untrue. If such a thing had happened I would have been one of the first to hear about it."

OIL MAGNATE WHO

HENRY H. ROGERS.

ROGERS NEED NOT TESTIFY

Is the Decision Handed Down by New York

Judge Holds That Missouri
Court Should Determine Question.

New York, Jan. 31.—A decision that Henry H. Rogers, vice president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, shall not be compelled to answer the questions which he recently refused to answer in the taking of testimony here in the case of the state of Missouri against the Standard Oil company of Indiana, was handed down today by Justice Glidersleeve in the supreme court. The application to compel Mr. Rogers to answer the questions was made by Attorney General Hadley of Missouri. The companies affected in this case are the Standard Oil company of Indiana, the Waters-Pierce Oil company and the Republic Oil company. The state of Missouri seeks to oust them from doing business in Missouri.

The application was denied for the reason that in Justice Glidersleeve's opinion the court of original jurisdiction in Missouri should determine the question raised by Mr. Hadley. Leave to renew this application was granted Mr. Hadley.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS SUSPENDED.
Le Sueur, Minn., Jan. 31.—Thirteen boys, pupils of the high school here, were turned out of school by Prof. Hamlin for having played "hooky" from their classrooms last Friday. Their number, thirteen, is an unlucky one for the boys.

AN INCREASE OF WAGES
OR NO AGREEMENT IS THE
ULTIMATUM OF MINERS

An Increase Equal to Amount of Last
Decrease Will be Accepted by Men.

President Mitchell Says Miners Should
Enjoy a Share of Prosperity.

Indianapolis, Jan. 31.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, addressing the joint scale committee of the central competitive district today, said: "There must be an increase in wages or there will be no agreement."

In his ultimatum today to the operators, President Mitchell did not mention any percentage of increase. It is generally recognized that his statement is backed by the almost unanimous sentiment of the miners' delegates, and that the minimum increase that would be accepted without a struggle will be 5.5 per cent, which was the amount of the decrease in wages two years ago.

Following the declaration of President Mitchell, the joint scale committee adjourned until 4 o'clock this afternoon, in order to allow the operators of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania to hold an executive session.

President Mitchell also made a declaration to the joint scale committee from the southwestern district. It was in reply to J. C. Tarsney, an operator, who had said that on account of the existing wage scale he had been compelled to stop operations entirely on one of his properties, and if there was an increase in wages the miners might as well wipe his property off the earth, as he could not afford to operate it.

Mr. Mitchell declared that so far as his connection extended with the miners' union, and as long as he could prevent it, the standard of conditions enjoyed by the miners at present would never be lowered.

He called attention to the general prosperity of the country.

"Why should not the miners enjoy their share of this prosperity? Must the miners stop now? Is this their duty? Have they no future?" These were questions he asked of the operators in a deliberate manner. In concluding his remarks, he said: "I'm making this statement so that you gentlemen will know where I stand when it comes to a point in this conference whether to agree or not to agree."

MOTOR BOAT IS DISQUALIFIED

Course on Lake Worth is Also Found to be Short.

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 31.—The disqualifications today of one motor boat which raced yesterday and the discovery that in another race the course was shorter than the supposed distance, were the features of the opening of the sec. B. regatta of the annual motor boat regatta which is in progress on Lake Worth. The regatta committee decided that Simplex III, winner of yesterday's second event was disqualified and should yield the trophy to Topsy, the boat which finished second. The disqualification was made because Simplex III left the stake at the knot mark on the port side. Yesterday's nine knot race was declared no event and ordered to be run over again next Friday because the course was shorter than this distance and the boats were for this reason improperly handicapped.

Today, the weather was fair and the water fairly smooth, with prospects for excellent racing. There were three events on the card, the distance being fifteen miles, ten miles and one mile respectively.

ASKS CLEMENCY
FOR MIDSHIPMAN

Counsel Says Convictions in 1891 Only Received Small Punishment.

Annapolis, Jan. 31.—At the opening of the court-martial today the judge advocate read a letter from Supt. Sands, in which Capt. C. P. Rees, president of the court, was excused from duty. The court was then called to order by the judge advocate. The case of Midshipman George H. Melvin, who was convicted of hazing, under the act of 1874, and had been sentenced to receive definite confinement and other penalties, less than dismissal, was the subject of the court-martial. The proceedings of yesterday, in the case of Midshipman George H. Melvin, were approved.

Lieut. C. S. Bookwalter, U. S. N., addressed the court in behalf of Midshipman Richard L. Desaussure. In opening, he called attention to the fact that in 1891 seven midshipmen had been convicted of hazing, under the act of 1874, and had been sentenced to receive definite confinement and other penalties, less than dismissal. Lieut. Bookwalter called attention to the exceedingly moderate nature of the hazing proved to have been committed by Desaussure, and asked that if the accused should be found guilty that there should be a recommendation of clemency to the reviewing authority.

The court then closed for the consideration of a verdict.

CHINESE VISIT THE LIBRARY AND CAPITOL.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The members of the imperial Chinese commission spent their last day here in visiting the congressional library and the capitol. During the morning hours they inspected the library. Lunch was served in the library and after that the members went across to the capitol, where they first attended a meeting of the senate and then paid a short visit to the house of representatives. The two chief commissioners and their suites are expected to leave for New York tonight.

PRESIDENT'S RATE POLICY ENDORSED.

Cincinnati, Jan. 31.—The Receivers and Shippers' association today sent this message to the president:

"Theodore Roosevelt, President, Washington, D. C.:
"Last night, at the annual meeting and dinner of the Receivers and Shippers' association, at which was represented the largest and most important commercial interests of Cincinnati, the following resolution was adopted by a rising vote:
"Resolved, that the Receivers and Shippers' association of Cincinnati, at its annual meeting and dinner, sends greeting to President Theodore Roosevelt, and pledges our tireless support to him on his determination that the people shall be protected by amendments to the interstate commerce law which will empower the interstate commerce commission to substitute a reasonable rate for one found, after investigating, to be unreasonable."

Pittsburg, Jan. 31.—Declaring it his declaration to get possession of $380,000, half of the present fortune of the Astors, a man introducing himself as Abner Emery of Lewistown, Okla., is in Pittsburg, trying to find the heirs of John Emery. It is asserted that John Emery left a son, leaving his share of the business to his heirs, but that the will was not discovered for seventy-five years. Abner Emery says that this son, who he says was named John Emery, died since then he has been hunting the other heirs. He says that he has found 400 heirs.

BEAT THEIR WAY OUT.

Desperate Escape of Mexican Bandits
From a Colorado Jail.

Las Animas, Colo., Jan. 31.—Two Mexicans held prisoners in the county jail, one of them Garcia Gonzales, charged with stealing a sum of money from a package torn open in a wreck in New Mexico recently, fought their way out of jail and are being pursued by a posse.

Gonzales, who is of powerful physique, struck down Sheriff John D. Brown as he and his daughter, a girl 18 years of age, were serving supper to the prisoners. Sheriff Brown fought off the prisoner, but could not overpower him. While this was going on, the girl was struggling with another Mexican, striking him several times with a dish tray. She was compelled to give up, when both prisoners dashed out into the jail yard and disappeared in the darkness.

BROKERS SUE PASTOR.

Firm Charges Minister With Refusing Shares He Ordered.

Green Bay, Wis., Jan. 31.—Rev. Alex Dewarzewski, pastor of the Spiritualist church, is defendant in a suit brought by the Wallace H. Hopkins company, brokers of this city. Some days ago the pastor bought of the firm his share of mining stock, which, with the brokers' commission, cost him $2,712. He bought the stock outright, not on a margin, consequently he had to wait several days before it could be secured. In the meantime the market went down two points. It is said that the pastor was sent Dewarzewski several times to come and close the deal and that he paid no attention, also that when the stock was tendered him he refused to accept it. Now the company has brought suit to recover damages.

Russian Government's Acts Against Revolutionists Not Severe.

Constant Discoveries of
to the Officials.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 31.—The government is finding ample justification for its severe policy against the revolutionists in the constant discoveries of bombs, bomb factories and depots of arms and munitions in all parts of the empire which are now so commonplace that such matters scarcely obtain individual mention in the papers. The Novoe Vremya today, however, prints half a column of statistics of last week's captures, showing the seizure of bombs in a score of cities and the discoveries of regular bomb laboratories, explosives and filled and unfilled bombs at Ekaterinburg, Samara, Riga, Vilnius, and Ekaterinoslav. Terrorists having in their possession two to twenty bombs have been arrested at Warsaw, Minsk, Vilnius, Lodz, Odessa, Gomel and Tiflis. There have been attempts to kill police, military or civil officers at Warsaw, Minsk, Riga, Gomel, Tiflis, Minsk and other cities. Though not included in the Novoe Vremya's list bomb factories have also been discovered here and at Moscow. Searches of the Prokoff and other factories at Moscow still result in finding explosives and weapons.

To curb the revolutionary outbreaks and enable estate owners to defend their property against further peasant uprisings the government is distributing the arms captured on the British steamer John M. Grafton sunk in the Gulf of Bothnia, Finland, in September last and filled with revolvers, cartridges, powder, to responsible applicants and is also permitting the organization of armed estate guards, which are often composed of veterans and commanded by former non-commissioned officers of the regular army.

ZION IS TO ABANDON
DOWIE'S BIG SCHEME.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—John Alexander Dowie, the great Mexican planter scheme, which has cost so much toll, promises to be practically abandoned under the plan of the triumvirate now ruling the financial affairs of Zion City.

TO ORGANIZE A
TRI-STATE LEAGUE.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 31.—Baseball managers from the states gathered in Grand Rapids today to organize a new tri-state league. Promoters came from Saginaw, Flint, Jackson and Kalamazoo, Mich., and it is also possible that Muskegon may bid for a franchise. The draft of the league's constitution was made by E. W. Dickerson of Grand Rapids, who will probably be made president.

BRITISH CABINET MEETS.

WIDOW OF CHARLES T.
YERKES SAID TO HAVE
MARRIED 'FRISCO MAN

While Confirmation is Not Obtainable,
No Denial is Made by Parties.

Man of California, Aged 29 Years.

New York, Jan. 31.—Several New York newspapers announce today the marriage of Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes, widow of the traction capitalist, to Wilson Mizner of San Francisco. No confirmation of the marriage announcement was obtainable from Mrs. Yerkes or Mr. Mizner, but when Mr. Mizner was asked if he would deny that the marriage had taken place, he replied that he would not. He added that he had no statement to make on the subject. The witnesses to the ceremony are reported to have been J. L. Eastland and Emil Brugere of San Francisco.

Efforts to confirm the marriage report were unsuccessful up to 11:40 a. m. At that time communication with Mrs. Yerkes' home by telephone had been cut off and Mr. Mizner could not be located. No denial, however, had been made by any of those interested or supposed to be in possession of the facts.

San Francisco, Jan. 31.—A special dispatch which was received in this city today that Wilson Mizner, this morning positively confirmed the report of his marriage to Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes.

Wilson Mizner is the son of the late Lansing B. Mizner, former minister to Mexico and Guatemala, who resided at Benicia, Cal., for many years.

ARE AROUSED

The Assassination of
content to a Head.

Tiflis, Jan. 31.—The assassination of Gen. Griaznoff, who was killed by the explosion of a bomb thrown at him, Jan. 29, by a man disguised as a painter, has brought to a head the discontent among the faction of the military which regards with disfavor the policy of the viceroy of the Caucasus, Count Von Verotzoff-Dashkoff, in the war between the Russians and Armenians. The two races, it is said, will appeal directly to St. Petersburg for the removal of the viceroy and they are secretly supported by high officials of the viceroyalty.

It is established that the murder of Gen. Griaznoff, who has not recovered consciousness from the terrible beating he received from the soldiers who arrested him, is a student of inertia (Government of Kutais) named Lyostavili, a member of the fighting organization of the Social Revolutionists. He was selected to carry out the sentence of death imposed on Griaznoff in retaliation for the latter's ruthless repression of the revolutionists of Kutais and the province. Lyostavili, who was spared neither life nor property in the war he is waging against the revolutionists. He has remained the railroad to the Black Sea, which had long been in the hands of the revolutionists and for the first time for months the entire Trans-Caucasian line is open to operation.

The whole revolutionary movement in the Caucasus was an echo of the movement in Russia proper. It was conducted by workmen of various nationalities, under the leadership of Russian social democratic agitators, and is being gradually stamped out in Kutais, Mtskheta and the Black sea littoral. The Armenians, with their powerful revolutionary committees, who formerly secretly supported the movement, have now withdrawn. The restoration of their church property and the reopening of their schools, closed since 1880, have been great victories for the Armenians and their leaders profess themselves satisfied, disclaiming any nationalistic or separatist aspirations.

The fears of a renewal of the Armenian-Tatar butchery, following the assassination of Gen. Griaznoff, did not materialize. Both sides were ready, but the troops were everywhere in force, and no collision occurred. Two Armenians, however, were shot during the capture by the police of one of their strongholds, where arms and ammunition were concealed.

On account of the disturbed conditions in the viceroyalty, the extension of the zemstvo system to the Caucasus, in conformity with other parts of the empire, has been postponed. In Kutais, the captured revolutionists are being tried by field court-martials, on the pattern of those adopted in the trials of revolutionists in the Baltic provinces.

Court.

Judge Holds That Mis-

New York, Jan. 31.—A decision that Henry H. Rogers, vice president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, shall not be compelled to answer the questions which he recently refused to answer in the taking of testimony here in the case of the state of Missouri against the Standard Oil company of Indiana, was handed down today by Justice Gildersleeve in the supreme court. The application to compel Mr. Rogers to answer the questions was made by Attorney General Hadley of Missouri. The companies affected in this case are the Standard Oil company of Indiana, the Waters-Pierce Oil company and the Republic Oil company. The state of Missouri seeks to oust them from doing business in Missouri.

The application was denied for the reason that in Justice Gildersleeve's opinion the court of original jurisdiction in Missouri should determine the question raised by Mr. Hadley. Leave to renew this application was granted Mr. Hadley.

AN INCREASE OF WAGES
OR NO AGREEMENT IS THE
ULTIMATUM OF MINERS

An Increase Equal to Amount of Last
Decrease Will be Accepted by Men.

Enjoy a Share of Prosperity.

Indianapolis, Jan. 31.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, addressing the joint scale committee of the central competitive district today, said: "There must be an increase in wages or there will be no agreement."

In his ultimatum today to the operators, President Mitchell did not mention any percentage of increase. It is generally recognized that his statement is backed by the almost unanimous sentiment of the miners' delegates, and that the minimum increase that would be accepted without a struggle will be 5.55 per cent, which was the amount of the decrease in wages two years ago.

Following the declaration of President Mitchell, the joint scale committee adjourned until 4 o'clock this afternoon, in order to allow the operators of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania to hold an executive session.

President Mitchell also made a declaration to the joint scale committee from the southwestern district. It was in reply to J. C. Tarsney, an operator, who had said that on account of the existing wage scale he had been compelled to stop operations entirely on Cay. Tarsney declared that so far as an increase in wages the miners might as well wipe his property off the earth, as he could not afford to operate it.

Mr. Mitchell declared that so far as his connection extended with the miners' union, and as long as he could prevent it, the standard of the operators in a deliberate manner, in concluding his remarks, he said: "I'm making this statement so that you gentlemen will know where I stand when it comes to a point in this conference whether to agree or not to agree."

Why should not the miners enjoy their share of this prosperity? Must the miners stop now? Is this their end? Have they no future? These were questions asked of the operators in a deliberate manner, in concluding his remarks, he said: "I'm making this statement so that you gentlemen will know where I stand when it comes to a point in this conference whether to agree or not to agree."

He called attention to the general prosperity of the country.

WRESTLING

Two Exhibitions Given in Different Parts of the City.

Metropolitan Theater and Columbia Hall Scenes of the Bouts.

Two wrestling contests were pulled off in the city last evening. At the Metropolitan theater Gene Cole, the Minneapolis wrestler, threw Robert Hynes of Milwaukee in thirteen minutes, and out at Columbia hall in the West end, Arthur Rosine threw George Williamson of Superior in two successive falls in five and three and one-half minutes, respectively. Hynes is a big beefy wrestler, weighing 165 pounds, and Cole had thirteen minutes of the hardest kind of work, weighing, as he does, only 133 pounds. Hynes was on the offensive during the first five minutes of the bout, and he rushed Cole about the mat trying for a fall. But Cole started for his man at the expiration of the first five minutes, and tried all manner of holds on his opponent. He finally landed him on a full nelson, which Hynes fought to the last notch. The Milwaukee man was clumsy, but strong and game, and he bore some holds that were punishing.

At Columbia, Arthur Rosine and George Williamson gave a short but strenuous exhibition. Rosine weighed 189 pounds and had the advantage of fifteen pounds over his opponent, whom he threw twice in rapid succession. The first fall was secured in five minutes and the second in less than four minutes. Billy Maynard refereed the match, and he will meet the winner Saturday night at the Metropolitan. Frank Kredder of West Duluth also challenged the winner, and he will also be taken on by both Maynard and Rosine. There was a most sparring match following the wrestling bouts, between Edward Bowen of West Duluth and R. Whittle. It ended in a draw. The remainder of the program was made up of exhibitions of weight lifting and other athletic feats.

ALL READY FOR

Baseball Magnates Will Gather in Duluth Sunday and Monday.

All preparations are complete for the annual meeting of the Northern league, which will be held here Sunday and Monday. Representatives from Winopec, Grand Forks, Fargo, Duluth and Lake Linden will be in attendance, and the question of next year's circuit will probably be finally settled. There is talk of a four club league in the Upper country to include Houghton, Hancock, Lake Linden and Duluth, but the plan of having the two latter cities join the Northern league would be more desirable, as it would result in the fans there seeing better ball.

Prospects seem good for the Northern league circuit being composed of the six clubs mentioned, next year, and it would give the strongest circuit the league ever had if it can be fixed on in that way.

ARE BUYING MORE COWS

Farmers in This District Will Increase Dairy Business.

Urge Possibilities of This Vicinity for a Creamery.

This coming season will see a development of the dairy business in St. Louis and Carlton counties, greater than ever before. Not only are the farmers in these two counties carrying more milk cows over the winter stable feeding season, but a large number of them are already in negotiation with parties in the southern part of the state with a view to purchasing and shipping to this part of the state next spring several carloads of cattle for dairy purposes.

The prospects said to have never been better for the establishment of a large butter and cheese factory in the vicinity of this city. The high prices that dairy products have maintained through the present winter period are claimed to be a guarantee of a successful investment were a butter factory to be established. Some weeks ago it was reported through the columns of The Herald that the Jean DuLuth company would throw open to the public its creamery situated on the Jean DuLuth stock farm a few miles out of the city limits, on the Howard-Greenwood road, the stock company to buy all the milk that the farmers might take to the creamery for sale and give back to them free of charge the skim milk. While the creamery on the stock farm is a modern plant and has a capacity that would take care of the milk in the surrounding country for a radius of a few miles, it is being urged by a number of the men engaged in the dairy business that there is an excellent opening for a butter and cheese factory on a much larger scale, one that will accommodate all the farmers in this part of the country should they desire to patronize it.

To be a success a creamery must be located in a country where there is a large milk supply, and until the last year or two the Duluth district has hardly been a field for such an enterprise, for the reason that the farmers did not keep very many cows, and the milk did not find ready sale in the city. The long winters have deterred the farmers from carrying a herd of any size through the cold months, for fear that the feed bills would more than make up the cost of the milk.

There is no dry period in the late summer and early fall, when the northern pastures are brown, and with scanty feed, as they are farther to the south, so that considered all around, the pasture feeding period is longer in St. Louis, Carlton and adjoining counties than it is in the southern part of the state, although the feeding season may open there a little earlier. Duluth men who have been investing their money in out-of-state lands and who are now developing some large farms, claim that nothing would stimulate the dairy business in this district so much as the establishment of a butter factory. They claim that were the farmers in this part of the country assured that they would have a market for the milk they would double and even treble their dairy herds. As it is a number of them are increasing the number of cows that they will feed and milk next summer on the assurance held out by the Jean DuLuth company that it will take all the milk offered for sale at its creamery.

A. J. McGuire, director of the Northern Agricultural Experiment station at Grand Rapids, Itasca county, who has been a frequent visitor and a close observer of the agricultural development of St. Louis county, has issued an important bulletin that deals with the adaptability of Northern Minnesota to growing feed for livestock. He emphasizes the possibilities before the farmers in the way of realizing profits on dairy herds and the raising of cattle for the market, because of the splendid growth of grass and fodder that the soil is capable of all through this country.

Mr. McGuire is an ardent believer in the future of Northern Minnesota as a dairy country and he claims that the only means of realizing profit on out-of-state lands before they are brought under cultivation is through pasturing.

THE FEBRUARY STATISTICS
Weather Bureau's Figures Show What May be Expected.

Thirteen degrees above zero is the average temperature for the month of February, according to the figures of the government bureau, secured from the records of the station from the time it was established thirty-five years ago, up to the present time. The warmest February in all that time was in 1875, when the average temperature was 32 degrees above. The coldest was in 1876, when the average temperature was two degrees below that chilly year. On March 21, the temperature rose to 57 degrees, and that is the warmest second month yet recorded at the bureau. The lowest temperature was February 9, 1889, when the temperature was 39 degrees below zero. The average precipitation for the month of February is 1.02 inches. The most snow according to the government statistics, was in 1884, when the precipitation was 2.71 inches, and the February of the least precipitation came in 1877, when the total was 0.16 inches. The greatest amount of snow fall recorded in twenty-four consecutive hours since the winter of 1884-85, was on February 19 and 20, 1891, and was 8 inches. February is not altogether a month of sunshine, for the figures show that the average number of clear days is only nine, while the average of partly cloudy days is ten and the number of cloudy days is nine. The prevailing winds of the month from the north-east, have an average hourly velocity of 5.5 miles an hour. The windiest February day was the eighteenth, 1903, when the velocity was 66 miles an hour. This breeze came from the northwest.

The most snow according to the government statistics, was in 1884, when the precipitation was 2.71 inches, and the February of the least precipitation came in 1877, when the total was 0.16 inches. The greatest amount of snow fall recorded in twenty-four consecutive hours since the winter of 1884-85, was on February 19 and 20, 1891, and was 8 inches. February is not altogether a month of sunshine, for the figures show that the average number of clear days is only nine, while the average of partly cloudy days is ten and the number of cloudy days is nine. The prevailing winds of the month from the north-east, have an average hourly velocity of 5.5 miles an hour. The windiest February day was the eighteenth, 1903, when the velocity was 66 miles an hour. This breeze came from the northwest. ## WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU.

Few People Realize the Importance of Good Digestion Until It Is Lost.

Many people suffer from dyspepsia and do not know it. They feel nervous, out of sorts, nervous, do not sleep well, do not have the inclination and energy for physical or mental work they once had, but at the same time do not feel any particular pain or distress in the stomach. Yet all this is the result of poor digestion, of indigestion, of dyspepsia which can only be cured by a remedy specially intended to cure it and make the digestive organs act naturally, and properly digest the food eaten. Bitters, after dinner pills and nerve tonics will never help the trouble, they don't reach it. The new medical discovery does. It is called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and is a specific for dyspepsia and indigestion. It cures because it thoroughly digests all wholesome food taken into the stomach, whether the stomach is in good working order or not.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, by digesting the food, instead of making the work of the stomach do all the work, gives it a much needed rest and a cure of dyspepsia is the natural result.

When you are nervous, run down and sleepless, don't make the common mistake of supposing your nervous system needs treatment and fill your stomach with powerful nerve tonics which make you feel good for a little while only to fall back farther than ever.

Your nerves are all right but they are starved, they want food. Nourish them with wholesome everyday food and plenty of it, well digested, and you can laugh at nerve tonics and medicine.

But the nerves will not be nourished from a weak, abused stomach, but when the digestion has been made perfect by the use of this remedy all nervous symptoms disappear.

Who ever heard of a man or woman blessed with a vigorous digestion and good appetite being troubled with their nerves?

Good digestion means a strong nervous system, abundance of energy, and capacity to enjoy the good things of life.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will certainly set your stomach and digestive organs right; they can't help but do it because they nourish the body by digesting the food eaten, and rest the stomach.

You get nourishment and rest at one and the same time, and that is all the work out of your stomach. It builds him up and give new life to every organ and an added zest to every pleasure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a god-send to the army of men and women with weak stomachs and nerves and justly merits the claim of being one of the most worthy medical discoveries of the time.

CLEVELAND IS HUMOROUS

Principal Speaker at Banquet of New York Medical Society.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 31.—The Medical society of the state of New York celebrated tonight in connection with its annual meeting, the centennial of its organization. The celebration took place in the Emmanuel Baptist church, Dr. Joseph D. Bryant of New York, the president, presided, and former President Oliver Cleveland was one of the speakers. Mr. Cleveland received an ovation when he was introduced. His speech did not touch upon any question of great public or political importance, but was largely a witty discussion of the relations of doctors with their patients.

Mr. Cleveland acknowledged the great debt which humanity owes to the medical profession and its noble advancement that profession has made, but declared that it had not been made "without some corresponding advance in the intelligence, thought, and ready information of their patients along the same lines.

"We have come to think of ourselves as worthy of confidence in the treatment of our ailments, and we believe if this is to be a greater measure, it would be better for us. We do not claim we should be called in consultation for all our illnesses, but we should be glad to have a little more explanation of the things done to us.

"We are like to think of our own doctors as valued prophets or mysterious attendants, shut out from all sick bed confidences except through cold professional ministrations and all the time response to our utmost needs of sympathy, assurance, or should I say, consolation, is to be disturbed by the specter of a medical trust in mystery and like all who are trust-attendants, should cry out for greater publicity between physician and patient."

WHAT HUNYADI JANOS IS

The Origin of the Name.

In Hungary, in the 15th Century, there lived a wonderful man—a great soldier and wise statesman—who was principally instrumental in driving back the "Unspeaking Turk" and keeping him out of Hungary and the period when hands of these marauders were ravaging most of Europe. By his victories in war and peace, the man endeavored himself to the people and gained a great and permanent place in the Nation's history. His name was HUNYADI JANOS, or John Hunyadi, as it would be in English. To the present day, in the affections of all Hungarians, he holds the place of one of their greatest national heroes. Is it strange then that they should wish to give this honored name to one of their most wonderful natural products—the famous Mineral Laxative Water from the Springs at Budapest? The unflinching value of this water as a sure and gentle Natural Laxative has gained for it a world-wide reputation, greater even than that enjoyed by old John Hunyadi in Hungary. A bottle costs but a trifling sum, and contains a dose which is a wonderful (drunk on arising, slightly warmed for best results,) will within an hour move the bowels gently but copiously. At all Drug-ists. Ask for it by the full name—HUNYADI JANOS.

Bluffton, in this county, has been totally destroyed by fire, including the machinery, books and accounts. The loss is about $3,000, partly covered by insurance. The property was owned by Mr. Pfeiffer, and was paying good profits. He will probably rebuild in the spring.

Mrs. Julius Fox, one of the pioneer residents of Fergus Falls, died very suddenly Sunday evening at her home, near the city. She was 75 years old, but apparently in good health. Just before retiring, she sat down to rest a moment, and a moment later fell from the chair and died. She was a native of Germany, and leaves a husband and three children.

Timothy had a mad dog scare of considerable proportions. Monday a very large, fine-looking dog appeared on the street and acted so strangely that he attracted attention. He bit several other dogs before it was finally decided that he was really mad. Then the people went hunting for dogs in earnest, and the strange dog and all that were known to have been bitten by him were shot.

George Ellsworth, Jr., has been brought to Fergus Falls, in charge of Deputy United States Marshall Rich, charged with sending obscene matter through the mails. He was bound over to the federal grand jury, his bail fixed at $500. His father signed the bond.

SIGNAL MAN GUILTY OF CARELESSNESS.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 31.—John S. Smith of the block signal station one mile west of Chillicothe, testified before the coroner's jury which investigated the causes of the Santa Fe wreck on Monday, that he did not hear the westbound freight train No. 23 pass his station and must have been asleep. The verdict of the jury holds Smith guilty of gross carelessness and incompetency and his arrest is expected. George E. Weatherwax, of Fort Madison, conductor of the passenger, was also censured by the jury. Express Messenger Moeckel died yesterday, making the fourth victim of the wreck.

CALL ON BALFOUR TO RETIRE AS LEADER.

London, Jan. 31.—The small Unionist party remaining in parliament threatens to become torn by dissensions over the question of leadership. A dead set is being made against Former Premier Balfour in the majority of the Unionist newspapers, those supporting Joseph Chamberlain publishing each day articles and letters calling on Mr. Balfour to retire from the leadership, while those still loyal to the old leader as plainly hint that he must recognize the uselessness of a negative policy, and as the Morning Post remarks, "abandon the serene atmosphere of social eminence and An executive committee was elected which will incorporate the new association and draft by-laws.

The object of the association is to elect trustees in all of the mutual reserve companies to represent the policy holders. This will be done by electing a board of directors who will be empowered to use the proxies of the policy holders informed of the affairs of the companies through the association and will protect in every way possible their interests.

UNCOVERING OF IRON ORE

Company to Work Veins in Wayne County, N. Y.

Wolcott, N. Y., Jan. 31.—If this part of the state does not become an iron center it won't be because of any lack of confidence on the part of those interested in developing the old ore deposits near this place. Test wells are said to have disclosed veins from 37½ inches to five feet, four inches thick.

A company was formed with a capitalization of $100,000 and the entire amount of stock was subscribed for in less than 48 hours. The officers of the corporation are: President, James J. Whipple, president of state fish and game commission; vice-president, W. H. Lyon, state printer; treasurer, E. H. Lyon, state printer; and secretary, E. H. Lyon, state printer.

The whole matter has been conducted very quietly and the 166-acre farm was bought for $30,000 almost before the people of this locality realized the fact that anything had been done. Three of the stockholders of the company are said to be the largest consumers of iron ore in the United States. On 50 acres of the tract the largest deposit of iron ore is about fifteen feet, and this stripping consists of gravel and soft shale, which can easily be worked by a steam shovel, and there is no rock. The entire tract lies between the Rome and Watertown & Ogdensburg railroad and the Lehigh Valley railroad and is also a short distance from a good shipping point on Lake Ontario.

One was first discovered in Wolcott about 1870 and for nearly 40 years the big blast furnaces were operated here, but about 182 the three men who owned the property all died within one year, and the business soon passed into inexperienced hands and failed, although the original owners amassed great wealth. In the days when the industry was at its height great numbers of workmen were brought here from Ireland to work in the mines, and a large part of the thirty Irish population of this section are descended one of these.

The ore comes to the surface about a mile west of Wolcott, and the stratum extends downward with a dip to the southward, increasing in thickness as it goes down. About eight years ago a test well was bored in Wolcott village for gas. It was sunk 2,000 feet, but gas was not found in sufficient quantities to pay. But when about 200 feet down the stratum was reached, a quantity of water nearly eight feet thick, since then no efforts have been made to develop this ore. About four years ago another well was drilled to the surface, and later a test well was drilled in another part of the village, and the stratum was again struck.

A little over two years ago five prominent Wolcott residents sank a test well in the ravine, about half a mile out of Wolcott. One was found at a depth of 17 feet, which was five to six inches in thickness and of a high quality, being 48 per cent pure. Over this stratum lies a thin layer of clay which is extremely hard and in which the drillers could drill only about 2 inches a day.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 31.—Fire of unknown origin partially destroyed Senator A. H. Clark's Butte reduction works today. The fire resisted all efforts of the firemen until it had enveloped the concentrator building in which it started, and the large elevator used for conveying concentrates. A. H. Worthy, local manager for Senator Clark, estimates the loss at $500,000, only partially insured. The plant will be rebuilt.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 31.—Mrs. Nina Dupree, a young woman about 20 years old, who lives with W. H. Grogan, a prosperous farmer, about six miles from Atlanta, near Cornell, was assaulted by a negro yesterday afternoon. After cutting her throat and leaving her in a dying condition from loss of blood and nervous excitement, the negro escaped. A posse of more than a hundred citizens with hounds is following the negro and if he is captured he will in all probability be summarily lynched.

The assault upon the young woman occurred some time between the hours of 1 and 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. She had been given a party by Mr. Grogan and his wife returning home from Atlanta at the latter hour, found her in the dining room, in a pool of her own blood. Physicians who were immediately summoned despair of her life. She was too weak to say more than a tall black negro was the perpetrator of the crime.

TERRIBLE ITCHING SCALP HUMOR

Badly Affected With Sores and Crusts—Extended Down Behind
the Ears—Some Years Later
Painful and Itching Pustules Broke Out on Lower Part of Body—Son Also Affected.

A TRIPLE CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"About ten years ago my scalp became badly affected with sores and itching humors, crusts, etc., and extending down behind the ears. My hair came out in places also. I was greatly troubled; understood it was eczema. Tried various remedies, but called, without effect. Saw your Cuticura advertisement, and got them at once. Applied them as to directions, etc., and after two weeks, I think of you, was clear as a whistle.

"I have to state also that late last fall, October and November, 1904, I was suddenly afflicted with a bad eruption, painful and itching pustules over the lower part of the body. I suffered dreadfully. In two months, under the skillful treatment of my doctor, conjoined with Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I found myself cured.

"Six years ago my son was laid up with a severe cold, a hard cough, and finally painful eruption all over the body. I procured the Cuticura Remedies as soon as possible, and after his faithful use of same was as well as ever in two weeks, as well as I can recall. He has never had a return of the illness, as far as I know.

"I have always been pleased to commend the Cuticura Remedies, and testify as to their efficacy. I am a veteran of the late Civil War, '61-'65, between seventy and eighty years of age. Yours truly, H. M. E. Weiss, Roseland, Christian Co. Ill., Aug. 31, 1905."

WARNS AGAINST EXTRAVAGANCE

James J. Hill Says Americans Are Using Up Their Capital.

New York, Jan. 31.—"This country today is like a boy who has inherited a big fortune and is living on it without earning anything himself," said James J. Hill, on his return to the city from the West. "It is all very well to talk about our great prosperity, but we are spending what has been earned, not what we are earning now. We are using up our capital and have become an extravagant nation."

Mr. Hill was speaking at a luncheon given by the Commercial Union of the city, because, as he said, if he did not do so he would be "showing off." "That Japan is sending us more than she is sending to Japan, and that it behooves us to be watchful for our position among the commercial nations."

"During the last few years things have been stirred up so on account of the Boer and Russo-Japanese wars that with the change of relation among the nations, it has been difficult to get a true perspective in commercial and industrial affairs. Look at Great Britain with a million men out of the country. Great Britain is a country with a balance of trade against it, and we should take warning. There are not many more new continents or lands to open up."

Mr. Hill was asked about his connection with the "Boer and Paucers," which he was said to have subscribed, and said that he believed he had received some book and had sent it to a friend.

A Misunderstood Profession

The reporters—read Hartley Davis's thrilling fact-story "Reporters of Today" in Everybody's for February.

Peeney—of the Boston Herald—after three months of incessant labor, procured the pardon of two men who had been in prison thirteen years for a murder they never committed.

He then quietly withdrew from the matter and left the credit for somebody else.

Social Musical and Amusement

One of the interesting affairs of early February will be the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Morrill, which will take place at the home of their daughter, Mrs. P. C. Schmidt, of 3 Chester terrace. The celebration will be observed Sunday in a quiet home way. All of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Morrill will be present, four sons coming from Minneapolis and Grand Rapids, Wis., to be present at this fiftieth anniversary of their parents' marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Morrill were married in Vermont, and have resided in Duluth during the past seven years. The occasion will be a most interesting one. One of the unusual features in connection with the affair is the celebration of the death wedding anniversary of Mr. Schmidt's parents, which took place four years ago. Two such celebrations in one family are most unusual.

KUBELIK'S SUCCESS.

Drawing Great Audiences on Present American Tour.

Kubelik, the celebrated Bohemian violinist, assisted by Ludwig Schwan, accompanist, and Agnes Gardner Eyrum, solo pianist, will appear at the Lyceum this evening, presenting a program of uncommon excellence. Interest in the coming of this remarkable young musician, who, at the age of 25, has been pronounced by all Europe and America the supreme master of his art, is widespread and expected. The most sensational and at the same time the most scholarly violinist of the day, he is endowed with a fascinating, mystic personality and an abundant charm as complete as that produced by the beauty in his playing. As great as Kubelik's success with his audience on his first visit to America, four years ago, it was small as compared with that of his present visit. During his absence he added to his phenomenal technical control the qualities of soul, feeling and deep musical understanding. His program is as follows:

Concerto, G minor, Op. 25, Brahms.
Violin, Op. 28, No. 1, Chopin.
Mazurka, Op. 68, No. 1, Chopin.
Trauermusik, Op. 10, No. 1, Schumann.
Miss Agnes Gardner Eyrum.
Concerto, D minor, Op. 24, Paganini.
Kubelik.
Scherzo, E flat, minor, Op. 4, Brahms.

DISPLAY CUT GLASS.

Mahogany the Ideal Setting to Give It Brilliance.

Cut glass will not look much better than those pretty good imitations that are sold these days if it is put on the sideboard or table without any thought of making it show off to best advantage. In fact most people do not know that the surroundings have as much to do with the beauty of cut glass as they have with most other things in the home. It should never be placed among light-colored surroundings, particularly cream or yellow. In such a case there is a noticeable lack of the brilliancy and brilliant sparkle that belong to cut glass. A cabinet made of mahogany is the ideal setting for it, as the mahogany, the whole effect is a mere jumble of crystal.

Mahogany is the ideal setting. Its richness and dulness of tone are best suited to bring out the beauty in the glass. There should be no other things in the room. There is no handsomer effect than a bowl or some cut glass piece standing on a mahogany shelf with a few flowers. It is a simple thing, but it is a thing that the housewife has not enough room of too many places, let her put some away and change from time to time. Dark oak, bog and Flemish, or velvet, black, dark green or deep maroon are the next best background. An absolute necessity, of course, is that cut glass should be kept immaculate, through frequent scrubbing with warm water and soap and rinsing in cold water.

BE UNCONSCIOUS.

A Girl's Advice With Reference to Clothes One Wears.

Said a girl specialist, in the Indianapolis News, speaking of dress and of going, "I used to stay at home. I didn't have anything to do, especially during the season, but now I go everywhere. If I don't see to have a rag to wear, I should wear something that is not too showy. It is a matter of common sense that you are well enough to fit in and play your part in the affair. If I have to wear an old gown I try to think what I am invited. I know that in a general way the strength and the middle of my wardrobe are known to my friends and all my friends quite as well as they are to myself.

Man Owns Not One.

"If a house contains six bureaus, eleven armchairs, seven chiffoniers and a dozen dressers, drawers, boxes, many of 'em is the husband entitled to, and how many is the wife?" asked the young clubman, in the Philadelphia Telegraph.

Man Owns Not One.

The second clubman laughed harshly. "You are young and have much to learn," he said. "You may as well understand first as last, the rule of bureaus, three acres of armchairs, and 17½ drawers, all these would be the student of the law. The rule of dressers, boxes, silk stockings, petticoats, powder puffs and safety pins, and the best course for you is to wear a wind-up, underclothes and so on—in a new dress and keep them under the bed."

WHAT RETAIL MARKETS OFFER.

Mushrooms, 60 cents a lb.
Pickled tripe, 12½ cents a lb.
Bananas, 20 and 25 cents a dozen.
New beets, 10 cents a bunch.
The above list is not recommended in combination, but simply as a few of the things to be found in the market which would be of interest to the "staples," but most people are prone to regard them as "fancy." However, they are to be found in the season and are unvarying in price. Sixty cents is the price you must pay for the season, and they are a real luxury which positively will not turn out poisonous.

"Tripe is another of the things that may be overlooked to the disappointment of some of your household. The bananas are exceptionally good this year and very plentiful, and they are worth the price in large quantities. As fresh and ripe for five and ten cents a dozen. It is especially noted feature of this fruit.

The new beets are very good to look at. They are not very large and are polished to a cream whiteness with just dashes of purple, and topped with the green leaves, are a pretty sight. They are to be found in the market, they ought to be just as pleasing to some other portion of the anatomy than the eye.

After leaving Minot she went to Duluth and thence to St. Louis.

Fargo—Mrs. Jessie Conover, who was appointed by Judge Andison as a juror to determine the validity of the North Dakota constitution, was in the city yesterday, where she completed the taking of testimony for the paint manufacturers.

The witnesses called by the manufacturers were Dr. Dudley, expert chemist for the paint manufacturers, and the firm of Tech Bros. of New York, and the division manager for the Patton-Sumner firm, who were in the city yesterday.

The time and place for the taking of testimony on behalf of the defense has not yet been stipulated, but the date probably will be Feb. 2, and either St. Paul or Minneapolis will be the place. The trial will be held before Judge Andison for adjudication on Feb. 17, and the testimony will be taken on Feb. 17, and the recommendation of the jury will be rendered on Feb. 17.

The validity of the military law enacted by the last legislature is to be determined by the court. The measure reached that conclusion at its session here. Many provisions of the measure are disapproved by a majority of the appointments under its provisions are objected to.

The association elected the following officers: President, Capt. Purdon, Wahpeton; vice president, Capt. Mudgett, Valley City; second vice president, Capt. Wells, Lisbon; secretary, Capt. Curtis, Lisbon; treasurer, Lieut. Lewis, Fargo.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Felipe Rondell, a full-blooded Assen-Falpeton Sioux Indian who lives on the shore of Lake Superior in Day county, is the first full-blooded Indian in the United States to make a renunciation of the provisions of the national bankruptcy law.

Rondell has just filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in the United States court in this city. In the scheduled return of his petition, he places his liabilities at $274 and his assets at $274. Of his assets, a property of value of $214 is claimed to be exempt, leaving but $60 to be distributed among his creditors. Rondell is a farmer and $2,000 of the scheduled assets which are claimed to be exempt is represented by his homestead, which and the land is entitled to be sold. Other Indian creditors should follow the example set by Rondell the business men who have large standing accounts with the Indians would receive only a small per cent. of the sums due them. Should the Indians generally adopt the bankruptcy route in the effort to be relieved from their indebtedness it would mean ruin to many business men.

According to the latest reports the new hog-packing plant will be ready for operation within thirty days. It was expected to start business the first of the year, but unforeseen delays have been at it, and it will be another month before killing operation can begin.

The plan is to be a most complete one in every respect, just as good as the "trust" plants, but on a smaller scale. All by-products are to be utilized, seven different kinds of lard are to be turned out and fertilizer made from the waste. The meat is to be raised in this state, but the meats sold here in the Nebraska position are of the best porkers are either used for the export trade or sent on to New York. The local packing house promises to reverse this order of things, only the grades being better than the local trade and the poorer stuff shipped to Chicago.

Four men who robbed the bank at Springfield, S. D., the curtain is rung down for a time on the careers of a desperate sextet. Jack Wilson and Jack Bann, who took a goodly haul, received thirteen years and six months; Burns got ten years and six months; Parker and Lynd, who were the ringleaders, who admitted complicity in the Springfield job, were sentenced to eight years in the Nebraska penitentiary. Several weeks ago for a burglary at Wakefield.

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN.

Young Fisherman Found Dead in Woods in Keweenaw County.

Calumet—Arnold Burg, a young fisherman, was found dead in the woods near Calumet, Keweenaw county, Tuesday. The case is shrouded in mystery and it is believed he may have been murdered. His mother was about to take a train from here when she was informed of the tragedy. She is prostrated with grief.

Ontonagon—Ontonagon is another upper peninsula county which has come to the conclusion that it does not care to continue to expend money for a game preserve for the benefit of sportsmen from other portions of the state. The supervisors have taken decisive action in the matter of passing resolution to discontinue the preserve in the future any salary of expense for game warden services. This is the result of the new state law increasing the fee for hunters' licenses from 50 cents to $1.00. The supervisors are now informed of the state game and the county, which has to foot the cost of protection, is now $25.00 and 25 cents.

Dollar Bay—Capt. Patrick Allie of the tug Valerie has been informed of the death of his brother, John, who was killed by a falling log in the woods near Dollar Bay, Keweenaw county, Tuesday. it. Of course, it is easier to get into the part if you feel that you are dressed for it. You make a better start. But if you hold fast to the other idea it is only a matter of getting there to get my cue. A glance is enough to show me that there are others both better and worse off in dress, and that I fit in just as well in what I have on as I would have done in anything else.

The whole point is to be in something in which you are unconscious of yourself. It is better this way than to wear a new thing which you are not used to yet and which constantly is getting in your mind.

There is just as much art in knowing how to be a success in being entertained as to succeed as an entertainer, and consciousness of clothes is a rock upon which most people wreck themselves. On the whole, there is more need for going to the other extreme and prepare for feeling at ease in the new thing which won't become a part of you readily by putting it on to come down to see somebody in or even change in it once or twice around home.

Pretty Costume.

In biscuit, or rather in a cool putty color, was seen a pretty linen costume, whose short circular skirt had a yoke of fine white lace. The bodice was of the same color, and was a bolero reaching to the waist line. This little coat had bands of the same lace on the sleeves, bordered by narrow stitched bands, for trimming; and linen frogs and covered buttons were also in the trimming scheme.

WHEAT HAS REACTION

Is Again Weaker, Losing Practically All of Previous Day's Gain.

Flax Very Strong, Though Foreigners Balk Somewhat at Advance.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 31.—Wheat today lost its gain of yesterday. At the opening it was fairly firm, and in the first half hour held its own, but the failure of the cold wave to arrive, larger receipts and the failure of Liverpool to reflect the advance here caused selling that carried prices off. Liverpool was unchanged to bid lower, Paris unchanged to bid lower, Antwerp unchanged to bid higher, Berlin bid higher and Budapest bid lower.

The May option fell 1/2¢ in Duluth, 1/2¢ in Chicago, 1/2¢ in Minneapolis, 1/2¢ in New York and Kansas City, 1/2¢ in St. Louis and 1/2¢ in Winnipeg.

Corn was lower, the May option in Chicago falling 1/2¢ and Liverpool being unchanged to bid lower. May oats fell 1/2¢ in Chicago.

Cut receipts at Duluth were 41 against 46 last year, and at Minneapolis 253, against 283 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 294, against 324 last year. Chicago received 3, against none last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 474,000 bush, last year 440,000 bush, shipments, 218,000 bush, last year 200,000 bush, clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 194,000 bush, last year 180,000 bush.

The day in the local market was quiet so far as wheat was concerned. May wheat opened at 81 1/2¢, lower 1/2¢, and went to 81 1/2¢ at 10:30. The price then fell to 81 1/4¢, a loss of 1/4¢ from yesterday. July wheat was inactive throughout the session and closed at 81 1/4¢, a loss of 1/4¢ from yesterday.

Trading in flax was lively, but prices held good throughout the day. London quoted Calcutta and Lapaflatta flax at 11 1/2¢, higher 1/2¢, and Lapaflatta flax at 11 1/2¢, higher 1/2¢.

For the first time in several days, the foreign market for flax was active. The full extent of the advance in the American market was not followed. Flax opened the higher at 81 1/2¢, fell to 81 1/4¢ and fluctuated from 81 1/4¢ to 81 1/2¢ during the session, closing at 81 1/2¢, a gain of 1/2¢ from yesterday.

July flax opened higher at 81 1/2¢, advanced to 81 3/4¢, fell to 81 1/2¢, and closed at 81 1/2¢, a gain of 1/2¢ from yesterday. The closing price was 81 1/2¢, a gain of 1/2¢ from yesterday.

RAILROAD
TO BLAME

For the Congestion of Freight on Isthmus of Panama.

Steamship Man Says Taft's Criticism is Due to Ignorance.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Robert F. Scherwin, general manager of the Pacific Mail Steamship company, was before the committee on inter-oceanic canals yesterday. His attention was called to a statement made by Secretary Taft, criticizing the service between Panama and San Francisco for its part in contributing to the congestion of freight at Panama. In reply he said:

"Secretary Taft's statement was made either through malice tending to injure American industry or through ignorance of the causes of the difficulties of which he has complained."

A description of the conditions on the Isthmus since the canal commission took charge of the Panama railway was given by Mr. Scherwin.

He said that freight had accumulated on the wharves, commercial shipments having been held up by the moving of canal materials and the difficulty Mr. Scherwin said was carelessness of the managers of the railway and their indifference to their duties as a common carrier. The canal property had been detained for two years before the United States took it. "As soon as control of the road passed to the United States," he said, "the conditions described began to grow worse. The railway management cut the wages of men working on the docks, which caused a strike and our labor followed. As a result we are both paying higher wages than we were before the poorest labor in the world. It became the understanding that the United States had bought the railway to run for two years and cared nothing for commercial business across the Isthmus. Commercial business was neglected and it was said by Secretary Taft, Mr. Wallace, Admiral Walker, the former chairman of the commission, and others connected with the building of the canal, that commerce was secondary to the movement of canal material. It was that indifference that brought about the congestion."

Mr. Scherwin said he had used every means to bring about better conditions, even making a protest to the state department to have it appeal to Panama.

He complained also that the Panama railway had arbitrarily reduced rates from New York to ports on the Pacific coast, where the line was divided between the Panama Steamship company and the Pacific Mail.

It was denied by Mr. Scherwin that his company has had a monopoly on the Pacific coast and he declared that there had been no business in the business between San Francisco and Panama.

Senator Knox asked Mr. Scherwin if he had not snarled a little under the conditions, even making a protest to the state department to have it appeal to Panama.

He said that the Pacific Mail has any connections with a Trans-continental railway and declared Secretary Taft's statement that his company had put small steamers in the Isthmian trade in order to divert the better steamers to the coffee trade was "absolutely false."

He said that sailings had been missed because the Panama railway had held up the ships at the Isthmus. He added:

"It may be that they are not making the diet by there as rapidly as they want, but I am not going to let them make the fur of the Pacific Mail company fly without giving to the country an understanding of the way business is done."

Mr. Scherwin made the statement that the Trans-continental railroad across Central America will be completed by June 1, and declared that "well kill the American commerce which now crosses the Isthmus."

He said that the Panama railway and the Pacific Mail's Panama Steamship line out of business, as by the new line there would be a reduction in the time from San Francisco to New York of from twenty-four to thirty-six days.

GOV. JOHNSON CHOSEN
GATHERING AT CHICAGO

Over 100 Delegates Present, Including the Governors of Several States.

Object is to Arrange for Uniform Laws Governing Insurance Companies.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—More than 100 state officials, including several governors, commissioners of insurance, attorneys general and representatives of insurance companies, were present at the opening session today of the national convention, called to discuss measures of control of insurance companies in the various states.

Commissioner of Insurance Thomas E. Drake of the District of Columbia, in calling the meeting to order, spoke in part as follows:

"The exposure of some of the methods of some of the life insurance companies by the committee of the legislature of the state of New York, which so clearly demonstrated the urgent necessity for better insurance laws throughout the country, was the principal reason of calling together the governors, attorneys general, insurance commissioners and others of so many states and territories. The meeting, however, is the direct result of correspondence begun last November by Governor Johnson of Minnesota, with the president of the United States."

"It was felt that in the general prevalence of excitement and deep feeling among policyholders and the public in general, there was great danger that the various legislatures about to convene might adopt drastic measures which would not only be unreasonable, burdensome and harmful to insurance companies, but also injurious to policyholders."

"After full consideration, the following plan was agreed upon and which has the approval of the president and the commissioner of the District of Columbia:

"A bill to be introduced in congress which shall be a code for the regulation of insurance in the District of Columbia, but which, with necessary changes in form to make it applicable, may be enacted by the states and territories, thus making a uniform regulation of insurance and avoiding the vexatious and costly burden incident to differing and often conflicting local legislation. This meeting is considered one of the most important that has ever taken place in the interests of insurance. Let us, therefore, be exceedingly careful in the preparation of the proposed uniform bill to administer justice and fairness to the companies."

Jefferson City, Feb. 1.—Regarding the decision handed down in New York by Justice Gildersleeve in the supreme court that Henry H. Rogers shall not be compelled to answer questions, he recently refused to answer in reference to the Standard Oil company, Attorney General Hadley last night made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"From a telegram received from Henry Wollman of New York, I am advised that Judge Gildersleeve's decision is to the effect that he will not compel Mr. Rogers to answer questions asked him pending the decision by the supreme court of Missouri, concerning the questions certified to it by Judge Anthony. This case was referred by the supreme court of the state of Missouri to Judge Anthony and he has decided that similar questions to those asked Mr. Rogers were material and Judge Gildersleeve at the conclusion of the arguments before him also decided that the questions asked Mr. Rogers were proper and material, and his decision indicates that he is still of the same opinion. If the supreme court of the state of Missouri decides that this question has not been certified to Judge Anthony, or if it decides that the position taken by Judge Anthony and Judge Gildersleeve in reference to the materiality of these questions is correct then under the decision of Judge Gildersleeve it will be necessary for Rogers to answer the questions."

Mankato, Minn., Feb. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Maudie Cooper of Anshelm, a student at the state normal school here, has the credit of having saved the lives of Miss Anna Howe of Hutchinson, Minn., another student, and Miss McCabe, a milliner. The three girls roomed together in a boarding house and Miss Howe and Miss McCabe were wholly overcome by fumes from a coal stove during the night. Her struggles aroused Mrs. Joseph Merz, a local barber, lost $500 on a roulette wheel, paid his loss with a certificate of deposit. This was sold to another man and Merz attempted to prevent its payment. The court held, under chapter 56, laws of 1904, that the innocent purchaser was entitled to the money, the first ruling of the kind so far as known in the state.

MRS. YERKES DENIES
SHE HAS WED; MINISTER
SAYS HE MARRIED HER

Peculiar Situation Regarding the Alleged Marriage of Yerkes' Widow.

Son Declares Mrs. Yerkes is Victim of a Plot Arranged for a Certain End.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Charles E. Yerkes of this city, son of the late Charles T. Yerkes, declared today that Mrs. C. T. Yerkes (Mrs. Mizner) is the victim of a plot, and that the publicity which has been given her affairs within the last two days is the result of jobbery. Early today, in response to a telegram sent to Mrs. Yerkes (Mizner) last night, Mr. Yerkes received the following:

"New York, Feb. 1.—Telegram received. Story is simply ridiculous. MRS. C. T. YERKES."

After reading the message Mr. Yerkes said:

"That is in response to a message sent by me. We are sure now that this great publicity is being played as a game in New York, by some people who are conspiring to a certain end. 'What is their motive, if their story is not true?' he was asked.

"I cannot discuss motives," said Mr. Yerkes.

New York, Feb. 1.—The marriage of Mrs. C. T. Yerkes and Wilson Mizner was performed by Rev. Andrew Gillis of 120 West Seventy-sixth street. Rev. Mr. Gillis said last night:

"I was called upon at my home by a man who said he was Wilson Mizner, Tuesday afternoon. He said he was about to be married and asked me to be in the Yerkes home Tuesday night at half past seven o'clock to perform the ceremony. I promised to be there."

"Why he came to me, I do not know and I did not ask him. It was enough for me that there was no objection to their being married. I went to Mrs. Yerkes' home as requested, and about 8 o'clock Mr. Mizner and his friends arrived. Mrs. Goodsell was already there. The only witnesses of the ceremony were Mr. Brugere, Mr. Eastland and Mrs. Goodsell."

"As to the filing of the certificate of marriage, I shall certainly attend to that within the ten days prescribed by law, and in view of the publicity of the affair I shall try to see that the certificate is filed tomorrow or next day."

New York, Feb. 1.—No statement from Mrs. Yerkes was obtainable here today as to whether she had been married to Wilson Mizner. The Rev. Andrew Gillis of St. Andrews Methodist church, however, declares that he performed the ceremony and Wilson Mizner was quoted as confirming the news of the marriage.

TURNS UP SAFELY.

Cincinnati, Feb. 1.—President Michael Donnelly of Chicago of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers workmen, who had been reported missing since Monday last, settled his bill at the Denison hotel at 9 o'clock this morning when he appeared to be in good health. The fact that Christ P. Ritter, one of Donnelly's most ardent supporters, had been assaulted by unknown men in this city on Monday night, had aroused the fears of other friends that Mr. Donnelly himself had met with foul play, when it was reported that Donnelly had not returned to the hotel after a visit to the local butchers, whose trouble with some of their men had called him to the city. He had received a telegram calling him to Louisville, from which city he returned this morning and had not heard that he was reported missing.

RAILROAD
TO BLAME

For the Congestion of Freight on Isthmus of Panama.

Steamship Man Says Taft's Criticism is Due to Ignorance.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Robert P. Scherer, general manager of the Pacific Mail Steamship company, was before the committee on inter-oceanic canals yesterday. His attention was called to a statement made by Secretary Taft, criticizing the service between Panama and San Francisco for its part in contributing to the congestion of freight at Panama. In reply he said:

"Secretary Taft's statement was made either through malice tending to injure American industry or through ignorance of the causes of the difficulties of which he has complained."

A description of the conditions on the isthmus since the canal opened was given by Mr. Scherer.

He said that freight had accumulated on the wharves, commercial shipments having been held up by the moving of canal materials and the difficulty Mr. Scherer said was experienced by the members of the railway and their indifference to their duties as a common carrier.

He said that the canal had been in operation for two years, but that the United States took it "as soon as control of the road passed to the United States," said Mr. Scherer, "the conditions described began to grow worse."

The railway management on the docks, which caused a strike and our labor followed. As a result we are both suffering. I think we are both suffering for the poorest labor in the world. It became the understanding that the Panama railway had been built for the purpose of building the canal, and that nothing for commercial business across the isthmus. Commercial business was neglected, and it was said by Secretary Taft, Mr. Wallace, Admiral Walker, the former chairman of the commission, and others connected with the building of the canal, that commerce was secondary to the movement of canal material. It was that attitude that brought about the congestion."

Mr. Scherer said he had used every means to bring about improvement, even making a protest to the state department to have it applied to Panama.

He complained also that the Panama railway had arbitrarily reduced rates from New York to ports on the Pacific coast, where the haul was divided between the Panama Steamship company and the Pacific Mail.

It was denied by Mr. Scherer that this company has had a monopoly on the Pacific coast and he declared that he had been in money in the business between San Francisco and Panama.

Senator Knox asked Mr. Scherer if he had not started a little under the criticism of Secretary Taft and if that feeling had not crept into his statement.

Mr. Scherer thought it too bad to be held up to ridicule and disgrace by a high official of the United States when every effort had been made to uphold the American flag in a business that had almost been driven out of the seas. He denied to Senator Morgan that the Pacific Mail has any connections with a Trans-continental railway and declared Secretary Taft's statement that his company had put small steamers in the isthmian trade in order to divert the better steamers to the coast trade was "absolutely false."

He said that sailings had been missed because the Panama railway had held up the ships at the isthmus. He added:

"It may be that they are not making the dirt fly there as rapidly as they want, but I am not going to let them make the fair of the Pacific Mail company fly without giving to the country an understanding of the way business is done."

Mr. Scherer made the statement that the Trans-continental railway across Central America will be completed by June 1, and declared that "will kill the American commerce which now crosses the isthmus."

He said that the Panama railway and the Pacific Mail's Panama Steamship line out of business, as by the new line there would be a reduction in the time from San Francisco to New York of from twenty-four to thirty-six days.

GOV. JOHNSON CHOSEN
GATHERING AT CHICAGO

Object is to Arrange for Uniform Laws Governing Insurance Companies.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—More than 100 state officials, including several governors, commissioners of insurance, attorneys general and representatives of insurance companies, were present at the opening session today of the national convention, called to discuss measures of control of insurance companies in the various states.

Commissioner of Insurance Thomas E. Drake of the District of Columbia, in calling the meeting to order, spoke in part as follows:

"The exposure of some of the methods of some of the life insurance companies by the committee of the legislature of the state of New York, which so clearly demonstrated the urgent necessity for uniform insurance laws throughout the country, was the principal reason of calling together the governors, attorneys-general, insurance commissioners and others of so many states and territories. The meeting, however, is the direct result of correspondence begun last November by Governor Johnson of Minnesota with the president of the United States."

"It was felt that in the general prevailing excitement and deep feeling amongst policyholders, and the public in general, there was great danger that the various legislatures about to convene might adopt drastic measures which would not only be unreasonable, but also injurious to policyholders."

After full consideration, the following plan was agreed upon and which has the approval of the president and the commissioner of the District of Columbia:

"A bill to be introduced in congress which shall be a code for the regulation of insurance in the District of Columbia, but which, with necessary changes in form to make it applicable, may be enacted by the states and territories, thus making a uniform regulation of insurance and avoiding the vexatious and costly burden incident to differing and often conflicting local legislation. This meeting is considered one of the most important that has ever taken place in the interests of insurance. Let us, therefore, be exceedingly careful in the preparation of the proposed uniform bill to administer justice and fairness to the companies."

ST. PAUL MAN
DISAPPEARS

Daniel Kroening Has Not Been Seen Since Monday Evening.

St. Paul, Feb. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Daniel Kroening was reported to the police yesterday as missing from his boarding place, 10 West Acker street. He went away with two men Monday night and has not been seen since. His landlady, Mrs. M. Gorenz, said that she received a letter from Kroening which was mailed at the union depot at 11:30 p. m. Monday. In it he said he was going to New York.

Kroening has been in St. Paul since he came to St. Paul about two years ago. Last June he was injured by a street car on Washington street and received a judgment of $5,000 against the street car company.

Mrs. Gorenz said that some one had been constantly threatening Kroening, telling him that his life was in danger and that he had better go back to Germany. Kroening, however, refused to leave, and that they offered him $200 and transportation if he would go back to Germany. Monday night, Mrs. Gorenz said, two men who resembled themselves as detectives came to her house and persuaded Kroening to go away with them. The police do not place any faith in the mystery thrown about the disappearance.

It is reported that Kroening owes Mrs. Gorenz nearly $200 for board.

PERKINS IS PESSIMISTIC

New York Congressman Does Not Approve of Rate Measure.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Representative Perkins of New York, in addressing the house on the new rate measure, said:

"If the bill answers any useful purpose it will be as a scarecrow. It is his assertion. While not claiming the railroad situation to be ideal, it would be very easy to go from the frying pan into the fire. As to improving the railroad situation, he was not alarmed at the bill, because, he said, 'it is impossible there should be any active supervision of the railroad rates under it. There are millions of different rates in the country. There are a vast number of people who would be glad to get their rates cheaper. There are a vast number of people who are glad to get anything cheaper. Fixing these rates requires a constant action of thousands of trained men. All the wrongs that may be in this system are going to be regulated by a tribunal of seven judges, who have in addition an abundance of other work on hand. If there was to be any active and effective supervision of railroad rates by the government, instead of seven interstate commissioners, we should need seven thousand.'"

While there was a doubt of frequent instances of mistakes in the management of railroads, Mr. Perkins gave them credit as the pioneer builders of American industries as contrasted to their credit the rates in Europe, which, he said, were one third higher than our highest rates.

Counting out where the specific trouble under the bill will come, Mr. Perkins said it would not be from the claims of shippers but from the claims of competing localities. In closing of his remarks, he said that the bill was subservient to the interests of politics.

In the gossip in the brokerage offices today it is stated that Amalgamated and Henize interests have adjusted their differences and that the papers have been signed.

The statement was further made that at a dinner last evening in New York at Sherry's President H. H. Rogers of the Amalgamated company turned to Thomas F. Cole of Duluth and gave him credit for bringing about the settlement and said:

The soothing syrup, which rumor persists is being exchanged by the Amalgamated and Henize forces in the Montana copper field, had its effect on the general tone of the copper stock market today. Both listed and unlisted stocks were strong, but those which led in interest were Amalgamated and United Copper.

Amalgamated, opened at $115.75, went as high as $116.25 and fell to $114.25, asked, $115.25 and $114.75. United Copper opened $3 higher at $72 and fell to $71, but was stronger at the close, which was $70 bid and $70.50 asked.

North Butte was stronger today, opening at $87.50 and going to $88.50, the closing price was $87.50 bid and $87.75 asked. Anaconda sold as high as $28.25 and closed at $27.50 bid.

Other copper stocks were also stronger. The Butte & Arizona was $115 bid and $120 asked and closed there. Calumet & Arizona was $115 bid and $120 asked and closed there. Lake Superior & Pittsburgh, $47 bid and $48 asked, and Pittsburgh & Duluth closed at $24.20 and $24.50, after selling at $24.

Black Mountain closed at $12.25 bid and $12.50 asked, and Keweenaw, $17.50 bid and $18 asked.

TO DEDICATE NEW CAR SHOPS

Railroad Men to Have Good Time at Proctor Tonight.

This evening will be a festive one at Proctor, as quite a program has been arranged by the employees of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road in honor of the completion of that road's new shops there. The work of construction has been going on for some time and now the new buildings are ready for occupancy. The principal speaker this evening will be W. A. McGonagle, vice president and general manager of the road.

For this occasion, a room 400 feet long and 70 feet wide will be converted into a banquet hall. The pits will be covered over and the entire place handsomely decorated with flags and bunting. From 6 until 7:30 is the time set for the banquet.

At 7:30 Mr. McGonagle will make his address and a program of exercises by the railroad men will begin. This is scheduled to conclude at 9:30, when the dancing will begin and no time before the mentioned in connection with this last diversion.

A special train will bring some of the Missabe road folks down from Hibbing, and it is expected that a number of Iron Range men will be on hand to assist their brethren of the other range road in celebrating.

Less Sickness.

If as much attention was paid to the purity of what we drink as to what we eat, there would be less sickness. Moderate drinking of pure liquors keeps the stomach in a healthful condition. The green government stamp on bottled in bond goods is a guarantee of their purity. Sold by J. J. Wall.

PARCELS POST IN FORCE NOW

To Sweden and Rate is Lowered From Duluth.

The parcels post system between the United States and Sweden began business today, the international agreement being that it would go into force Feb. 1, 1906. It is a curious thing that this should be one of the last parcels post systems to go into force so far as Minnesota is concerned. At least, a system of this kind is of more necessity to Sweden than to any other European country. Germany has had the agreement for about three years. Great Britain one year and Norway three months.

It is also noteworthy that under the parcels post system a parcel can be sent to Sweden 4 cents a pound cheaper than it can be sent to Superior. Under the parcels post system the rate is 16 cents a pound, but the rate in this country is 16 cents a pound.

The railroad men were not ready to present their side of the case. They pleaded for further time. After considerable discussion the hearing was postponed to Monday morning, March 26, at 10 o'clock.

COMPANIES SHOULD ACT

Attorney General Believes Insurance Directors Should Get Money

That Has Been Wasted by Officers of Their Companies.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Attorney General Julius M. Mayer of New York, this afternoon, addressed the insurance conference. He said:

We have been going through serious times in which it has not been easy to keep our balance. It is a time when even a thoughtful man may lose his sense of proportion and be led to the unfortunate generalization that because some men and conditions have been wrong, all must be wrong.

So, I take it, the purpose of this gathering is to discuss in an intelligent and calm way the various phases of the situation to the end that each public officer and return to his own community the better to perform his duties. No opportunity should be lost to make clear to the people that, notwithstanding all that has been disclosed, the great companies which have been subjected to searching investigation are absolutely solvent.

I think that we all believe that insurance legislation should be as nearly uniform as possible. In the various states of the union, uniformity is desirable, as possibly as practicable, but as a matter of practical business administration, it will not be long before the Armstrong report will be ready for submission to the legislature of the state of New York and it seems to me that the other states of the union may earnestly consider the wisdom of refraining from action until they have had an opportunity to know and consider the recommendations of this committee. I am entirely ignorant of what these recommendations will be, but I am sure they will be worthy of serious deliberation by the legislatures and officials of the various states. It would be most unfortunate if, because of a delay of only a few weeks, any definite conclusions were reached by officials of other states, which would result in a hasty and unwise legislation, so that life insurance legislation would be based on a basis of being broad and uniform.

It is true that I think the managers of the state of New York, so far as they relate to matters within the jurisdiction of the attorney general, have declared that he had received many letters of writers urging him to prosecute the officials of certain insurance companies, but pointed out that the provision of the law was to bring civil actions only. He said:

Under the Prick and Hendricks reports the directors of the state of New York were published. It seems to me that it was my duty to bring an action against the directors of the state of New York, the testimony before the Armstrong committee has disclosed various acts of officials of other states, which likewise require redress and remedy. Unreasonable delay, must necessarily only add to the public unrest, while on the other hand, a prompt and clear statement of policies and proposals and problems cannot be disposed of without careful deliberation, and the subjects present many intricate legal questions.

Attorney General Mayer then read at length the substance of New York hearing upon the insurance situation and explained how and under what circumstances, conditions should be instituted by the state, against insurance companies.

"Waste has occurred in the past," and Mr. Mayer, "because some men, active in the management of insurance corporations have committed wrongs, and have used their places of trust as a means of personal gain. Many of the men connected with insurance companies, however, are honest men who would not be guilty of any conscious wrong, but have neglected their duties and have performed them in only perfunctory way. These men are not, for that reason, to be held any less responsible legally, but there is a moral distinction in the public mind between the men who knowingly commit wrongs and those who are negligent or others or omit to perform their duties in whole or in part."

Attorney General Mayer concluded his address by offering the following suggestions:

First—That the believed official action by other states should await the coming in of the Armstrong report.

Second—That the insurance corporations and their directors have the power to bring every action to recover wasted funds, which the people of the state of New York, through the attorney general, could bring.

Third—That such actions as may be necessary and proper should be brought by the directors, and their responsibility should not be shifted to the state.

Fourth—That such a course is not sincerely and thoroughly pursued, the state may be deceived upon to act.

A Habit to Be Encouraged.

The motto which you see just the habit of keeping on hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Coughs, colds and croup, to which children are susceptible, are quickly cured by its use. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and if given as soon as the first symptoms of croup appear, it will prevent the attack. This remedy contains nothing injurious, and mothers give it to little ones with a feeling of perfect security. Sold by all druggists.

A Guarantee of Purity

The green government stamp on all bottled in bond whiskeys is a guarantee of their purity. When you drink liquors to spare you are not drinking the mixtures known as blended goods. I solicit your family trade. Uncle Sam vouches for the purity of my goods. J. J. Wall.

HIS REASON.

Way back in the fifties, when the railroad was first built through the Western Vermont valley, Daniel Curtis was made station master at North Dorset, a small hamlet about ten miles from Manchester, says the Boston Herald. "Uncle Dan," as he was familiarly called, kept the tavern, was a prominent and the important man of the place.

North Dorset was a flag station; that is trains did not stop unless they had passengers to leave, or a red flag was displayed, indicating that there were passengers on board the train. In case there was no one to get off, then the agent was to display a white flag. Both colors were rolled on one stick—the red on one end and the white on the other.

"Uncle Dan" stood alone on the plat-

THOS. F. TREVILLION.

To the Voters of Duluth:

I have served twelve consecutive years in the common council, and have been engaged in business in Duluth for over fifteen years, and I believe it can be said of me by all men and people with whom I have done business, that my word is as good as my bond.

I did not seek and only consented to accept a nomination and give my party representation after two prominent Republicans had declined a nomination from purely business and personal reasons, and I believe that I am entitled to the loyal support of all Republicans.

Mayor Cullum has had the advantage of his official position and extensive newspaper advertising in his desperate effort to prevent the Republican party from making a nomination against him, in attracting your notice to him, while I, without the backing of powerful newspapers, must appeal to you and the people at large by open letter. All I ask is fair play and an impartial consideration at your hands.

I do not claim all the attributes of a saint, but I am no pharisee.

I believe not only in "Good Government" but also in fair and impartial government. I do not believe in that kind of "Good Government" which touches only in spots and is inaugurated only in campaign times and preached for political purposes; and if elected mayor of the city of Duluth, I will give the city a good, impartial, business administration without fear or favor of any person or interest. I will counsel with the best men of my party and give the city a better and more satisfactory administration than it has today.

I believe in municipal ownership of public utilities. I believe in the extension of water and light service to the settled portions of the city as fast as possible.

I believe that all reasonable complaints should be given a fair and full hearing, and all appointments should be made according to qualifications.

I have made no promise of any appointment, in case I shall be elected.

If elected mayor, it will be my policy to carry out the foregoing and such other matters of public interest as shall from time to time arise in the furtherance of good government and the best interests of the city.

THOS. F. TREVILLION.

GETTING CALLED.

Some years ago a bright young Irishman named Jimmy Fahey was played in the old City Hotel, Lewiston, which was then kept by John Martin, says the Boston Herald. As Mr. Martin wished to accommodate him to the duties of hotel clerk, he chose a time when the hotel was quiet and gave him the position of night clerk, instructing him as to his duties in the matter of showing any guests who might come to their rooms.

The first night a gentleman came and was duly escorted to No. 60.

"Now," said the guest, "can I be called at 6 o'clock in the morning?"

"Why, yes," replied Jimmy. "Yes see that little button on the wall? Well, when it is 6 o'clock you just get up and push that button and we'll come up and call you."

SAFE SUBJECT.

In a small New England town there lived a well meaning young woman who grieved sincerely over her unfortunate tendency to "make breaks," says the Boston Herald. One day she had to make a call of condolence upon a friend whose husband had committed suicide by hanging himself in the attic. She resolved to talk only on the safest subjects, so she began:

"Isn't it too bad we've been having such gloomy weather lately?"

"Yes," replied her friend, "but I don't mind it, except on Mondays. I do like to get the clothes dry."

"Why, I shouldn't think you'd mind that. You have such a large attic to hang things in."

Duluth business men advertise in The Herald because it is the paper the people of Duluth read.

REPAIRS ARE COMPLETED

Bridge About Ready to Go Into Commission Once More.

Regular Trips Likely to be Resumed Saturday or Sunday.

The aerial ferry bridge will probably go into commission again Saturday or Sunday.

The repairs, which have been in progress for several weeks past, are almost completed, and only a few smaller matters have to be attended to.

The engineering department found, after taking over the work, that it would be necessary to straighten the track, which had not been done by the company, as was understood.

New trucks have been installed, the drums have been keyed up, the shafting repaired, and the entire operating machinery put in the best possible shape.

It is hoped and expected by the engineering department, that when the bridge has once been started up again, there will be no further trouble with it for many months to come.

As soon as the bridge is put in operation again, the expert engineer will come to the city to make his report to the council on the machinery, and on that report will depend whether or not the order is passed for the payment of the money still due the Waukesha company.

The cost of the repairs now being made will be taken out of the estimate, and an effort will also be made to make the company bear the expense of the ferry service which has been rendered necessary by the shutting down of the bridge.

PROMPT ACTION IN BOWES CASE

Aged Soldier Will be Cared for in Soldiers' Home.

Washington, Feb. 1.—President Roosevelt took prompt action on the telegram of Thomas T. Hayes, department commander of the League of Spanish Veterans, and John H. Dunn, formerly captain of the Twenty-eighth United States volunteers of Boston, regarding the case of John J. Bowes, the former United States soldier, whom, it is alleged, has been denied a landing at Boston, where he arrived from Ireland on the 19th inst. The papers were sent to the department of commerce and labor yesterday, and Secretary McCall replied that the man had not been denied a landing, but that action on his case had been simply deferred, pending the outcome of the efforts being made to place Bowes in a National Soldiers' home.

John A. McKee, president of the board of managers of national homes for disabled volunteer soldiers, how has the case in hand, and Bowes in the meantime has been made comfortable at the immigrant station at Boston. President Roosevelt wired in reply to the telegram the substance of Secretary McCall's report. No doubt is felt here that Bowes will be cared for in some national home.

COURTMARTIAL HAS ADJOURNED

Until Feb. 13, to Allow Middies to Take Examinations.

Annapolis, Feb. 1.—The courtmartial which has been engaged in trying Midshipmen on charges of hazing for over four weeks at the naval academy, adjourned today with the consent of the reviewing authority, Admiral James H. Sands, to meet on Feb. 13 next.

The purpose of the adjournment at this time is to avoid interference with the examinations, which began yesterday. The date selected for the reassembling of the court is the day after graduation. The adjournment assures the fact that all the members of the present first class who have not already been tried will graduate through charges may be filed against them after that event.

Orders announcing that Midshipman Ned Leroy Chapin of Pasadena, Cal., had been convicted of hazing and sentenced to dismissal were received from the secretary of the navy this morning and were read to the brigade of midshipmen at noon. Chapin is a member of the first class.

USED EIGHT LIVES. Melbourne, Australia, Argus: The ship's cat of the mail steamer Ortona had a remarkable experience on the last homeward voyage of that vessel.

Orders after the Ortona left Australia the cat was missing, and it was thought that it had been left behind; but when the vessel was thirty-two days out from Sydney one of the engineers heard a faint meowing in the refrigerating chamber. This chamber, which had not been opened since the vessel started, was promptly examined, and the unfortunate cat was found lying upon a box of butter in a very emaciated condition.

One of its ears and a portion of its nose had been bitten off by the cold, but its fur had grown to a great length during its imprisonment. The cat has since recovered.

PLENTY OF OPTIMISM ASK THEIR MONEY BACK

Cullum's Supporters Enthusiastic Over Prospects of Candidate's Success.

Big Odds Being Offered Against the Republican Nominee.

"Everything is looking fine," said Mayor Cullum this morning.

"Everything is looking fine," said M. Clark, manager of the campaign. "Everything is looking first rate," said Alfred McCallum, the mayor's secretary.

"Couldn't be better," said Leroy Coons, who is taking an active part in the campaign.

"Everything looks good to me," said David Sang, who is watching the fences out in the West. The Cullum supporters are the most optimistic crowd of citizens to be found at the present time. They are not over confident of the mayor's reelection, they appear to be more than hopeful that he will be elected by a comfortable majority, and they are working hard to make it as large as possible.

The only thing they are watching for now are campaign stories set in circulation at the last moment when it is too late to contradict them. It is impossible to get a straight prediction of the outcome of any of them, as they hesitate about committing themselves or appearing to boast, but they seem to radiate prosperity and contentment with the world and with the political situation in the city. Even the campaign "gigs" taste like Havana perfectos to them, for in the cigar smoke they see pictures of two more years of Mayor Cullum's administration.

With the election but four days off, the prospects seem to be indeed very promising for Mayor Cullum. Betting is two and three to one that Cullum will be elected, and his supporters are offering money that he will have 500, 400 or even 300 plurality. Bets have been made that he will carry six wards in the city, and some have even gone so far as to even wager even money that he will carry every ward but the Fourth.

Reports brought into headquarters, the Democrats have at least a fair show of winning out. Ole Jensen, in the Sixth ward, is the favorite, while the hardest fight on his hands, while Charles Mork is believed to have the best chance of victory in the Sixth.

John A. Eklund and James Folsberg are putting up a very pretty fight in the Eighth ward, and it is hard to tell which way it is going. The reports coming in from the Democratic headquarters say that Eklund will carry the ward, but Folsberg is also claiming it, and it looks as if there would not be twenty-five votes one way or the other.

WELLMAN ORDERS GODARD AIRSHIP

To Sail at the Rate of Nineteen Miles an Hour.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Walter Wellman, in a Paris cable to the Record-Herald, says:

Today I signed a contract with Louis Godard for the construction of a dirigible airship. When the ship is completed we may have several weeks of thorough tests of all the mechanical and propulsive parts. The question of going to the Arctic this year is not yet decided, but we may settle it in a few weeks when the technical problems are worked out. The construction of the machine will be the most solid and enduring and will be regardless of expense.

There will be three thicknesses of heavy canvas on the outside of the craft, though the Libanoid airship had only two. The total lifting force of the machine will be 15,000 pounds. The ship complete will weigh 6,000 pounds. The engine, 850 pounds, the latter including wireless apparatus and 600 pounds of gasoline. The gasoline supply will be equivalent to 100 hours of motoring.

This machine, of the half statute miles an hour in speed is guaranteed by the builders for a total of 2,000 miles with a 50-horsepower motor. We also will have a 25-horsepower motor working a second screw. When both engines are in operation the guaranteed speed will be nearly nineteen miles an hour. Spare shafts and screws will be carried for a 5-horsepower engine to work the wireless and also the ventilator which will inflate the balloon depending from the large balloon.

GREEN LOBSTERS. Boston Herald: Mr. McDonald, who boils lobsters on Portland pier, being short of help, hired an Irishman who was not doing anything and told him to go down on the lobster car and dip up some lobsters and send them up. After waiting some time he looked down and saw Pat dipping out the lobsters and throwing them overboard. He exclaimed: "What are you doing that for?" "I am sure the things are all green," said Pat.

KIPLING'S SUGGESTION. Boston Herald: While summering in Gloucester a number of years ago, Kipling received a letter from the editor of a certain well-known woman's magazine, stating that in recently written story, and one that they were about to publish, he (Kipling) had committed the unpardonable error of making his heroine drink wine to steady her nerves after a hairbreadth escape, and as it was against the vowed principles of his magazine to mention intoxicants of any description, would Mr. Kipling be so kind as to advise them what to do in the matter?

Whereupon Kipling wired the following: "Why not substitute brandy for a largely advertised food for infants."

Lake Minnetonka Boatmen Sue Local Boat Building Concern.

Claim That Gasoline Engines Were Defective and Useless.

E. R. Gaylord, who with Fred Genge is engaged in the boat business at Lake Minnetonka, near Minneapolis, has started suit against the Pearson Boat Construction company of this city to recover damages in the amount of $546.50, alleged to be due because of defective gasoline engines furnished in several launches sold the boatmen for their trade.

The complaint, which was filed in district court of this county today, together with a demand for a change of venue from the Hennepin county court by the boat construction company, alleges that Gaylord and Genge bought three gasoline launches of the local concern, Dec. 3, 1904. One was twenty feet long, with a torpedo stern, and had a Pearson engine of three-horse power. The second was twenty-two feet long, with a similar make of engine, developing four-horse power, and the 16-foot boat had a two-horse power engine in it.

The boats are said to have been purchased for $700, for use on Lake Minnetonka, and the construction company claims for them, they would be worth $751.50, but that because of an alleged defective condition they are not worth more than $25. He demands judgment for an amount that represents the difference between $25 and $700, that was paid for the boats.

Gaylord further claims that the engines will not run the launches and are useless. Gaylord is represented by Benson & Mulneaux, a Minneapolis law firm, and the Pearson Boat Construction company is represented by Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell.

Was Benefited by the Change.

Helma Swanson, the young woman who was returned to Duluth from a Wisconsin hospital for the insane, is a laughing, because she had not gained a residence in Wisconsin, was released from custody of the county authorities, this morning, and was taken home by her sister who resides in the West end. Although the reports from the Wisconsin hospital authorities indicate that the young woman needed care while she was detained there, she has improved so much since her removal to Duluth that an examination was deemed unnecessary and she was released.

OVER SEA HABIT.

Difference on This 'Side the Water.

The persistent effect upon the heart of caffeine in coffee cannot but result in the gravest conditions, in time.

Each attack of the drug (and that means each cup of coffee) weakens the organs a little more, and the end is almost a matter of mathematical demonstration. A lady writes from a Western state:

"I am of German descent and it was natural that I should learn at a very early age to drink coffee. Until I was 23 years old I drank scarcely anything else at my meals.

"A few years ago I began to be affected by a steadily increasing nervousness, which eventually developed into a distressing heart trouble that made me very weak and miserable. Then, some three years ago, was added asthma in its worst form. My sufferings from these things can be better imagined than described.

"During all this time my husband realized more fully than I did that coffee was injurious to me and made every effort to make me stop. "Finally it was decided, a few months ago, to quit the use of coffee absolutely, and to adopt Postum Food Coffee as our hot table drink. I had but little idea that it would help me, but consented to try it to please my husband. I prepared it very carefully, exactly according to directions, and was delighted with its delicious flavor and refreshing qualities.

"Just as soon as the poison from the coffee had time to get out of my system the nutritive properties of the Postum began to build me up, and I am now fully recovered from all my nervousness, heart trouble and asthma. I gladly acknowledge that now, for the first time in years, I enjoy perfect health, and that I owe it all to Postum. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs. Postum Food Coffee contains no drugs of any description whatsoever.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Troubles and Never Suspect It.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of The Duluth Evening Herald May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly" begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

I was out of health and run down generally; had no appetite, was dizzy and suffered with headache most of the time. I did not know that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, but somehow felt that they might be, and I began taking Swamp-Root. There is such pleasant taste to Swamp-Root, and it goes right to the spot and drives disease out of the system. It has cured me, making me stronger and better in every way, and I cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers. Gratefully yours,

MRS. A. L. WALKER, 331 East Linden St., Atlanta, Ga.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue and suffer and fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; make your head ache and back ache, cause indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, you get a sallow, yellow complexion, make you feel as though you had heart trouble, you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

How to Find Out.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys need of immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

EDITORIAL NOTE.—So successful is Swamp-Root in promptly curing even the most distressing cases of kidney, liver or bladder troubles, that to prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root is so well known that our readers are advised to get for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

HOMELESS HUNCHBACK

Sent to Workhouse Because He Wanted to Find Father.

New York, Feb. 1.—Homeless little William Loney, the hunchback, sent to Blackwell island just because he wanted to find his father, told the strange story of his misfortunes yesterday. It was the first time since his arrival in the city that the young fellow had an opportunity to explain fully his strange predicament. He told all willingly in the hope of gaining aid and recognizing the freedom of which, though in a mental blundering, he had been deprived.

Although 21, little Loney is not more than three and a half feet tall, and despite years of hardship he still bears the countenance of a happy child. He is in his cell in the workhouse the crippled youth told how, motherless and homeless, he has searched for his father from whom he has been separated since a child. When he was 5 years old, he says, his parents separated, and he was then placed in a home in West Troy. Later he went to Cohoes.

"In Cohoes," he said, "I got employment as a rope boy working in the cotton mills. Later I got a job in the Harmony mill No. 3. I got $1 a week, but a fellow named Loney told me that I could get myself in tough luck and a good bit behind in my head bill.

"I had been in communication with my grandfather, who lives in Merrittsfield, 'Men learn to shave on the chin of a fool'—and, sometimes, found their prosperity on the adversity of others. For example—buying a all store or a country, whose owner is forced to sell. And many such opportunities are found in the ads.

WEST DULUTH MEASLES IS EPIDEMIC

Disease So Broadcast That Quarantining is Ordered.

Health Department Takes Steps to Stay Contagion.

Measles is the prevailing epidemic at West Duluth just now and the health department considers it serious enough so that an order has been issued to quarantine every case that breaks out from now on.

It is said that dozens of children in West Duluth have the measles or are just recovering from it and it is believed that the disease is becoming epidemic to a dangerous degree. Parents are admonished by the authorities and the doctors to be very careful of their children, for if the contagion becomes too broadcast it is not known what serious form the disease will take.

The first case of quarantining took place today and others will rapidly follow.

CONVENTION ON COUNTY DIVISION

To be Held at Deer River,
Itasca County, on Feb. 12.

Deer River, Minn., Feb. 1.—At a mass meeting of representative taxpayers of Deer River and surrounding towns held on Jan. 29, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Where, at a mass meeting held at Grand Rapids, Minn., on Jan. 17, 1906, a resolution was adopted asking for a division of the county into two counties, on lines unquestionably unfair and unjust to the people of a large portion of the said county; and whereas, such action was taken without apparent consideration of the rights or wishes of a large majority of the people of said county; and

Whereas, a division of the county on the lines indicated would make two counties so large that they would still be unmanageable, and would tend to retard the development and population of this portion of our state, so immediately and in natural resources; now, therefore,

Be it resolved, that we, as citizens of several towns of Itasca county assembled in mass meeting at Deer River, in said

THE STAGE

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTION.

METROPOLITAN—High School Girls.

COMING ATTRACTION.

LYCEUM—Friday and Saturday, "The College Widow."

"THE COLLEGE WIDOW." Henry W. Savage's production of George Bernard Shaw's successful comedy, "The College Widow," comes to the Lyceum tomorrow evening for two nights and a matinee. The ungrateful box office returns enjoyed by the attraction in New York and Chicago are being repeated on tour and the satisfaction which the performance gives is in consonance.

It is a brilliant and breezy play, filled with types of American character that are more every day than the life in an inland college town, its exquisite humor, satirical situations, and stirring climaxes show that the management of the Lyceum is in the hands of a first-class organization.

It is the latest day at the Metropolitan. Every who attends the performance this evening will receive a handsome souvenir.

High School Girls. The High School Girls are furnishing the entertainment and unblended critics say that it is the best that has been given at the Metropolitan for many a long day. The girls are in all respects a first-class organization and will give a most engaging performance until Saturday night, giving matinees tomorrow and Saturday.

ESTATE IS DIVIDED.

Heirs of Otter Tail County Bachelor Found in Germany.

Fergus Falls, Feb. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The estate of William Prommler, who died in Fergus Falls in 1903, was finally settled in the probate court yesterday.

Prommler died in his little home alone. The children of a deceased German farmer claimed the estate, and the court employed an attorney to look after their interests. A. G. Anderson has acted as administrator, and he and Probate Judge Frankenberg finally found the heirs of Mr. Prommler in Germany.

The heirs received each one-third of the estate, and the German heirs each one-third. The estate is valued at something over $2000.

A meeting of the directors of the Duluth, Fergus Falls & Southern Railway was held Tuesday evening, and reports show much interest in the proposed new line. Several points are being considered, and it is believed that the promises of business are very flattering. This added to the strong endorsement at Fergus Falls is very encouraging, and there is every probability that the line will be built early in the spring. The route has not yet been decided upon.

CURED BY FORCE OF WILL ALONE

Patient Sure Death Was Near, But Doctor Used Telepathy.

New York, Feb. 1.—That telepathy and will power may be exercised to snatch a patient from the edge of the grave, when the regular medical practitioner has given up all hope of cure, was asserted at the fifteen annual reception of the Entertainment club in the Waldorf-Astoria by Dr. John Duncan Quackenbush.

He cited a remarkable case in his own experience as proof.

It was called upon last summer to attend a young woman suffering from pneumonia, he said, who was a well-developed case. Consolidation of the lungs was evident. The patient had a temperature of 107. Her pulse was at the rate of 130 a minute. Her respiration was 60 a minute. I took her wrist in my hand and counted the pulsations of the radial artery. My watch told me that the beating was 10 a minute.

"Adele," said I, "where are you going? What does this mean?"

"I am going," she gasped, "too late."

"No," said I, concentrating all my force. "It is not too late. You cannot die. You must not die. You must get well."

"The force conquered. Her temperature went down. Her respiration became normal. Her pulse went down. Today she is singing in an uptown church."

Haven't you seen a "To Let" placard in some particular window so long that you come to wonder what was wrong with the property? Placarding is primitive—very primitive—advertising. It's just a little better than nothing.

Here we have a "To Let" placard in a little better than anything else.

ZENITH CITY IS FAVORED

Iverson Says Duluth Will Get National Ski Tournament.

Duluth Men Carried Off the Highest Honors at Ashland.

"Since yesterday's tournament at Ashland I feel more than ever convinced that Duluth will be able to land the national ski tournament for 1907," said I. A. Iverson, president of the local club, on his return from the Wisconsin town this morning. "We are rightly located to be selected for next year, and have the backing of several influential clubs. At Ishpeming this month we are going to make a big play to get the tournament, and our chances for success appear very good."

"There will be twenty clubs represented at the meeting, which will decide on the place for the 1907 gathering. Each organization will have one delegate in attendance. I think we have Ashland, Superior, Bovey, St. Paul, Red Wing and several other Northwestern clubs with us, and as our hill will answer all the requirements for the holding of a national tournament when the time for it arrives, I think enough of the other clubs will favor Duluth to bring the meet here. The fact of our being so centrally located will be a big thing in favor of holding the tournament in the Zenith city."

"Duluth made a fine showing at Ashland, out of five men entered, three had four among the prize winners. This was pretty good, in view of the fact that only one of the best ski jumpers of the country were on hand to take part in the contest. The ladies' cup offered to the man who went through with his work in the best form and with the most graceful bearing was won by Olaf Larson of Duluth. We also made good on general appearance. The Duluth men wore as uniforms white sweaters and red caps, which made the best-looking uniform on the hill."

"The corrected list of prize winners, with individual scores, as given by Mr. Iverson, who was one of the judges, is as follows:

Olaf Larson of Duluth and O. Mangsund of Red Wing, 212 1-2 points, tied for first place; John Mangsund, Duluth, second with 214 1-2 points; O. Jonnum third, Starbuck, third, with 215 1-2; O. Peirce, Duluth, fourth, with 212 1-2; G. Helland, Cameron, fifth, with 211 1-2; E. Olsen, Duluth, sixth, with 210 1-2; and O. Westgaard of Red Wing, seventh, with 209 1-2 points in his credit.

FARMING IN CHILL. Milwaukee Sentinel: "The government of Chile maintains several agricultural stations in which the French method of farming is taught by instructors from that country. The station at Santa Rosa, a Chilean landowner, but a reorganization of this branch of education will take place in the near future, and will consist of a large school of agriculture and stock raising, while the area of ground at the disposal of the French farmer is limited by the density of population. Our farms are like your Western ranches."

We want to expand our agricultural resources and conduct our farms to a still larger scale than we are doing at present. We want to use the best of the French method of farming, which is the most successful, and which is manufactured in the United States.

TERMS ARRANGED TO SUIT YOUR CONVENIENCE.

Jan Kubelik, the young Bohemian violinist, who is now touring America for the second time and who has been receiving the finest of praise from the most exacting of American critics, appeared at the Lyceum last evening and repeated the triumph that has been his in every city in which he has appeared. The audience was a fairly large one, and apparently a most thoroughly satisfied one, for at the conclusion more was eagerly demanded, the first two additional numbers being played to allow the Lyceum management to have them printed.

Exercising the prerogative which some artists assert, Kubelik played a program entirely different from the one advertised. That is wrong. Concert goers often study the published numbers and go to the concert to hear them, and it is practically taking money under false pretenses to then offer them something else and without apology. Kubelik, however, does it and is very careful to play what he advertises. Then, too, the public was not provided with programs and could not learn what the numbers were by purchasing the programs which the Kubelik management sold. The change was made too late to allow the Lyceum management to have them printed.

As for the program played no just criticism can be offered, although it may not have suited the preferences of certain individuals. It was precisely the same as that played by Kubelik upon his second concert in Carnegie hall, New York, and it then received the commendation of the New York critics. It was given at the concert at the Auditorium in Chicago and received the same warm praise. In Pittsburgh, also, it was accorded the same enthusiasm. Any of those cities have quite as much musical taste as has Duluth, and their critics are no less exacting.

In his mastery of the technical difficulties of the violin Kubelik is the peer of any living violinist. It is doubtful, indeed, if there is any one who can accomplish such effects with so little apparent effort. The most intricate fingering, marvelous bowing, harmonies of wizard-like quality, in fact every effect involving stupendous difficulties are executed with the ease and simplicity with which an ordinary person converses. Many violinists accomplish tremendous results, but with a physical effort, not so with Kubelik. This extraordinary mastery of technique may lead him to make his programs run a little more to that class of music than some would desire, and to give too little of that which calls for the display of his emotional nature, and yet there was ample in last evening's program to indicate that he is not a mere flailing machine without heart. This was evidenced in the Largo of the Handel sonata, which was eloquently done, but most strongly in the first portion of the Ernst concerto. In P sharp minor, where the appealing tonal quality, exquisite in its purity and transcendence, was magnificent. The Tchaikovsky "Serenade" and "Colique" was a superb composition of a rather mournful tone, and was beautifully done. Sauer's Spanish dance was one of the most brilliant of the numbers, and its technical intricacies were prodigious, but it was rendered with marvelous skill. The Fugant "La Campanella" was a dazzling number, requiring the highest virtuosity, and it was played with a skill and ease as the simplest exercise.

Possession of such rare technical skill is apt to tempt an artist to startle audiences rather than appeal to them through the medium of the soul pouring itself out in the music, and Kubelik, who is still very young in years, may have allowed himself to fall too much into it, but there is to be found in his work ample evidence that he is not a mere technician, but one who is really paying young men who are serious in their intentions to turn the conversation often to the simple, beautiful things. It may save him money when it comes time to buy the ring, and then if he or she has ideas of their own, they can be executed at comparatively small cost. The tendency of the day is evidently away from the solitaire diamond to something more suggestive, symbolic and individual.

Ludwig Sebaw is Kubelik's accompanist, and his playing is correct and finished, and forms an excellent background for the violinist's work.

GETTING THE RING.
Some Things to be Found for Sealing the Engagement.

If there are to be any June weddings, and of course there always are, it stands to reason that people must be getting engaged now. And when they do get engaged it is very reasonable to suppose that there will be an engagement ring. Alice Roosevelt did not have an engagement ring, is one of the dispatches that was brought out of the land. She is managing to pass through the pre-nuptial period with just a diamond necklace and two rings of pigeon-blood rubies and diamonds and sapphires. Which is quite enough. However, the people who have tired of seeing everybody from people of little means down to the $10 a week clerk become engaged with the aid of a diamond solitaire, were glad that Miss Roosevelt displayed a bit of originality in this particular. One of the local jewelers, who takes a joy in designing beautiful things, said yesterday in speaking about engagement rings: "Of course in a dozen cases we don't have a thing to say about the ring as far as design or style goes. The girl thinks she knows what she wants and by the time he is ready to buy a ring, a special design, something beautiful and unique, that has a little impress of individuality, is provided."

And then he undertook to show some of the beautiful things. And the astonishing part of it was that exquisite things were shown that men of moderate means could afford to get their best girls and it would not be a case of diamond on the installment plan until it was time to get the furniture.

The ring was an imitation of a diamond, but it was a beautiful one, and absolutely unique, pretending to be nothing that it was not, and always would be a thing of beauty. The best of it was that it could be bought for something like $40. And others there were down as low as $18. It will really pay young men who are serious in their intentions to turn the conversation often to the simple, beautiful things. It may save him money when it comes time to buy the ring, and then if he or she has ideas of their own, they can be executed at comparatively small cost. The tendency of the day is evidently away from the solitaire diamond to something more suggestive, symbolic and individual.

Gives Reception.
A reception was held last evening by the members of the Lester Park Literary club at the home of Mrs. H. J. Vaughan of 5705 London Road. The husbands of the members and their friends were entertained and the evening was a most delightful one. An informal musical program was given by Rev. C. P. Davis, Miss Carey and Miss Lillian Potter. About forty guests were present.

For Mrs. Schneider.
Mrs. Julius Schneider was the guest of honor at a pretty reception yesterday afternoon. The members of the Women's alliance of the Unitarian church were the hostesses and the affair was held at the home of Mrs. H. J. Vaughan of 1125 East Second street. Receiving with the hostess and guest of honor was Mrs. J. A. Koves. During the afternoon several piano numbers were played by Mrs. Alexander

POVERTY PARTY.
Plenty of Fun at Young Women's Christian Association.

The poverty party last evening at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association was no end of fun. The guests lived up to the name and such garb as was worn was all the funnier because the poverty stricken individuals were not caricatured extremely in their dress. A very straight backed, square shouldered young woman appeared as the best Miss Hazy you ever saw, and a person who appears as a very dignified matron at most functions made the dandiest appearing "lady" that ever demanded a lunch between breakfast and noon time. A hot looking red flannel waist turned in the throat, and the trimming of a costume that continued with a blue green skirt that fastened, presumably with a belt, but said belt had disappeared from the neck of the dress, hanging some 6 inches below the dress skirt in the back, completed the getup of similar ladies who have adorned at one time or another everybody's kitchen. Others there were that were a joy to see. An evening of informal fun was enjoyed when about 10 o'clock dishes of corn meal mush were brought in, the funniest thing was watching that gathering of it, quietly, without comment and hungerily. They entered into their characters with vim. The refreshments ended with coffee and ginger bread.

Events of Interest.
The Outlook club will meet tomorrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock, with Mrs. R. N. Marble, and the fourth lecture in the series, by Mrs. J. H. A. Merrill, will be given on "The Business Life, the Basis of Material Progress."

The Evening Art History class will meet this evening at the club room of the library. "Gothic Architecture" will be the subject of the evening's study.

Among the members of the club, the 10th winter breakfast of the club women, which will be given the 12th of this month, will be Miss Clara Baldwin of St. Paul, and Miss H. J. Baldwin will give a short talk on "Traveling Libraries."

Personal Mention.
Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Kidd and Miss Anna Kidd left today for a six-weeks' trip to California.

Mrs. O. H. Cooper and children of 1104 East Fourth street have gone to Bloxi, Miss., for a three-months' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kreiter will leave Saturday for a trip to Portland and California.

THE CHAIR KABBY.

Here's a Doctor Who Says It Develops Scitania.

Information calculated to prolong life, even if it does not make it more tolerable, is being received daily, says Dr. J. H. A. Merrill, a surgeon of repute, declares, rather tardily, perhaps, that sitting on chairs "is the cause of nearly all our ills." Dr. Merrill, a member of the American Association of the Great Authorities on diseases of the nervous system, asserts that "if one habitually sits on a hard chair, the pressure on the spine is likely to give rise to scitania."

If these two authorities are correct, there seems to be a good reason why the chair habit should not be abandoned, although there is no denying that it has become a fixed habit. Alas, the doctor who says it develops scitania, is a man who has been known to discourage it. Look at the fashionably furnished parlor, for instance. It contains chairs, to be sure; but nobody, at least no man of average proportions, has ever contracted spinal trouble or scitania by disposing himself in the spindle-legged, hand-painted, damask-covered chairs. If he attempts to use them as chairs, instead of regarding them admiringly as bric-a-brac, his wife shoots him out of the room; and she does not shoot him out of the room they let him down to the floor with a crash that scares him out of three years' natural growth. And, inasmuch as this same man, left to his own devices, is accustomed to sit on his back in a padded chair, it is possible that this warning is not meant for him. If it is, he will have an excuse for remaining in bed that has not occurred to him before. He should be grateful accordingly. Remove chairs from civilization, and some men would never get up.

However, on general principles, there is much to be said against sitting. It is expensive, particularly in theaters, and at the ringside; in many households adorned with attractive daughters it keeps the gas burning long after hours, even if it is turned low, and it aids and abets gossip, frivolous conversation and lectures, addresses and concerts which are unintelligible. It may be that the world would be better, brighter, happier and more active if it adopted standing room only.

DUTCH SILVER

Is Now Quite the Thing in the Line of Fads.

Happy the little bride who finds a piece of quaint hand-carved Dutch silver among her wedding gifts. Aside from its beauty of workmanship, it brings with it a breath of the Netherlands, for in its shape and decoration Holland speaks to us. Windmills, boats, wooden shoes, cows, peasants, storks—these are the characteristic things which the Dutch silversmith beats into his silver. Every pet collection of the bride's can be furnished with specimens of Dutch silver. For the toilet table there are boxes which might have tempted Pandora, so wonderful is their ornamental beauty and the security of the lock. One $50 box has a lid which may be lifted in four sections, each section showing an exquisitely carved picture. There are perfume bottles of crystal in silver confines, boxes for powder and patches, bonbonnières, cardholders, and pins—all bearing the mark of Holland.

For the curio cabinet there are many little trinkets which might have graced the tables of Titania herself. Fairy-like sedan chairs, bows, windmills, and chairs, tables and Dutchmen in wooden shoes and wide breeches. Spoons range in size and shape from the long-handled lemonade, with hollow space through which to draw the lemonade as through a straw, to the grotesque, broad salad spoon. One spoon shows a boat for the handle and the shore for the bowl. One shows a pastoral scene in the bowl, and a water boy carrying water on the handle. The spoons are attractive, so are the grape tongs, which remind one of the old nursery rhyme "Long came a blackbird and snipped off her nose." They have such an aggressive "beak," something new in silver spoons, that the ring handle, familiar to those who invest in nursery spoons. The mustard and salt spoons, and almost any spoon to hold a grain of these commodities. One of the prettiest receptacles for bonbons is a three-cornered hat.

Mourning Gown.

A new, smart and practical model gown for a young woman in deep mourning is worn by Constance Adams in "The Prince Chap" which is being played in the East.

The moderately full skirt, trimmed with two folds of crepe in Roman pattern, is of crepe de chine. The first band of trimming is at the knees, and the other around the hem. The full blouse waist is in the surplus effect, trimmed with the same bandings of crepe that decorate the skirt, and the short sleeves and black collar are relieved with white net and crepe cuffs and band. A moderately large black hat is worn with this. The hat is faced with shirred crepe, and makes a soft frame for the face. The veil is edged with an inch band of black crepe and is draped over the hat.

On a young and pretty widow this costume is most becoming, and every one knows that any woman's grief for the dear departed is greatly assuaged by a mourning costume that is handsome and striking in effect.

WHAT RETAIL MARKETS OFFER.

Hard Holland cabbage, 2½ cents a lb. Navy beans, 10 cents a quart, 3 for 25 cents. Salt pork, 12½ cents a lb. Fresh fish, 2½ cents a lb. Lamb's liver, 15 cents a lb. You know beans? Really beans, the kind to order when you want to make pork and? Salt pork of all things is the least inviting in sound and appearance, but it seems that it is the best thing to provide the necessary richness to what will result in a brown and dripping dish.

On one of the market counters this morning were piled a number of fresh hams, pink as to leanness and clean white as to the fat, that were most inviting looking. If you have never baked a ham, do it. After being cleaned sufficiently it is rubbed with mustard, cinnamon, cloves and celery and baked in a bath of cider with which it is covered. For a delicious oil of daintily spiced meat, baked ham gets our patronage served with a bit of apple sauce, and the fat is collected in the copper market is forgotten along with all other petty annoyances of life.

THE IRONY OF FATE

By Charles E. Perkins.

(Copyright, 1906, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)
Snow was falling swiftly. The silvery flakes were falling down on the other on their downward flight, as if bidding farewell before old mother earth, their wings glistening with the downy little particles of snow, and were leaving their tiny footprints upon the spotless mantle that was fastly enveloping the city. Here a few months ago the sparrow and the summer birds had lolled amid the warm rays of the sun, and the world seemed to be in a state of bliss. The first snow of the season.

A loosely-clad figure slouched down the street, the falling snow not barely disclosing his scant and inefficient clothing. fire and paused a moment to steal a glance into the cozy little room. The steaming coffee, potatoes and the savory smell of beefsteak invitingly spread on the table, seemed to him a second paradise. This was not for him, and more wretched than ever, he stumbled aimlessly up the street.

Of a sudden bright thought occurred to him. The prisoners over at the "Island" were comfortable and safe, and fare, even if it were the worst, would quench that fire that was burning in his stomach. He had been starving, he would only have to commit some little offense to become an inmate there. He thought over all sorts of schemes, but none seemed to insure immediate rest and subsequently a warm place to sleep and something to eat. Dubbins had concluded that the only way to get out of this mundane sphere would be to become an inmate of the "Island" as they called it. Not that he had never done anything that he could remember, but he had been so busy with his work that he had forgotten to do anything that would get him into the "Island."

On a young and pretty widow this costume is most becoming, and every one knows that any woman's grief for the dear departed is greatly assuaged by a mourning costume that is handsome and striking in effect.

He passed a florist shop, with a bicycle outside. Here was his chance. He would steal the bicycle and ride to the "Island." But after having ridden some dozen blocks he was stopped by a policeman. He tried to run, but the policeman was too quick for him. He was taken to the station and put in a cell. He was there for some time, and then he was released. He was told that he was free to go, but he was not to go to the "Island."

At the next corner he came upon some men strolling in a large glass window. He picked up a large stone and flung it through the center of the glass. A policeman hurried up and took Dubbins into custody, but after walking a square with him he released him, saying he was not sure he was the offender. Dubbins did not thank him for his release, and the officer muttered something about ungratefulness.

Dubbins walked on disconsolately, cursing fate and the laxity of the law. He was now waiting for all that evening. A little way up the street was a jewelry store with a glittering array of gold and silver. Directly in front of the window stood a pompous-looking man with a cane in his hand and a stern expression on his face. Dubbins hurried up to him and started to walk off with him. As he scrambled out of the window the officer walked up to him and said, "You're a thief, you pal. You gave me fifty. I'm not looking for anything but a stiff dose of the law. Dubbins ran down the street, and as he ran he looked back over his shoulder at the policeman who was still on the pavement and slouched on up the street in disgust. The officer had mistaken him for somebody else.

Darkness had settled over the city now and the snow was falling faster, so he dodged in the nearest doorway, which happened to be a railway waiting room. He was not exactly suited to the company, and if he would not get him a supper, and if any one was ever truly hungry and needed a good, substantial supper, that man was Dubbins. He was waiting for all that evening. A policeman walked up, gave a pat on the back with his stick and told him to move along. He passed a window lit up by a glowing

Government Will Assist in Paying for Topographical Survey.

Government Appropriations to Equal Those Made by State.

H. G. Hays, secretary of the Minnesota Drainage league, who is now in Duluth, a guest at the St. Louis, this morning received a letter from Frank A. Day, secretary to Governor Johnson, in reply to an inquiry by Mr. Hays as to what has been done towards securing the co-operation of the United States government in making the topographical survey of Minnesota.

Prof. Hall of the state university, and S. A. Thompson of Little & Nolte, Duluth, relating to this subject," says Mr. Day.

"The general proposition is that if the Minnesota law will permit, the general government will appropriate a sum equal to that appropriated by the state for the prosecution of the work, the survey to be made under the direction and printed at the expense of the geological survey. While the state drainage commission has not formally considered the correspondence, it is probable that some additional legislation will be required before any co-operation can be had. We have a copy of the law passed by Indiana, Kentucky and some other states, under the provisions of which these states are co-operating with the general government in making comprehensive topographical surveys, and it seems to be the consensus of opinion among those who have read the correspondence, that these provisions must be enacted into law by the Minnesota legislature before there can be the co-operation which now seems quite desirable. The drainage commission will meet probably on Saturday of this week, when the matter will be formally presented by the governor."

Mr. Hays has also received from Washington an explanation as to the manner in which the funds available for topographic surveys and drainage surveys in Minnesota may be augmented by existing appropriations toward the maintenance of topographical surveys of the United States geological survey. From this it appears that, under the existing law, funds appropriated by congress for the latter purpose may not be expended in any matter whatever except under immediate direction of the director of the geological survey.

"If Minnesota authorities," it is explained, "in whose command this drainage appropriation now rests will communicate with said director asking his co-operation in this work and offering a fixed amount per annum, said director will advise them regarding his ability to meet this sum by an equal one from the federal appropriation. It is believed that this can be done for the remainder of the current fiscal year and can be done probably hereafter, assuming that the customary appropriation by congress toward the United States geological surveys continues to be made annually."

"These topographic surveys of hydrographic surveys of the river and lake regions of the state, which are made by the permanent civil service of the government. They will be made, however, in order of priority in such localities as the Minnesota officials indicate and in such manner as to furnish Minnesota with all the necessary preliminary information which will show how construction should be planned."

A telegram received by Mr. Hays from A. G. Bernard of Cass Lake, president of the drainage league, who is now in Washington, announces that Congressman Stearns yesterday introduced a bill asking for a government appropriation of $10,000 for the Minnesota topographic survey.

Completed at Washington

Five Roads.

Pere Marquette Stock-

portant Meeting.

Washington, Feb. 1.—First Vice President Green and Third Vice President Rap of the Pennsylvania railroad came to Washington yesterday to confer with representatives of Southern roads that will share the new $5,000,000 terminal yards, just completed in this city, and Alexandria, Md. It was the occasion to deny a report that they came to confer with other railroad men regarding the Gillespie resolution which passed the house Monday.

Mr. Rap said arrangements had been made for the joint use of the new yards, which will provide for all transshipments now made at Alexandria, which will greatly facilitate the handling of traffic between the North and the South.

In addition to the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Chesapeake and Potomac, the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, and the Seaboard Air Line systems were represented.

All these roads will use the new terminal yards.

SEPARATE FROM C. H. & D?

Question Will be Decided by the Pere Marquette Stockholders.

Cincinnati, Feb. 1.—Secretary T. Walsh of the Pere Marquette yesterday issued notices calling a meeting of the stockholders of that company for Feb. 27, at Detroit. The meeting will be one of the utmost importance, inasmuch as it will decide whether the company shall be permitted to separate from the C. H. & D. system, the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad.

A month ago the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton stockholders voted to annul the lease of the Pere Marquette. It is believed that the Pere Marquette stockholders will vote to annul the lease of the C. H. & D. system.

It is scattered among several thousand holders, and from there being two lines, Judson Harmon has no direct interest in the meeting Feb. 27.

Mr. Harmon left Wednesday for Chicago and from there will take a trip over the Pere Marquette to Detroit.

He is expected to attend a banquet which will be tendered by General Counsel Stevens.

A semi-annual dividend of 2 1/2 per cent on the preferred A stock of the Chicago & North Western was paid yesterday by the directors of the company, at a meeting in St. Paul. Dividends on this stock have been paid for two years.

The amount of the stock outstanding is $1,572,400.

NO SIN TOO GREAT.

Dr. Rice Says God's Plan of Salvation Includes All.

"At the revival services at the First Methodist church, last evening, the usual large audience was present, and the service was a most successful one."

"If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous," and from his sermon the following is taken:

"If any man sin, that has a hopeful sound. The declarations of the Bible relating to salvation are such as always to attract attention of the sinner. No one ever gets so far from God as to be able to feel, when once he will read what God says, that there is no invitation and assurance for him. My heart rejoices in the confidence of Christ's invitation. There is not a sinner whose case is too hard for our salvation. There is not a phase of sin in any human heart that is not already known to God. There is not a single hidden secret, and out of this knowledge comes the proclamation of the savior—'I like that. You, my friend, are specially cared for. Your individual case is included in God's plans. This I am called to preach. It is the whole burden of the preacher's message. He is not sent to entertain a world. There are others who are doing that. He is called to preach the salvation of the sinner. 'If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father.' Don't you think that is a thing worth heeding? You may not understand it, but what has been done in this world anyhow simply on your understanding? 'The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin.' Oh, yes, there are many men who will say, why, that's beyond my understanding, and you don't need to preach that to me. But the mysterious ability of God to work right on, in spite of men's understanding, does some how save men from sin. All over the world this wonderful Savior is saving men, and lifting them up to a new life. One after another men are reached and made new creatures. A savior from sin has actually come among men. And the truth stands clear to any man who will heed it. I have now in my pocket a letter, just received, written in bitter tears of sorrow. It comes out of a broken home, from a young son who, after having been a 'trained man' for life, lost his strength, and tonight he wanders our streets a wreck. He has pushed his heart-broken father and mother into an untimely and awful bitter grave, and now come the other relatives and yearn for his salvation. The welcome home would be marvelous in joy. For that sinner the way of salvation is open and accessible, and the cry that comes to me is, 'Can you not, somehow, reach him and save him?' Oh, sinner, whoever you are, however you came to your place tonight, you have now an advocate with the Father," and He will take your case most gladly."

MCKINNON BADLY HURT

Carlton County Sheriff Injured In Slight Railroad Accident.

Is Now at St. Marys Hospital—Death May Result.

Sheriff William McKinnon of Carlton county, Minn., one of the best known, most popular and oldest settlers of the town of Carlton, was so severely injured in a slight railroad accident near his home yesterday that little hope for his recovery is held out by physicians. He was brought to Duluth this morning at 3 o'clock on a special train and placed in St. Mary's hospital.

It was about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon that the sheriff received his injury. He was riding on the foot-board of a freight car, which was operated by the Northern Power company at their development work along the St. Louis river at Carlton. The engine, which was attached to a long train of cars, was passing through the town of Carlton, and the sheriff was on the foot-board of one of the cars.

Mr. McKinnon was crushed and his body at the hips and crushing him against the locomotive.

The people of Carlton are anxiously waiting to learn what will be the final result of the operation, and hoping against hope that the injured man will recover.

Mr. McKinnon has been sheriff of Carlton county for the past ten or fifteen years, and is well known to the residents of the county that it is said he could go on holding office for many years, and he was well respected by the people.

MAY INVEST IN PROJECT

Duluth Men Investigate Possibilities of Large Cold Storage Plant.

Field Offered for Enterprise Said to be Favorable.

Another large cold storage plant may be among the possible improvements realized in Duluth this coming year. It is known that Duluth people with capital have been and are now investigating the possibilities of such a plant as an investment and there is reason to believe the project will go through if they are satisfied with the result of their inquiry.

At the present time this city has five cold storage plants. These are owned by the Victor company, A. Booth & Co., Bridgeman & Russell, Fluger Brewing company and the Duluth Brewing & Malting company. Only three of these plants are open for general cold storage uses, as the brewing companies use their plants for the storage of their production.

Within the past few years some tremendous strides have been made in the amount of cold storage business handled in Duluth, according to some of the commission men, and they say that the field for another large plant is an especially good one, not only because of the business now available, but because of the increase of business to come in the future as the wholesale and commission business grows.

Cold storage plants use considerable ammonia in the process of refrigeration. Ammonia, it is claimed, is not positively necessary for the required refrigeration, but is said to be far cheaper than the large amount of ice that would be required, to say nothing of the expense of handling it.

To the uninitiated the extent to which the local cold storage plants are used by the wholesale meat dealers, butchers and egg dealers and fruit commission firms, would be a matter of surprise. The local branch packing houses all have their large refrigerators which hold, probably, several carloads of beef and pork, but which are kept in the branch house only a few days before sent out to the local retail shops or reshipped by car to the various points in Northern Michigan, Wisconsin or Minnesota. There are occasions when it may be desirable to hold large shipments of fresh meat for several weeks, and in such event the cold storage plants get the business.

Meats, it is said, are put in cold storage on the pound per month basis. If the wholesale dealer has a quantity of beef, pork or mutton that he wishes held in cold storage for a time, he pays about half a cent a pound per month, whether the meat is left in the packing house for the full month. If the meat is left over a month, cold storage is paid on it for two months, even though it were left only one or two days over a month.

In the cold storage of eggs the rate is usually based on the "season," that is, the eggs put in the plant during the summer season pay storage until the following January, whether they are left for that period or not. After January eggs pay storage by the month. The storage rate, which may vary, is paid on the number of crates handled.

Cold storage on butter is paid on the pound per month basis.

Cold storage on fruits and vegetables is paid on the basis of the bushel or crate.

Berries picked in season are often put in cold storage and taken out for table use many months afterward. When served directly following their removal from the refrigeration plants, fruits and berries are said to retain practically all their original freshness and flavor.

LEG BROKEN BY BOB SLED

Oscar Mattson is Struck While Crossing Fifth Avenue East.

Struck by a bobbed sled which was traveling at a high rate of speed down Fifth avenue east, Oscar Mattson of Sixth avenue east and Fourth street, was taken to St. Mary's hospital last evening suffering from a broken leg.

Mr. Mattson was walking eastward, on Fourth street, toward his home with a friend, last evening, when they saw the sled approaching down Fifth avenue. It carried ten or twelve young people, and was traveling at such a rate that the two men had no time to get out of the way. Mattson's friend escaped, but the front sled struck Mattson and threw him into the air. He struck the ground, and when picked up by his friend it was found that his leg was broken.

The occupants of the sled were unknown.

the vote, Charles Youde said he would retire cheerfully and the house wound up the unpleasant session with a little love-fest.

The Cummins faction seated Whitmer. Had it not done so it would have faced a contest on English of Park county, who will undoubtedly be elected state printer Friday of this week and succeed Bernard Murphy of Vinton. English had removed from Park county to Mason City, as Whitmer had from Ottertail county to Sioux City. Both admitted having their business away from their home county, but maintained that they had not changed residence, and that they would eventually move back to the county they were representing in the legislature.

Now that the principle of the fight has been fought out on the Whitmer case, there is no probability that the English case will be brought up, and English will probably be named state printer by acclamation.

LEG BROKEN BY BOB SLED

Oscar Mattson is Struck While Crossing Fifth Avenue East.

Struck by a bobbed sled which was traveling at a high rate of speed down Fifth avenue east, Oscar Mattson of Sixth avenue east and Fourth street, was taken to St. Mary's hospital last evening suffering from a broken leg.

Mr. Mattson was walking eastward, on Fourth street, toward his home with a friend, last evening, when they saw the sled approaching down Fifth avenue. It carried ten or twelve young people, and was traveling at such a rate that the two men had no time to get out of the way. Mattson's friend escaped, but the front sled struck Mattson and threw him into the air. He struck the ground, and when picked up by his friend it was found that his leg was broken.

The occupants of the sled were unknown.

able to check its speed, and continued on its course down the hill, while Mattson was taken to the hospital, nearby.

The bill was referred to the committee on Indian affairs, of which Buckman is a member, and he will push it through that committee.

It is admitted by those familiar with conditions in that bill or a substitute for it will be put into the Indian appropriation bill as an amendment by Senator Clark when that bill reaches the committee on Indian affairs, of which he is chairman.

WHEELER'S DREAMS

WERE OF CONFLICT.

New York, Feb. 1.—Several days before Gen. Joseph Wheeler died, and at the time when he was occasionally irrational, he sat up in bed one evening and said to the nurse:

"When does firing begin?"

"To humor him the nurse replied:

"Firing will begin at 5 o'clock, general."

The leader in two wars leaned back in his bed, apparently resting. At five minutes to 5 o'clock he reached over for his watch, noticed the time, and took from the table near his bed a small bunch of white cotton. Then he leaned back, was puzzled by his actions. Deliberately Gen. Wheeler played both of his cards with cotton. Then he leaned back in his bed again and went to sleep.

WHEELER'S DREAMS WERE OF CONFLICT.

portion destroyed was 400 feet long by 60 feet wide and was filled with liquor, silk, teas and other goods. The loss will be fully $200,000. Only a fire-proof safe saved the loss of at least ten times that amount. Six freight cars were also destroyed. A live wire is blamed for the origin of the fire.

STEENERSON PRESENTS A DRAINAGE MEASURE.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Representative Steenerson and Buckman had a conference about drainage matters yesterday, at the conclusion of which Steenerson introduced a bill appropriating $5,000 for investigating and preparing a plan for draining swamp lands in ceded portions of the Chippewa reservation in Minnesota.

The bill was referred to the committee on Indian affairs, of which Buckman is a member, and he will push it through that committee.

It is admitted by those familiar with conditions in that bill or a substitute for it will be put into the Indian appropriation bill as an amendment by Senator Clark when that bill reaches the committee on Indian affairs, of which he is chairman.

DISCOVERY OF BODY CLEARS IOWA MYSTERY.

Estherville, Ia., Feb. 1.—The body of J. M. Briggs, who mysteriously disappeared from this city Dec. 24, was found Tuesday afternoon under the Minneapolis & St. Louis trestle crossing the Des Moines river, about one mile south of town. He had evidently fallen and broken his neck while attempting to cross the trestle. The body was not badly decomposed and the identification was complete.

Briggs disappeared the night before Christmas after a drinking bout, and it was thought he had left the country. Though he held to the belief that he was lost and had frozen to death. He leaves a wife and family here. A son is a conductor on the Northern Pacific, running between Staples and Fargo.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Gould Brokaw of Great Neck, L. I., went to New Rochelle, N. Y., last night and shot and instantly killed his wife in her apartments and then killed himself. What immediately preceded the shooting is not known, as the only story of the tragedy was told by Louis, the 3-year-old daughter of the couple, who was awakened by the first shot. The police believe the act was due to jealousy.

MURDER AT WARROAD.

Beltrami County Officials on Their Way to Investigate.

Crookston, Minn., Feb. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word of what is supposed to be a murder, committed yesterday morning, near Warroad, Minn., reached the city last evening. Coroner E. H. Marcum of Beltrami county passed through the city, being joined here by Sheriff Bailey, both of whom are headed for the scene of the crime. Both officials fear that those who are implicated will get on the other side of the boundary line and make good their escape.

There were two eye-witnesses to the deed, who will give nothing whatever to the officials there, and it is these that the officials will nab as soon as they get on the scene of the crime.

The fact that the Beltrami officials located at the county seat, Bemidji, have to come to this city, wait four hours for the Winnipeg train, and then lay over at Winnipeg for the Canadian Northern to take them to the north end of the county, taking in all nearly two days, makes the chances for the criminals to escape all the greater, as the police protection in those lumbering towns is always inadequate to cope with any such affair.

ENGINEER BARDEN DID NOT DIE AS REPORTED.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 1.—Engineer Barden, who was injured in Monday night's collision on the Great Northern railway near Columbia Falls, did not die as reported. He seems the least hurt of any of the engine crews. Engineer Thervacher had his hip and arm broken, his nose cut and back wrenched. He is in the hospital at Whitefish and may recover. Conductor Quinn was seriously injured, having a leg mangled and internal injuries that may cause death. Gangs of men are clearing up the wreckage.

but traffic has not been resumed on the main line, trains being sent today around the Kalispell "Y." Several tons of United States mail were scattered over the ties and wreckage and is being collected.

PINCHOT'S LATEST PLAN

To Increase Area of the Leech Lake Forest Reserve.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Representative Tawney has introduced in the house, at the request of Gifford Pinchot, chief forester, an amendment to the Morris act, which would have the effect of enlarging the boundaries of the forest reserve. While on its face purporting to release from the present reserve about 13,000 acres lying southwest of Cass Lake, the bill fixes the boundaries of a permanent forest reserve much larger than proposed by the Morris act.

Senator Nelson was asked to introduce the bill but refused to do so. The state delegation will not endorse it. Congressmen Bede, Buckman and Steenerson have already declared that they will oppose it.

AN ARMY OFFICER

May be Assigned as Indian Agent at Leech Lake.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Capt. W. A. Mercer, former acting Indian agent at Leech Lake, Minn., is here conferring with department officials.

Capt. Mercer is now stationed at Carlisle, Pa., where he has charge of the Indian school. His presence here gave rise to reports that the captain may again be assigned to his old position at Leech Lake, to succeed Maj. Scott, but inquiry at the Indian office developed that Capt. Mercer will continue at Carlisle.

It is not improbable, however, that an army officer may be assigned to the agency at Leech Lake, if the position is not claimed by Minnesota. The designation of an officer can be done without the consent of the senate & it was done in the case of Maj. Scott. Senator Clapp, chairman of the Indian affairs committee in the senate, says that he has not been officially advised of any vacancy at the Leech Lake agency.

ENGRAVING DIAMONDS.
Engraving on diamonds can be performed in a very effective manner, says the Scientific American. It is true, a few very artistically engraved stones were seen in India and in the East, but the portrait of the king of Holland was engraved was shown at the Paris Exhibition of 1889. But the work was imperfectly executed, and the stones looked like diamonds. Recently, however, according to the Edelmeil Industrie, the Paris Jeweler, Bordeaux, has produced some very beautiful specimens of engravings on diamonds. Among other things, he has made a yatchman having a thin diamond for the and a ruby for the handle. Worthy of notice here are a large circular stone on which a paucy with leaves is cut, and a knife made out of two diamonds. A very artistic piece of work is a bicycle having two diamonds for its wheels, the spokes of which are represented by lines cut in the diamonds, and the axles by two holes bored through the centers. Another diamond is cut in the shape of a fish, and a very beautiful brooch consists of a scarabaeus surrounded by sapphires and brilliants. The most remarkable of all is a ring made of diamond, the outer surface is polished and the outer surface artistically engraved. There are also brooches in the form of fish, the wings being represented by thin engraved diamond, also diamond with arrowed bearings, e. g., shirt studs and sleeve links with the Russian arms engraved on them. Formerly but surfaces could be polished, but bordinet has succeeded in polishing, concave parts, as for instance, the body and tail of a fish and the inner surface of a ring. With his tools he can not only make straight lines, but also model freely. These tools are his own invention, and it is stated that only his son is allowed to use them. They are the result of many years' labor, of fine workmanship, and very difficult to handle. Only within the last few years has it been possible to bore holes in diamonds and arrange them alternately with pearls on a string; this work is now regularly done in diamond-cutting establishments.

SPECIAL COUNSEL

For Government is Paid by United Refrigerator Company.

Is Prosecuting Other Refrigerator Companies for Violating Law.

Milwaukee, Feb. 1.—Attorney Charles Quaries, special counsel for the government in the prosecution of the action recently instituted in Milwaukee against the Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit company and eight other defendants for alleged violation of the Elkins anti-rebate act, receives the major portion of his compensation from Emanuel L. Philip, president and general manager of the United Refrigerator company of Wisconsin.

It was Emanuel L. Philip who, both by letter and by personal interview, suggested to Attorney General Moody the advisability of testing the Elkins act to ascertain the legality of accepting commissions from railroad companies by refrigerator lines.

These statements were made today by Mr. Philip before Special Examiner Kurtz in answer to a galling fire of questions put to him by Attorney Flanders of counsel for the United Refrigerator company, one of the defendants in the suit instituted by the government.

In the letter it was stated that commissions were being accepted by the Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit company and also by the Missouri Dispatch company of St. Louis and a request was made either that an opinion as to the legality of the practice be rendered or that proceedings be instituted in court to determine that legality.

In Oct., 1905, another letter, containing the same request and stating the same facts was sent to the attorney general by him. A copy of this letter was also produced for inspection.

Mr. Philip stated that Attorney General Moody, during an interview, informed him that owing to a lack of the proper appropriation he had no money with which to pay extra counsel to act in the capacity of special counsel to aid District Attorney Butterfield in prosecuting the case.

DEAD CHINAMEN PACKED IN ZINC

Seattle, Feb. 1.—The dead bodies of ninety-one Chinamen, each body packed in a zinc case and marked with name and age of deceased in each instance and with the nature of the cause of death, were today loaded here on the vessels about. The thirty-one corpses arrived in Seattle today, having been forwarded from Chicago over the Burlington and the Great Northern roads. The shipment is consigned to the "Six Companies" at Hongkong. The bodies are to be interred in China to satisfy the wishes of the Chinamen's rest in native earth.

STRANGE MANOEUVRE.

San Francisco Chronicle: Henry Stern, real estate broker, was walking along Montgomery street with a friend. After proceeding about twenty paces the friend fell back a step and closed in on Stern's right. They proceeded twenty feet, when Stern backed up, sidestepped and regained his former position.

"Excuse me," said the friend, thirty feet further along the street, as he retreated a step and again slipped around to the right side of the real estate agent.

They continued along Montgomery street seventeen paces when Stern, with an "I beg your pardon," executed the same manoeuvre and regained the right hand position.

"What's the matter?" demanded the friend.

"Can't hear with my left ear," explained Stern.

"Same here," said the friend.

KANSAS PROSPERITY.

Kansas City Journal: A Butler county farmer, having sold his fat steers at a good price, had a pocket full of money for which he had no immediate need. Going into a bank he informed the cashier that he wished to put in on deposit.

"But we have so much money on hand that we will have to charge you 4 per cent for looking care of your deposit." And the farmer went out mad. Crossing the street to another bank corner he told the cashier he would like to leave his money in the bank. "Sorry to refuse you," replied the cashier, "but our safe is full of money now that we have to 'iron' it in of nights before we can close the safe door." And the farmer was furious.

Crossing the street to the third bank corner he walked up to the cashier and as he took out his roll with one hand he drew a six-shooter with the other. "I wish to put my money in your bank, and be in a hurry about it. The cashier smiled, gave him a deposit slip and said not a word.

DOUBT OF MRS. YERKES' MARRIAGE DISPELLED BY FILING OF CERTIFICATE

Minister Enters Important Document With Bureau of Statistics.

Says There Was No Plot of Any Kind in Case.

Mrs. Yerkes Finally Admits That She is Again Wedded.

New York, Feb. 2.—Doubt as to the marriage of Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes to Wilson Mizner was set at rest today by the filing of the certificate of marriage with the bureau of vital statistics. In addition one newspaper quotes Mrs. Yerkes in confirmation. According to this paper Mrs. Yerkes said today:

"All I can say is that I am happily married."

Wilson Mizner left his hotel today and without further delay drove to the Yerkes home on Fifth avenue. He said he might give out another statement on the marriage soon.

The Rev. Andrew Gillies who performed the marriage ceremony said today:

"There is one phase of the marriage that I wish to enlighten the public about in view of the fact that it has been insinuated from certain quarters that the ceremony was the result of a plot. In the first place I have been a minister for more than ten years and my reputation assures my friends that I would not take part in any religious or civil ceremony that was not entirely regular. I am about to say that either of the contracting parties was in no condition to know what was transpiring. Mrs. Yerkes was entirely herself. She was self-possessed, entered with zest into the spirit of the occasion and answered all questions without the slightest hesitation."

Under the will of the late Charles T. Yerkes, Mrs. Yerkes was to receive one-half of his immense estate in trust for life, after certain bequests had been paid. The beautiful home on Fifth avenue and its valuable art treasures were also left to her. It is said that her share of the estate will amount to about $7,500,000. There was nothing in the will which forbade her marrying.

Mrs. Yerkes was the second wife of Mr. Yerkes. His first wife secured a divorce from him because he became a man of many millions. The friends of the second Mrs. Yerkes have themselves encouraged the rumor that she contemplated a second marriage by asserting that she entertained more than a mere friendly regard for Wilson Mizner.

Mizner was introduced to her at the Yerkes mansion prior to the death of Mr. Yerkes by Edith Greenway, who was one of the leading lights in society on the Pacific coast. There was a report to the effect that Mr. Mizner and Mrs. Yerkes had planned to get married just after New Year's, but that at the last moment they decided to wait a little longer.

LOYAL LEGION HOLDS ITS ANNUAL BANQUET.

Washington, Feb. 2.—More than 500 members of the military order of the Loyal Legion of the United States participated in their annual banquet here last night. This was the twenty-fourth anniversary of the order and great enthusiasm was manifested. The guests were drunk to Lincoln and McKinley, and speakers referred to the brilliant achievements of the founders of the association. Lieut.-Gen. Adna R. Chaffee acted as toastmaster, and after the commandery had given silent thanks to "alleged traitors," President Fairbanks responded to the toast, "Our Country's Future."

Obtained for an Old Soldier at Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Feb. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bryon Lent, one of the old soldiers of Fergus Falls, has received notice that congress has passed a law allowing him a pension of $30 per month. He has been receiving a pension of $8 per month, and under the pension laws was entitled to $30. But a flaw in the records prevented his getting the raise. Chicago, Feb. 2.—The national convention, called to consider proposed reforms in the supervision of life insurance companies, turned its attention today to the subject of uniform legislation.

Prior to the retirement of the committee for consultation, Governor Beckham addressed the delegates of his support, and that of the legislature of Kentucky, as far as he could give it, of such measures of protection for the policyholders as shall be recommended by the convention. A recess was then taken by the convention until the committee of fifteen declared itself ready to report.

WILL SAFEGUARD HER INTERESTS

On Other Questions France Will Show a Liberal Spirit.

Paris, Feb. 2.—Safeguarding France's preponderant political influence in Morocco, appears to be the main point of the French program at the Moroccan conference at Algiers. On other questions France is prepared in a liberal spirit to meet any proposals formulated, but she will take a firm stand relative to the police. Such is the view expressed by the French delegates at the conference.

The French cabinet possesses the unanimous support of the country in maintaining the principle that France's position in Algeria gives it the right to a predominant voice in Moroccan affairs. Any other solution of the conference will be regarded by the country as a display of weakness and the view is generally expressed that a return to the status quo would be preferable.

GERMAN NOT ALARMED BY RUSSIAN THREATS.

Berlin, Feb. 2.—Replying to an inquiry today regarding the report that he had been condemned to death by the Russian revolutionists for furnishing financial assistance to the government of Russia, Herr Mendelssohn, head of the banking house of Mendelssohn & Co., said:

"I have received many threatening letters from the Russian revolutionists since the revolutionary movement began. The latest was a sentence of death, with a coffin and a skull and cross-bones pictured on the communication. This was six weeks ago, but I have not been molested, though Berlin is full of Russians. I do not attach any importance to the threats. They only amuse me."

ARREST RECOMMENDED.

Special Agent Claims Fraud Was Practiced by John Riley.

Benidji, Minn., Feb. 2.—A report of a special agent of the interior department to the department at Washington recommends the arrest of John Riley, who, it is claimed in the special agent's report, used fraud in connection with a home-steed near Kelliher. Riley filed upon the claim Sept. 2, 1902, and made final proof Jan. 6, 1904. The special agent says that he did not live up to the homestead laws, and that he kept up a residence at Kelliher, Wis., while holding the claim. The special agent also charges Riley with having taken 50,000 feet of timber from the land. Riley has been allowed thirty days in which to apply for a hearing in the case.

PITTSBURG BROKERS FAIL.

Pittsburg, Feb. 2.—Announcement was made today that Fred L. Fast & Co., brokers, located in the Park building, Fifth avenue and Southfield street, have made a voluntary assignment to Clarence D. Bevington, secretary of the North American Savings company. The firm was not a member of the Pittsburg stock exchange. The liabilities are given as $100,000 while the assets are said to be equal. Mr. Bevington, who at once took charge, said he would probably issue a statement later in the day.

NEW COMMANDER OF AMERICAN ARMY

GEN. JOHN C. BATES, Who Succeeds Gen. Adna Chaffee as Ranking Head of United States Army.

San Francisco, Feb. 2.—The surprising fact developed in connection with the fire on the transport Meade that the property loss amounted to only $25.

Surprising Fact in Connection With Fire on Meade.

Fire Was Confined to Space Only Six Feet Square.

San Francisco, Feb. 2.—The surprising fact developed in connection with the fire on the transport Meade that the property loss amounted to only $25. This was the estimate made by Maj. Devel. When the water had been pumped from the hold and the debris removed it was ascertained that the fire had been confined to a space about six feet square. There was very little flame, the fire being of a smoldering variety, that emitted great volumes of smoke. There were fears that some of the officers' effects had been destroyed, but investigation showed these goods to be safe. It is believed by some of the officers that the fire was due to spontaneous combustion of gun oil and cotton. Titles were in the vicinity of the fire and it is thought that after clearing the weapons the men had carelessly tossed the oil-soaked waste into a heap. A board of inquiry has been appointed to make an investigation. It consists of Capt. W. L. Simpson, quartermaster's department, Capt. A. E. Williams, Second infantry, and Capt. Campbell, Fourth infantry. The Meade will sail Saturday for the Orient.

The regatta was scheduled to end today with a program of five races. The leading event was the mile race against time for the Sir Thomas Dewar trophy. This race was from a flying start, each contestant to be allowed the privilege of running two heats and the trophy to go to the boat making the fastest mile. The trophy must be won twice in succession before becoming the permanent property of a winner. The other events in the schedule were:

Hastings, Neb., Feb. 2.—Word has been received here that Mr. and Mrs. William Meyers of Brighton, Col., have "dissolved partnership." Mrs. Brighton was formerly Miss Blanche Dexter of this place. Their marriage experience was of three days' duration.

The love-making of the two was by correspondence. The young woman answered an advertisement of Meyers, who sought a woman to be manager plenipotentiary of his home and manipulator extraordinary of his waffle iron.

At the end of three days of wedded bliss, the two returned to the courthouse to return their license to the clerk, and asked that the officer refund their money. He learned that the two had been married, and informed them that they must go into court and get a divorce if they could not live together. Both are planning on a method to pursue for separation.

COAL MINERS REFUSE OPERATORS' PROPOSAL FOR OLD WAGE SCALE

The Joint Conference Adjourns Without Coming to Agreement.

Great Excitement Over the Action of Pennsylvania President.

President Mitchell Calls Immediate Meeting of Convention.

Indianapolis, Feb. 2.—The coal operators and miners of the central committee of the Southwest districts met in joint conference today, finally to settle the question as to whether an agreement was possible. President Mitchell of the miners announced that the miners had refused to accept a continuance of the present scale.

F. L. Robbins of Pittsburgh moved that the present scale be affirmed, with the same prices and conditions for the year, beginning April 1. Mr. Taylor, an Illinois operator, moved an amendment, which was the same proposition that had been previously offered and rejected. The amendment was lost, the operators and miners voting solidly.

Mr. Robbins then took the floor. He said he wanted to go on record, as it seemed the future of the interstate movement was in peril.

Mr. Robbins reviewed the difference in the condition of the miners now and when the interstate and joint conference movement went into effect. You have advanced wages and shortened hours," said he. "Without argument, and in the face of all fairness, you yesterday met and repudiated a fair proposition. I want to go on record as protesting against such methods. Yesterday coal sold in Chicago at a dollar a ton, carrying an 8-cent freight rate, because the railroads were demanding the cars, and yet you refuse to allow one district to sign an agreement unless 'we propose to deal with our miners even handed, with the same representation on each side.' We do not propose to have miners of other states, with conditions entirely different from ours, to dictate as to the settlement of our affairs in our district. Your proposition, adopted yesterday, is absurd. A little section up in Michigan could refuse a settlement and the up the whole country. The interstate conference with the anthracite operators coming. If I were an anthracite operator I would refuse to deal with you."

President Mitchell took the floor in reply. Said he: "It is kind of Mr. Robbins to say that we have presented an argument. We refuse to allow operators to have the final say as to whether we have presented any argument or not. We have shown that coal is selling at the mines at from 35 to 50 cents a ton higher than it was selling seven months ago. We showed this by their own circulars. We have shown by their circulars that the condition of their own trade is highly prosperous. The country is in the highest degree of prosperity. Stocks and bonds are flying higher than ever before. And yet, notwithstanding this situation, we are asked to continue a lower wage scale than we had two years ago. And Mr. Robbins will remember that two years ago, when he accepted a lower wage scale on account of an unfortunate situation existing at that time, he promised that the reduction would be restored at the next conference."

President Mitchell reiterated his arguments for an increase in wages, which he had previously said in a joint conference, and said in closing:

"We have come to the parting of the ways, and it seems to me the only thing left to do is to go home and there try to overcome the seemingly insurmountable obstacle. We deeply regret the necessity for this, but we feel that the time has come when you can give us an advance in wages without damaging your property interests to any considerable extent."

After some further remarks from both sides, W. D. Ryan moved the adjournment.

EQUIPMENT OF CAR

For Lumber, a Question Between Railroad and Lumbermen.

Washington, Feb. 2.—A conference between representatives of the National Wholesale Lumber Dealers' association and those of the chief railroad lines east of the Mississippi river, concerning the cost of staking and equipment of flat cars for transporting lumber, was held yesterday. Louis Dill of Baltimore was chairman.

This conference grew out of the presentation of the case before the interstate commerce commission on Jan. 11 to 13. The hearing on the date last named was adjourned at the suggestion of attorneys representing the railroads, in the hope of reaching a settlement between the parties interested.

At the conference yesterday the subject was discussed for several hours, the question being whether the railroad would pay the cost of equipment or whether it should be borne by the lumber men as heretofore. No agreement was reached, the conference adjourning until today.

Minister Enters Important Document With Bureau of Statistics.

Says There Was No Plot of Any Kind in Case.

Mrs. Yerkes Finally Admits That She is Again Wedded.

New York, Feb. 2.—Doubt as to the marriage of Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes to Wilson Mizner was set at rest today by the filing of the certificate of marriage with the bureau of vital statistics. In addition one newspaper quotes Mrs. Yerkes in confirmation. According to this paper Mrs. Yerkes said today:

"All I can say is that I am happily married."

Wilson Mizner left his hotel today and without his bag, he drove to the Yerkes home on Fifth avenue. He said he might give out another statement on the marriage soon.

The Rev. Andrew Dillies who performed the marriage ceremony said today:

"There is one phase of the marriage that I wish to enlighten the public about in view of the fact that it has been insinuated from certain quarters that the ceremony was the result of a plot. In the first place I have been a minister for more than ten years and my reputation assures my friends that I would not take part in any religious or civil ceremony that was not entirely regular. It is absurd to say that either of the parties was acting in the condition to know what was transpiring. Mrs. Yerkes was entirely herself. She was self-possessed, entered into the ceremony with a full understanding of her position and the occasion and answered all questions without the slightest hesitation."

Under the will of the late Charles T. Yerkes, Mrs. Yerkes was to receive one-half of his immense estate in trust for life, after certain bequests had been paid. The beautiful home on Fifth avenue and its valuable art treasures were also left to her during lifetime. It is estimated that her share of the estate amounted to about $7,500,000. There was nothing in the will which forbade her marrying again.

Mrs. Yerkes was the second wife of Mr. Yerkes. His first wife secured a divorce from him before he became a member of many firms and was the second Mrs. Yerkes have themselves encouraged the rumor that she contemplated remarriage. They were a more friendly regard for Wilson Mizner.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

By Insurance Conference at Chicago to Consider Reforms.

Convention Takes Recess to Await Action of Committee.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—The national convention, called to consider proposed reforms in the supervision of life insurance companies, turned its attention today to the subject of uniform legislation.

A committee of fifteen was appointed to decide upon a report, which was to be submitted to the convention later in the day. In addition to the fifteen active members of the committee, all the governors and members of the conference were designated as members of an advisory committee.

The governors present when the convention opened today were: Johnson of Minnesota, Elrod of South Dakota, Beckham of Kentucky, Davidson of Wisconsin, Cummings of Iowa, and Scales of North Dakota.

Prior to the retirement of the committee for consultation, Governor Beckham addressed the convention briefly assuring the delegates of his support, and that of the legislature of Kentucky, as far as he could give it, of such measures of protection for the policyholders as shall be recommended by the convention. A recess was then taken by the convention until the committee of fifteen declared itself ready to report.

The emperor's words were delivered personally to a delegation from the Kurk government and will be sent broadcast throughout the empire in the hope of counteracting the widespread belief prevailing among the masses of the peasantry that his majesty had ordered the distribution of all private lands and that only the land owners and local officials were hampering the execution of his will. The emperor on this occasion addressed the Kurk peasants as "my brothers" and talked to them in simple Russian terms capable of being understood by the most ignorant peasant. He said:

"I am most glad to see you. You must know very well that every right of property is sacred to the state. The owner has the same right to his land as the peasant has to yours. I am commending this to your fellows in the villages."

"In my solitude for you I do not forget the peasants, whose needs are dear to me, and I will look after them perpetually, as did my late father. The God-given duty of a monarch is to govern with the people and to discuss the best measures for your relief. Have confidence in me, I will assist you. But I repeat, remember always that every right of property is holy and inviolable."

Count Eugene Troubetsky, who presented the resolutions of the marshals of the nobility to the emperor, in an interview attributed the agrarian troubles directly to the revolutionary propaganda. He expressed his confidence in the support of the minister in maintaining the principle that France's position in Algeria gives it the right to a predominant voice in Moroccan affairs. Any other solution of the conference will be regarded by the country as a display of weakness and the view is generally expressed that a return to the status quo would be preferable.

GERMAN NOT ALARMED BY RUSSIAN THREATS.

Berlin, Feb. 2.—Replying to an inquiry today regarding the report that the Russian revolutionists for furnishing financial assistance to the government of Russia, Herr Mendelssohn, head of the banking house of Mendelssohn & Co., said:

The special agent says that he did not live up to the homestead laws, and that he kept up a residence at Northome while holding the claim. The special agent also charges Riley with having unlawfully taken 20,000 feet of timber from the land. Riley has been allowed thirty days in which to apply for a hearing in the case.

COAL MINERS REFUSE OPERATORS' PROPOSAL FOR OLD WAGE SCALE

LONG LEGAL ARGUMENTS

Occupy the Time of Court in the Packers' Case.

Government Contends That Lyman is Not a Proper Witness.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Long legal arguments marked the opening of the packers' case today. It was contended by District Attorney Morrison that James P. Lyman, former president of the National Packing company, was not a proper witness because he was not a party defendant nor is the company with which he was formerly connected one of the companies against which an indictment was returned. It was claimed by the attorneys for the packers that the National Packing company was included in the indictment among several companies, which were mentioned as "several others."

The arguments over the admissibility of the evidence of Mr. Lyman consumed nearly two hours. The attorneys for the packers declared that they wished to have Mr. Lyman testify regarding his conversations with Commissioner Garfield at the time the commissioner arrived in this city to commence his investigation into the packing industry. After the arguments had been in progress for over two hours, the court commenced to put questions to Lyman himself first to the district attorney, saying:

"If it is true that the defendants in this case set on foot a conspiracy of the National Packing company, of which Lyman was the president, he was their agent, was he not?"

"Not at all," replied Attorney Morrison. "He spoke only for himself."

"The court leaned back in his chair, remarking with evident regret, 'I really hoped that you gentlemen would have a clear argument to put before me this morning.'"

"We can show," said Attorney Miller, who is acting for the packers, "that this Garfield report was used before the grand jury, before which Mr. Lyman was witness."

"Can you prove that?" asked Judge Humphrey.

"I can prove it by this very witness," replied Mr. Miller.

"I will show that the very matters given to Garfield relating to the National Packing company were brought out before the grand jury through Mr. Lyman and that the Garfield report was used before the grand jury by District Attorney Morrison in cross-examining Mr. Lyman."

District Attorney Morrison declared that the arguments had raised the question of whether a corporation can have immunity. He declared that the only way to get around this was to produce books and papers of the company under oath.

"Well," said Judge Humphrey, "if Garfield talked to this witness, about these defendants, and how he was to get the books and papers, his testimony is competent."

"I do not see by what process of reasoning the court arrives at that conclusion," replied District Attorney Morrison. "If it is to be that by talking to any man in the company Garfield gave immunity to all, we are spreading immunity about like a pestilence."

"In answer to Mr. Miller, I will say that this Garfield report came to me like any other public document which had been published for weeks, and I used it as such."

"If it has not been settled by the courts that corporations can have immunity, some of the evidence which has gone in is in error," said Judge Humphrey.

"It has not been settled," replied the district attorney, "but if the persons get it in this case, suppose the corporations might as well have it. I have not yet, however, heard a reason based on any rule of evidence why this testimony of Lyman is competent."

After some further remarks from both sides, W. D. Ryan moved the case on for today.

MARRIAGE A BURDEN AFTER THREE DAYS.

Hastings, Neb., Feb. 2.—Word has been received here that Mr. and Mrs. William Meyers of Brighton, Col., have dissolved their partnership. Mrs. Brighton was formerly Miss Blanche Dexter of this place. Their marriage experience was of three days' duration.

The love-making of the two was made by correspondence. The young woman answered an advertisement of Meyers, who sought a woman to be manager plenipotentiary of his home and manipulator extraordinary of his waffle iron.

At the end of three days of wedded "bliss" the two returned to the courthouse to return their license to the clerk and asked that the officer refund their money. He learned that the two had been married, and informed them that they must appear in court and get a divorce if they could not live together. Both are planning on a method to pursue for separation.

The Joint Conference Adjourns Without Coming to Agreement.

Great Excitement Over the Action of Pennsylvania President.

President Mitchell Calls Immediate Meeting of Convention.

Indianapolis, Feb. 2.—The coal operators and miners of the central committees of the Southwest districts met in joint conference today, finally to settle the question as to whether an agreement was possible. President Mitchell of the miners announced that the miners had refused to accept a continuance of the present scale.

F. L. Robbins of Pittsburgh moved that the present scale be affirmed, with the same prices and conditions for the year, beginning April. Mr. Taylor, an Illinois operator, moved an amendment, which was the same proposition that had been previously offered and rejected. The amendment was lost, the operators and miners voting solidly.

Mr. Robbins then took the floor. He said he wanted to go on record, as it seemed the future of the interstate movement was in peril.

"Mr. Robbins reviewed the difference in the condition of the miners now and when the interstate and joint conference movement went into effect. 'You have advanced wages and shortened hours,' said he, 'without argument, and in the face of all fairness, you yesterday met and repudiated a fair proposition. I want to go on record as protesting against such methods. Yesterday coal sold in Chicago at a dollar and a half, carrying 80-cent freight, because the railroads were demanding the cars, and yet you refused to allow one district to sign an agreement unless we propose to deal with our miners even handed, with the same representation on each side. We do not propose to have miners' operators, with conditions entirely different from ours, to dictate as to the settlement of our affairs in our district. Our proposition, adopted yesterday, is absurd. A little section up in Michigan could refuse a settlement and tie up the whole country. You have a conference with this atrocious operators coming. If I were an anthracite operator I would refuse to deal with you."

President Mitchell took the floor in reply. Said he: "It is kind of Mr. Robbins to say that we have presented no argument. We refuse to allow the operators to have the final say as to whether we have presented any argument or not. We have shown that coal is selling at the mines at from 30 to 35 cents a ton higher than it was selling seven months ago. We showed this by their own circulars. We have shown by their circulars that the condition of their own trade is highly prosperous. The country is in the highest degree of prosperity and bonds are flying higher than ever before. And yet, notwithstanding this situation, we are asked to continue a lower wage scale than we had two years ago. And Mr. Robbins will remember that two years ago, when we accepted a lower wage scale on account of an unfortunate situation existing at that time, he promised that the reduction would be restored at the next conference."

President Mitchell reiterated his arguments for an increase in wages, which he had previously said in the joint conference, and said in closing: "We have come to the parting of the ways, and it seems to me the only thing left to do is to go home and there try to overcome the seemingly insurmountable obstacle. We deeply regret the necessity for such a step, but we feel that the time has come when you can give us an advance in wages without damaging your property interests to any considerable extent."

After some further remarks from both sides, W. D. Ryan moved the case on for today.

For Lumber, a Question Between Railroad and Lumbermen.

Washington, Feb. 2.—A conference between representatives of the National Wholesale Lumber Dealers' association and those of the chief railroad lines east of the Mississippi river, concerning the cost of staking and equipment of flat cars for transporting lumber, was held yesterday. Louis Dill of Baltimore was chairman.

This conference grew out of the presentation of the case before the interstate commerce commission on Jan. 11 to 13. The hearing on the date last named was adjourned at the suggestion of attorneys representing the railroads, in the hope of reaching a settlement between the parties interested.

At the conference yesterday the subject was discussed for several hours, the question being whether the roads would pay the cost of equipment, whether it should be borne by the lumber men as heretofore. No agreement was reached, the conference adjourning until today.

INSURRECTION SUPPRESSED.

WEST DULUTH IS CLOSE IN THE EIGHTH

Aldermanic Contest Keeps Community Guessing as to Result.

Both Candidates for Mayor Visit West Duluth for Votes.

The candidates for the mayoralty and those for alderman are paying a great deal of attention to the individual voter in West Duluth these days. Yesterday Mayor Cullum was around shaking hands with everybody and getting acquainted with new comers to West Duluth. Today Thomas Trevillion, the Republican candidate, accompanied by Thomas Olfson and others, was around some and about 10 o'clock in the morning left in a sleigh bound for Fond du Lac, N. W. Duluth, Smithville and other suburbs to meet the bull-dozers and try to induce them to support the G. O. P. man.

The eighth is an important battle ground and it is generally believed that Mayor Cullum will carry it by a large, healthy majority. His visit yesterday was fruitful. He received assurances that he need not worry about this end of the city.

In the aldermanic fight it is generally admitted that matters are pretty close between John A. Eklund of the Democrats and J. E. Foster of the Republicans. Mr. Foster has been working without a let-up ever since the primaries and is said to have done very effective work, too. Mr. Eklund worked some, but at present is quite sick with grip and cannot leave the house. This will impede him, but his friends are lending no stone unturned to land him in the city father seat.

POPULARIZE ISLE ROYALE

Isle Royale Transportation and Hotel Company is Organized.

A new company, to be known as the Isle Royale Transportation and Hotel company, has been organized by Capt. W. H. Singer. Associated with him in the deal are said to be several Duluthians, and President W. F. Pritch of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic line is also said to be quite extensively interested in the project.

This organization will take over the Singer property on the island, including the hotel and the numerous cottages erected for the accommodation of summer visitors. Arrangements have been made with several boat lines to have their boats stop at the island during the summer season, and every effort will be made by the company to bring Isle Royale more prominently into the public eye as an ideal summer resort.

A small steamer is being negotiated for, it is understood, on which excursions will be made to points of interest on and about the island. The popularity of Isle Royale as a summer resort is increasing every year, and a great many people from outside points make it their custom to spend from a few days to several weeks at this picturesque spot during the warm months.

To Save His Home, Collecting Money to Buy Lot.

Sioux City, Iowa, Feb. 2.—Seeing in Verium H. Farris a man in a more pitiable condition than himself, W. A. Farris is a blind man and creaks out an existence by turning a hand organ at Fourth and Pierce streets, depending upon the charity of the passers-by. The cripple sits in a chair a little further up the street and the two, drawn together by misfortune, are great friends.

Farris for some years past has been living on Pearl street, near the Perry creek bridge, but a short time ago he was told that by the recent action of the city council the houses in that portion of the city, including his, would have to be moved, as the city wanted

SLANG FROM CHINAMAN

Proves Too Much for the Gravity of the Court.

The Witness Interspersed Chinese With Popular Phrases of the Day.

"Well, he's blind," said Smith. "He can see to it that he gets a good one. Farris will move his house onto the lot at the commencement of the spring.

"The poor fellow is blind," said Smith, "and he has a wife and two children. We have to help him." Munger glanced at the paper, and then digging down in his pocket, led the ball with a $5 bill. Chris Deftis, James Fay, T. Thompson and W. P. Munger were treated in a like manner, and each gave $5. Then followed a string of names, and the sum had reached $2, till the sum had reached $51—enough to pay for the lot.

"If that isn't the limit," said one man, as he threw in a dollar, "a cripple selling shoestrings starting a subscription for a blind man who turns a hand organ, you're all right, Sioux string."

"Well, he's blind," said Smith. "He can see to it that he gets a good one. Farris will move his house onto the lot at the commencement of the spring.

previous question, which was carried, and the motion of F. L. Robbins, that the present wage scale be continued in force was put.

Patrick Dolan voted "yes" for the Pennsylvania miners, and the vote was challenged. Mr. Dolan rose and said: "I have authority to cast the vote for the Pennsylvania miners, and until that authority is taken from me I vote yes."

There were loud cries of "No," "throw him out," "we'll take the authority away from him."

Mr. Mitchell said: "The convention of the miners decided to refuse the proposition just presented, and the miners vote 'No.'"

Mr. Robbins said the miners had the right to vote by states, unless the president of the miners assumed the position of a dictator.

President Mitchell said he did not assume such a position. "The miners' organization has endorsed the report of the scale committee, which refused to continue the present wage scale," said he, and said the miners were as a unit a unit in their spokesman.

Secretary Wilson announced that he would refuse to announce the vote until it should be decided how the vote was cast.

A Pittsburg delegate stated that Mr. Dolan did not express the sentiment of the Pennsylvania miners when he voted "Yes." A voice shouted that Mr. Dolan was president of the district and had authority to cast the vote for the Pennsylvania miners. Another Pennsylvania delegate said he would like to know where Mr. Dolan got his authority to cast the vote as he did.

Mr. Robbins appealed to the chair for a decision as to whether the secretary should not be required to announce the vote. The chair said: "Each state has four votes. Mr. Dolan has the right to announce the vote of the Pennsylvania miners. The motion is lost."

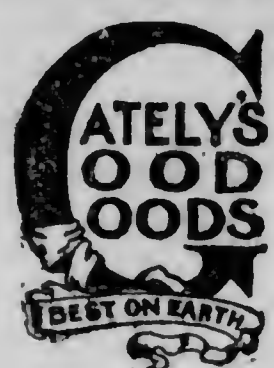

Mr. Robbins at once moved that the joint conference adjourn sine die. This was carried amid some confusion.

President Mitchell at once announced a meeting of the national convention of the miners at 2 o'clock.

"Men learn to shave on the chin of a fool"—and, sometimes, found their prosperity on the adversity of others. For example—buying a store or a property, whose owner is forced to sell. And many such opportunities are found in the ads.

TO PICK OUT A MEASURE

Senate Committee to Select Rate Bill From Three Offered.

Agree to Take a Vote on Same on Feb.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The senate committee on interstate commerce today reached an agreement to vote on the various railroad rate bills on Feb. 16. There are three measures being pressed for consideration, the DeWitt-Clapp bill, the Elkins bill and the Foraker bill. The measure which receives the largest number of votes will be reported to the senate as the majority measure. It is likely that one of the other bills will be given to the senate in minority report.

It was agreed, further, that the committee shall meet on Feb. 9, and from then until the day fixed for a vote meet every day with a view of determining upon some bill.

The routine morning business being disposed of in the senate, the calendar was taken up at a much earlier moment than usual in the senate today, and the first bill on the calendar being the Elkins bill, the reading clerk began to read it. He had proceeded but a few moments, when Mr. Teller, who opposes the bill, became interested. "How was that bill reached?" he asked.

When informed, he suggested that the bill should go over.

"The senator certainly does not object to the reading of the bill?" remarked Mr. Beveridge, in charge of the measure.

"I certainly do," replied the Colorado senator. Accordingly the further present consideration of the bill was postponed.

Mr. McCumber made a brief statement regarding the substitute for the pure food bill presented yesterday to Mr. Money. He referred to a newspaper statement credited to Mr. Money to the effect that the pending bill was intended to give power to the chief of the bureau of chemistry of the agricultural department to "hold up the foods of the country." Mr. McCumber declared that the bill contained no provision to justify the statement and added that if passed it would only give to the secretary of agriculture authority to examine suspected articles of food, after which examination he could do nothing more than report to the department of justice. Referring to Mr. Money's bill, Mr. McCumber said that it was intended not only to keep conditions as they are in the matter of the introduction of foods into the states, but to obstruct the state officials in performing their duty. He declared that the bill if passed would "do no more to prevent the misbranding of foods than would a sieve to prevent the flow of water."

Senator Patterson sharply criticized the provision of the shipping bill granting a subsidy of $200,000 a year to the Oceanic Steamship company plying on the Pacific ocean and complained that the company was trying to force action on the bill by threatening to desert the protection of the United States. He said the shipping industry to be the most persistent lobbyist.

Mr. Gallinger and Mr. Perkins followed their leader. As for Mr. Perkins, they were expected to follow the president, logic or no logic, and "get in line."

He did not think a commission could be found to meet the ideals of the president. The first canal commission was paid magnificent salaries, yet were unceremoniously dropped a year after the president appointed them. The present canal commission, even with the aid of a $10,000 press agent, does not seem to command the admiring approval of the country.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Mr. Thomas (N. C.) in the house today opened the discussion on the rate bill, making an argument in its favor.

Mr. Thomas said the bill was in line with the Democratic position, the president's position, the views of the interstate commerce commission, commercial bodies all over the country, including his own state, and the outgrowth of public sentiment.

Referring to the losses sustained by the truckers of his district, last spring, he insisted refrigerator cars should be placed under the control of the commission.

Mr. Goulden (N. Y.) gave his reasons for supporting the bill. It was the best of its kind ever presented. Its benefits were greater than its defects.

In beginning an hour's speech in favor of the bill, Mr. Burton (O.) dwelt on the enormity of the corporations in this country. He said the corporations have transformed industry completely, so that the small enterprise flourished. Now the mechanisms of steam have transformed industry, and the small enterprise is being crushed out. Mr. McCull (Mass.) made an extended speech against the bill. He said the agitation grew out of "the presidential non-recognition" of the bill of December, 1904. Bryan had called rate making as a decisive step toward government ownership. He looked upon it as his own child and as such was starting around the world, he "with paternal solicitude" commended the handling to the tender care of the president.

The Democratic party followed their leader. As for Mr. Perkins, they were expected to follow the president, logic or no logic, and "get in line."

He did not think a commission could be found to meet the ideals of the president. The first canal commission was paid magnificent salaries, yet were unceremoniously dropped a year after the president appointed them. ## GUM SHOES HOOFING IT

Campaign Rumors Are Flying Thick and Fast
Among Voters.

Alderman McEwen Conducting Successful Campaign From Sick Bed.

Nothing but the dull, quiet thud of the gun shoe, hoofing it from voter to voter, from precinct to precinct, and from ward to ward, can be heard in the political realm at the present time. The campaigners are leaving very little smoke, but there is plenty of warmth, and not many voters will escape the buttonhole conversation between now and election day.

Campaign rumors are flying thick and fast. Enemies of Mayor Cullum are telling staunch Democrats that the mayor was "hooked up" with Judge Windom, and are telling staunch Republicans that the mayor "pretends to be a friend of Windom, but is knitting him on the back."

Enemies of Judge Windom are telling Democrats that the judge is thick with Trevelion, and seeking against Cullum, and they tell Republicans that the judge is giving the party the double cross and is in reality thick with Mayor Cullum.

As a matter of fact no more combination exists between Mayor Cullum and Judge Windom than exists between the mayor and Alderman Thomas Trevelion, but their names have frequently been linked together because of the fact that a great many Democrats and a great many Republicans are figuring on splitting and voting for both candidates.

Judge Windom attended a Trevelion meeting last evening at West Duluth and addressed the assembled workers, together with a number of other prominent Republicans. He stated that he had done his campaigning from between a pair of sheets. "Billy" has been confined to his bed ever since the campaign has commenced, but his friends have been standing by him nobly, and they have taken the campaign into their own hands and are doing it as faithfully to the interests of his constituents, and at all times on the side of the city's interests. "The cause of the city is my cause," he said.

The letter has done much to silence the opposition raised by some of Alderman McEwen's enemies, and it now looks as if he will pull through his campaign in safety.

Alderman McEwen is showing surprising strength for a candidate who has done his campaigning from between a pair of sheets. "Billy" has been confined to his bed ever since the campaign has commenced, but his friends have been standing by him nobly, and they have taken the campaign into their own hands and are doing it as faithfully to the interests of his constituents, and at all times on the side of the city's interests. "The cause of the city is my cause," he said.

A. J. WHITEMAN DEPOSES

And Statement is Now in Federal Court Here.

In United States court today a deposition of Alonzo J. Whiteman, formerly of Duluth and now in Auburn state prison, New York, was filed in the suit against Peter E. Johnson, a Duluth resident, who is charged with the murder of Charles J. Gibbs, et al. The defendant in this case is a sister of Whiteman, but they have been enemies for years. Whiteman claims that she and the Pinkerton detective agency have conspired to keep him in hot water and have caused his frequent arrests. In this suit the deposition in evidence, which was taken in the state prison at Auburn, is in favor of the plaintiff.

GETS FAT VERDICT.

Peter Anderson Successful Against Alger-Smith & Co.

In United States court late yesterday afternoon the jury in the personal damage suit of Peter E. Johnson against Alger-Smith & Co., returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $5,511. The amount sued for was $12,365. Anderson while working in the mill on Rice's Point some time ago fell against a revolving saw and cut off part of his right hand. The suit now on trial is that of Odlin H. Endahl against the Northern Pacific road, the plaintiff claiming to have been injured in 1904 by being struck by a train on the Northern Pacific.

WEST END

CLEAN TO THE CLOSE

Aldermanic Fight in Sixth Ward Still Free From Personalities.

Mork and Skaglund Are Putting Up a Brisk Contest.

With the city election right upon them, the inhabitants of the Sixth and Seventh wards are beginning to warm up and some betting has been done during the last few days, mostly at even money, no odds being offered on either side. The most interesting situation is in the Sixth ward. The mayoralty in neither ward need be discussed for the reason that both are practically conceded to Mayor Cullum, despite the fact that the Seventh is regarded usually as a banner Republican ward.

In the matter of aldermanic honors, the Sixth is an interesting battle ground. The Sixth has no fight, for it, D. Haven will quietly succeed himself with no opposition. In the Sixth the Democratic candidate, Charles Mork, formerly a detective on the city force and now a merchant at Twenty-fifth avenue west and Superior street, and the Republican candidate, Carl J. Skaglund, who runs the Svea hotel on West First street, is being fought at the start that Skaglund had the best of it and there is no denying that he is a very popular man and is well known for his generosity. But Mork is also well known and popular and he began working at once. His work rapidly and it is now generally claimed that he will win by a handsome majority. Mr. Skaglund's friends, however, scoff at this and say that Skaglund will win by the majority which was at first counted upon as he has not lost ground in the slightest. Some bets have been made on this. The battle in this ward has been one of the cleanest and best in the city. Nothing of unbecoming has been done and the opponents are personal friends and have not yet allowed their personal relations to become strained in the slightest.

MID-WINTER FESTIVAL.

 Vocal—"The Alchemist's Evening Song".... Miss Alice Sjostedt.
 Ladies' solo, First Swedish church.
 Address—"The Value of Time".... Rev. John A. Anderson.
 Vocal—"I Know a Bank".... Miss Alice Sjostedt.

TRANSFERS AFFECTIONS.

R. R. Forward Changing Base in Chicken Fancier.

R. R. Forward, who has just returned from Chicago, where he was purchasing goods for his store, says he spent a day at the big poultry show down there, and profited greatly thereby. He says every chicken fancier he saw was enthusiastic over the Rhode Island Reds exhibited there by Judge Windom of Duluth, and many will make them a feature of the stock.

Among these Mr. Forward himself. He has at present probably as fine a collection of Plymouth Rocks as there is in this part of the country, but has determined to sell these off and put in their places Rhode Island Reds. His Plymouth Rock collection represents a good deal of money and many consider it hard to improve upon by changing, however, Mr. Forward

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING

Will be Held at Second Presbyterian Church Tuesday.

A meeting of the Duluth Sunday School association will be held at the Second Presbyterian church, corner of Fifteenth avenue west and Superior street, next Tuesday evening, and it is quite likely that there will be a large attendance at the affair, as this association is a hard-working one, and is one of the few that is thoroughly appreciated generally. The program for the evening will be as follows:

7:30—Song service. Scripture reading and prayer.
 7:50—Business.
 Song, selected, Male Quartet of Third Swedish Baptist church.
 8:10—The Bible class in the Sunday school. H. H. Hanford, Branch Bethel Sunday school.
 Discussion.
 8:30—Offering.
 Roll call.
 Song, selected, Male Quartet of Third Swedish Baptist church.
 8:40—How to increase attendance at our meetings. T. S. Thompson, superintendent Pilgrim Congregational Sunday school.

ENJOYABLE PARTY

Given by Group of West End Young People.

After a most enjoyable sleighride, given on Wednesday night, a crowd of West end young people went to the home of Alvin Olson, 2301 West Seventh street, had supper and were delightfully entertained. The party, during the ride, went to Lakeside and other points, and had a most pleasant evening. Those present were:

Misses Anna Anderson, Alma Anderson, Jennie Johnson, Hulda Johnson, Mabel Strand, Anna Chase, Della Olson, Alma Olson, Augusta Vieg, Hulda Peterson, Anna Sagerman and Hulda Peterson, Ernest Lillquist, Charles Berg, Arthur Johnson, Mark Hogberg, Alvin Olson, Herman Olson, J. Thorson and Joe Peterson.

To Build Culvert.

The city has material on the ground to build a culvert over Miller creek in order to properly direct its course at Twenty-sixth avenue west and between First and Second streets. This creek has a disagreeable habit in spring freshets to get too ambitious for its bank and spread itself over the surrounding territory. It is now reaching into people's houses and doing other things which make the residents thereabout impatient and expensive. It is the city's earnest solicitation that the city has decided to do something.

Proved Most Enjoyable.

The installation of the officers of Duluth Observatory, No. 30 at Sloan's hall Wednesday evening was an affair which proved most enjoyable according to all reports. A program was given which proved to every way successful. It was taken part in by Bert Melander, Mr. and Mrs. Lundholm and Dr. Moody and Henry T. Logart. Refreshments helped the large crowd present enjoy itself. The officers installed were:

Astronomer, A. Horigren; assistant astronomer, Carl J. Johnson; recorder and treasurer, A. Thoren; conductor, Fred Frederick; board of directors, A. P. Lundholm, Gustaf Berquist and Emil Johnson.

West End Shortfalls.

The marriage of Miss Rangna Peterson and Martin J. Burke a well known young business man of the West end, will take place a week from tomorrow evening at the home of the bride's parents, 2315 West Huron street. Cards are now out.

The union meetings which have been held in the West end churches during the past two weeks are to be continued during the next week as they have been very successful and there seems to have been a falling off in interest or attendance. The meeting tonight will be at the Norwegian-Danish M. E. church and tomorrow evening and Sunday afternoon the meetings will be at the Swedish Mission church.

Mrs. George M. Jensen of 2302 West Third street, entertained the D. S. S. yesterday afternoon.

John Beckman is visiting his old home in Kokoto a few days.

G. H. Die is carrying mail at the West end again after an absence of some time.

Charles D. Dibble, formerly of the firm of Dibble & Gujer will start in business again at the West end, opening a store at 1305 West First street for the Duluth Horse company.

HAS BULLET PROOF SKULL.

Fires Shots at Head, But Gets Only Scalp Wounds.

New York, Feb. 2.—All that saved Habib Lesser from suicide was a skull of such remarkable thickness that it deflected three bullets which he tried to send into his brain. He is in Gouverneur hospital with three slight scalp wounds, and the doctors say he will recover.

Lesser is a Macedonian, 34, and fairly well educated. Ill with consumption, he had been depressed for some time. He registered at a lodging house at 8 Bowery. He asked the clerk to show him to a room at once, and said:

"What is the use of it? I can't be happy, knowing something is always hanging over my head. I have consumption and must go—why not now?"

Two hours later the clerk heard three shots fired in quick succession and hurried to the room assigned to Lesser. With the help of the startled lodgers, who rushed into the hallway, he forced open the door and found Lesser fully dressed lying unconscious on the bed. A revolver lay beside the lodger and blood was flowing from his head.

Lesser at once was taken to Gouverneur hospital, where Dr. Pastie found three superficial scalp wounds on the right and top of the head, but the skull had not been penetrated. Lesser was quickly revived, and it is said he will be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

Lesser refused to give the authorities any information concerning himself.

MAY SUE FOR GIRL'S DEATH.

Wisconsin Man Charged With Arson and Threatening Mother.

Plainfield, Wis., Feb. 2.—Clayton Brown, a farmer, is in jail, charged with having burned a fine barn and contents on his own farm. Then, it is charged, he went into his house, brandishing a butcher knife and threatened to kill his mother. He then, it is alleged, set fire to the house, which was partially saved. The mother found refuge in a neighbor's house. Clayton was captured after a struggle. It is said that he was intoxicated.

MAKING BOGUS GEMS.

It is an Industry That Requires Large Capital.

The passion for precious stones which has reigned in the minds of men and women almost from time immemorial has, of course, given rise to much counterfeiting of the more valuable stones, says the London Times.

All are more or less familiar with the cheap glass imitations which the worthlessness of the article is so apparent that the eye is not deceived. Few, however, realize to what extent skilled fraud exists in this trade, more especially on the Continent, where much of the diamond cutting is done. The manufacture of imitation gems of specially prepared glass is quite an important industry.

It is now possible to produce in paste an imitation of almost every precious stone which is capable of deceiving the eyes of all but the most expert. Not only is there a superb imitation of diamonds, but a superb imitation of rubies, sapphires, emeralds, and all the other stones which are so much in demand.

due to the injuries received at the baseball game.

The girl's father has engaged lawyers, who have notified the individual members of the team that they will probably have to stand a suit for damages.

The material of which these imitation stones are made is known as "paste." This is made according to different recipes, but usually includes red lead, borax, potassium, carbonate, borax and white arsenic. The greater the amount of lead used in the production of the "paste" the greater will be the brilliancy and play of prismatic colors in the finished stone, and at the same time the higher will be its specific gravity. On the other hand, the stone loses in hardness what it gains in brilliancy. An old-time, but still serviceable, rough and ready test for a stone is to see whether it will scratch or cut window glass, which is, as a rule, harder than most imitation stones.

It must not be imagined that these cheap imitations of the real diamond or other stone can be produced cheaply. This is far from the case. A large capital is required in the manufacture, and the high degree of purity necessary in all the materials employed necessitates an amount of care, and incidentally waste, which is exceedingly expensive. Moreover, the imitation gems have to be cut and finished in precisely the same manner as the real stones, and this is perhaps the most expensive part of the procedure.

Another method of deceiving the unwary purchaser of precious stones is to take a very genuine stone which has been "faked" in some way to make it appear more valuable than they really are. A device commonly practiced is that of cementing two stones so that they appear to be one large one. At first sight there does not appear to be any object in such a proceeding, but diamonds increase very much in value if they are large. For instance, while 2 1/2 carats would be a very fair price for a diamond weighing one karat, 2 1/2 might be a five-karat stone of the same water.

Eastern jewellers are particularly skillful in this direction. An Indian dealer will think nothing of selling for a large sum a beautiful stone, which examination by an expert proves to be, perhaps, only a skillfully prepared piece of little glass. It is not, of course, claimed that there is necessarily anything fraudulent in the skillful preparation of imitation stones to resemble more valuable gems. Many of the most reputable jewellers deal in these stones, charging a price for which no one would expect to procure the genuine article. So long as the customer is taken care of, and the jeweller's confidence there is nothing to object to in the bargain.

A yellowish red stone called hyacinth, and also the blue sapphires, lose their color when heated, and may then be set as diamonds. Similarly, various stones may be colored in such a manner as to make them resemble others of a higher value.

A favorite method of preparing precious stones so as to make them appear more valuable than they really are is by means of the "doublet." This may be done at the request of a customer who wishes to make a finer show than he or she would otherwise be able to do, or it may be practised by an unscrupulous dealer to deceive the unwary. It is said that a great deal of this work is done on the Continent. A doublet consists of an upper part, which is genuine, secured to a lower part of some less valuable stone or of glass. The two parts are cemented together and ground so as to leave no trace of the union. The size of the genuine portion of the stone is seen through the imitation, which is itself made of some paste with a high degree of brilliancy. If the doublet is secured by cement the two portions will fall apart on immersion in hot water. When the stone is secured by holding the two portions together by holding the stone to the light, but as it is usually secured by making up jewelry with the stones, the purchaser has no opportunity of making this test.

Many colored stones are imitated in a particularly ingenious way by means of rock crystal ground to resemble the usual appearance of the particular stone to be imitated, but with a hollow cavity inside, which is filled with colored water. The cavity is then closed by means of a plate of rock crystal skillfully fitted in, and there appears, perhaps, an exquisite ruby, sapphire, emerald or amethyst very difficult to distinguish from the genuine stone.

Every one is familiar with the pretty strings of imitation pearls which can now be purchased everywhere. These are usually made of opaline glass treated carefully with hydrofluoric acid, and it would not occur to any one to attempt to pass them off as anything else. Very good imitations of the genuine pearl are made from mother-of-pearl also. This material is turned to the required shape and polished beautifully, when it has an appearance very similar to that of the genuine article, though an expert can readily distinguish the imitation pearl from the real one.

Ever since the seventeenth century beautiful beads closely resembling the finest Indian pearls have been manufactured. Glass beads of the required pattern are first made. They are then coated inside with a material made from fish scales and having the lustre of the genuine pearl. The beads are then filled up with wax. These beautiful imitation pearls are by no means cheap, however. This is not surprising, when we learn that it takes 20,000 fishes to yield one pound of the silvery white material which is used to produce the necessary pearl-like lustre.

WOULDN'T BE ROBBED.

Kansas City Star: John Olson, a ranchman from Oklahoma, was the victim of a new confidence game last night. The game was new, at least to the police of Kansas City. Here is Olson's story as he told it in police court the other morning when arraigned on the charge of being drunk.

"I was in a saloon on Union avenue last night," he said, "when a man came up to me and said: 'You had better go home or you will be robbed.'"

"I'll bet you $20 your are robbed before midnight," said the stranger.

"I'll take it," I said.

"We put the money on the bar, $20 in all, and then the stranger put the money in his pocket."

"Now you lose," said the stranger, "he walked out of the door. You have been robbed, haven't you?"

"That's the last I remember. I had a few dollars left and I got drunk."

James Horton, a patrolman, testified that he arrested Olson at Ninth and Walnut streets about midnight.

KLEPTOMANIA.

Los Angeles Times: "What do I think of kleptomania?" said William A. Pinkerton. "Well, let me tell you a kleptomaniac story. This story fits, I hold, about nine cases out of ten."

"A New York specialist got, on a certain morning, the card of one of the richest of our Western millionaires. He went down instantly, and found a very handsome, well-dressed man who said: 'I am here, sir, on a delicate and painful matter. My wife is a victim of kleptomania, and, knowing your skill in mental diseases, I have brought her on for treatment under you.'"

"Bring the lady to see me tomorrow morning," said the physician.

"It will be best, perhaps, not to bring her to your office," faltered the millionaire. "The sight of other patients might excite her. I suggest—"

"I'll receive her in my drawing room. Will that be better?" asked the physician.

"Oh, much better," said the other, in a relieved tone.

"And the next day the Western millionaire led into the physician's drawing room a young woman of singular beauty. She was magnificently dressed, but her eyes were furtive and restless, and when she thought no one was looking at her, she secreted under her coat a number of valuable trinkets, including jeweled minnows, earrings in green jade, and various costly bibelots. The physician and the Westerner smiled slightly at one another.

"The physician, after his examination of the patient, told the husband to return the next day alone.

"And when I come," the husband whispered, "I'll bring back these things that she has taken."

"Do," said the physician.

"I will," said the Westerner.

"But he didn't. He won't. He and his wife are thieves, and they have worked their kleptomaniac dodge in nearly every city in America."

JOLLY TIME AT PROCTOR

New Machine Shops of
D. M. & N. Road Are Dedicated.

Banquet and Dance Given in Honor of the Occasion.

Eight hundred persons made merry at Proctor last evening, the occasion being the completion and dedication of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road's new machine shops there.

Employees and guests of the road were present from Duluth and many different towns on the ranges. Many railroad men came down from Hibbing and Two Harbors.

The festive began shortly after 6 o'clock and did not conclude until an early hour this morning. They began with a banquet and concluded with a grand ball.

A special train which left Duluth at 5:30 took a party of 100 to the scene of the dedication. This party included W. A. McGonagle, vice-president and general manager of the road, his family and many members of his staff. In the general offices here at Duluth, Mr. McGonagle delivered the principal address of the evening.

"The opening of the new shops starts a new era for Proctor," said Mr. McGonagle. "Some time ago, I stated that I believed that Proctor would some day equal Two Harbors; now I expect that Proctor will be a greater town than Two Harbors ever dreamed of being. The diminishing of the output of ore from the Northwestern range and the large increase on the Missabe range assures prosperity to the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road for long years to come and make it inevitable that Proctor will in the near future become an industrial center rivaling West Duluth in size and importance."

Mr. McGonagle also paid neat tributes to the men and women who are making Proctor their homes and are so anxious for it to succeed as a city. He declared that, as in the past, the residents of Proctor would be given every possible assistance by the road in making their town, either in the way of practical improvements or in making it a more beautiful place to live in. He also spoke of the excellence of the Proctor schools, the excellent Y. M. C. A. building and other structures and institutions which are now a part of Proctor, declaring at the close of his remarks that the new shop was a dandy.

William Smith, now of Oak Park, Ill., but formerly superintendent of motive power on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, was present and spoke feelingly of his association with the road and the many good fellows who are in its employ.

J. W. Kreiter, superintendent, gave a short address, the new shops meant the completion of the new road. Proctor was bound to grow. He said that now that it was no longer a railroad town, but had permanently located its shops at Proctor, the people would build their own homes there, there would be no end to its prosperity.

William Brown, a veteran D. M. & N. conductor, in a short talk, told how glad he was to see the new shops and how glad the conductors were that the handsome shops had been finished. William Carr, one of the oldest engineers in the employ of the road, told of the growth of the town of Proctor from a side track to a thriving, humming village.

W. G. Wallace, superintendent of cars and motive power, acted as toastmaster and introduced the speakers. The exercises which concluded the banquet came to a close with some musical numbers by the shop hand, comprising one violin, one flute, an air harmonica and several songs. The principal number was "Marching Through Proctor." The organization was very well and created considerable merriment as well. John Hall, a clerk in the superintendent's office, appeared, disguised as a tramp and contributed several songs.

John Kearney and John Cuskey, in costume, gave a good luck and wing dance. The dancing began almost as soon as the speaking and musical numbers had ended. Mr. McGonagle and Mrs. W. Wallace led the grand march, which was the first of the twenty-four numbers on the program. An orchestra of eight pieces furnished the music.

The committee which had the affair in charge were: William McGonagle, general freight agent; Frank Burke, traveling engineer; H. S. Burman, chief draughtsman; F. D. Rydman, chief mechanic; G. T. Preston, general car foreman.

Arrangements: William McGonagle, W. Burdette, chief electrician; J. Brand, foreman painter; W. G. Wallace, superintendent of cars and motive power; J. Brown, J. S. Brown, T. Grimes, J. Cuskey, F. J. Kearney, C. Remfrey, J. J. White, L. J. Mather.

METROPOLITAN—High School Girls.

"THE COLLEGE WIDOW," a perfect play, perfectly played, is a rarity, but people who have witnessed it locally, but this is true of the Ade comedy. Its great run of forty weeks at the Garden theater, New York, followed by its remarkable Chicago and St. Louis vogue, put the Ade and the West squarely together in endorsement of the merits of the Ade comedy.

Henry W. Savage has sent "The College Widow" on tour with its original equipment intact, and presenting a company of unusual strength. "The College Widow" will open at the Lyceum this evening, and will be played again tomorrow afternoon and evening.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS. The High School Girls will conclude their engagement at the Metropolitan with a performance this evening and tomorrow, one in the afternoon and another in the evening. Then it is good-bye to Nat and Sol Phelps, the Flying Bananas and others in the company, who have given the best entertainment the Metropolitan has seen since the famous Jolly Grass Widows cavorted there.

THE CALL OF GOD.

Rev. M. S. Rice Preaches From Text "Come Into Me."

At the special religious services at the First Methodist church, the usual large audience there will be present. Dr. Rice from Matt 11:28, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," which in part was as follows:

"Come unto me." I like that text. Its association is good. About it cluster experiences of great multitudes, who have by its sweet tenderness and loving solicitude been led to the better life. You cannot hold a service of Bible quotations without hearing that verse. Somehow everybody knows it. "Just isn't it that this searching call of God should be the best of all. Now, indeed, men shall have no excuse. It begins right. Come. That sounds welcome. You know just what to expect under such an invitation, and that the personality of the one who calls is the measure to which it is made, give to it all the very breath of God. How it must have thrilled that crowd of listeners who had come fresh from Christ's lips. Multitudes of needy ones were there. Multitudes of just the kind of people of whom it speaks. Penitent sick ones were there. Oh, that's a hard thing to be sick and utterly unable to buy any help. Bad enough to be sick. But to have to nurse your sickness in frail arms of poverty and know you cannot buy needed help, that's tragic with sorrow. This world has so much of its help for sale, that many folks who are really most in need, have to go unhelped. Have the need, but no money. Did you see in the paper the other evening the account of the father who had spent everything trying to buy back the bloom on his daughter's fading cheeks. My heart yearns for those whose loved ones languish and they are unable to buy any help. How we need to help such other. Jesus said about Him, then a great company of needy ones. The lepers and the blind and those who were wasted with disease. The outcasts whom everybody spurned. What a company of misery He looked out over as He spoke. And knowing absolutely all their troubles and sorrows, His great heart went out to them and He said, "Come unto me, every one of you, whatever your trouble, come now and I will give you rest." I am sure they took Him at His word, and walked up for the help, and that's what God likes. He will do anything for trust. If you will just believe Him now, friends, I shall have His reward.

"This word, Come, here used is one of the great words of the Bible. It is found all through the word. Men must listen to such words as these. This invitation is so striking that at once it compels extreme judgment. All great things are reduced to extreme judgment by their very greatness. This invitation is so big, so generous, so absolutely unselfish that at once we assert it comes either from a divine man or from a crazy man. If the promise here can be fulfilled then this is God's word. If it cannot be, then this is such unqualified folly as we would expect from a maniac. I am so glad for the marvelous confidence of the people who claimed in this great word."

The last of this special series of meetings will be held this evening at which time Dr. Rice will preach a sermon with particular reference to young people.

which will be thrown open to settlement this summer, and some of these ranchmen went out into the world for the first time since coming to the basin years and years ago.

The railroad started the men to talking. They found they needed women to help house them—Chinamen wouldn't do any more. Somebody got hold of an old matrimonial bureau newspaper and succeeded in finding a pretty good wife.

"Why can't we do as well?" was the question many of the ranchmen asked themselves and then asked each other.

Then somebody else proposed they join a matrimonial agency and see if they couldn't get as well as the other fellow did. And somebody else proposed that they organize a club of all the unmarried men in the basin and seek in a body for wives for them all.

The club was formed. It has at present 100 members enrolled and every one of them wants a wife. "Just anybody or any kind of a woman won't do," they say. "We want the real article—one who is honest and upright and who can make a good wife for a ranchman. And in turn we will give them our love and respect and everything that money can buy out of this barren country. While they expect trips down to Chicago or Omaha or Denver and we can give them other luxuries now and then."

William Barrow of Meeteetse, Wyo., is the man who has organized the club. Gray Bull came because of the principal river in the basin country. He stands ready to take charge of any correspondence which comes to him on the subject of wives or husbands.

And Barrow did not have to wait long after placing his advertisements for answers. They poured in from all directions and from every state. As usual, New England furnished the largest quota of answers—and many of the ranchmen prefer these New England girls, too. They have reputations out here in the West of being the best housekeepers and all-round women in the country. Lots of answers came from Pennsylvania and Ohio, too. And Iowa furnished and continues to furnish quite a few women who are willing to marry Big Horn basin ranchmen.

The answers, when received by Barrow, are parceled out among the members of the club. If a woman has expressed a choice as to the kind of a man she prefers the letter is handed to one who fits the description. Otherwise it takes its turn and is prorated to the ranchman or miner whose turn it is to get the next letter.

But so many letters have been received that every one of that 1,000 men who are members have already had half a dozen letters and if either a ranchman or miner is not satisfied the women will return to their homes at the expense of the cattle-men.

But it must not be supposed that these women are yet single, although proper credentials being furnished by the women. Before the expense money is sent references furnished by the women are looked into and unless found satisfactory their names are dropped and nothing further written them. An exchange of photographs is one of the first things done. The Big Horn basin is several hundred miles long and about thirty miles wide and the demand for wives extends up and down and through and through the entire area and the Gray Bull club is a matrimonial clearing house of the entire basin.

BEADS OF SORROW.

Bavarian Substitute for American Plan of Funeral Flowers.

In Bavaria you do not send out flowers at a funeral, but cut beads. A writer in the New York Sun. And there is apparently no variety of mourning for youth or old age, for mother, husband or father, that the maker of these tokens will not undertake to express.

Symbols of past, present or future emotions, in every color of the rainbow. Where in a small town in America you will find two or three flourishing florists, in Bavaria there are instead cemeteries bead shops. Even in the cities, in Munich, where life fancies itself cosmopolitan, there are few cut flowers to be had, and these are for mournful occasions only, but everywhere there are showy displays of glass flowers and gorgeous expressions of Teutonic sorrow that will last a lifetime.

To the American mind these gaudy decorations are often at first distinctly shocking. A cemetery hung with gay emblems of sorrow somehow seems grotesque to the practical mind. Picture some dignified man of your acquaintance solemnly following a procession and proudly carrying aloft a huge anchor of glittering beads, with an inscription expressing his grief in purple beads large enough for a necklace.

Yet frequently you see such a sight over the Bavarian landscape. A mourner who no more hesitates to carry this showy symbol than he would to weep in public or talk dramatically in a cemetery or seek the Hofbräu immediately after, not to drown his sorrow, but to find the best earthly consolation.

It is worth while getting a first impression of such a bead decorated cemetery out in some remote Bavarian village, where the touch of civilization has not robbed German grief of its fullest emotional expression; where a lover who would remain true through his lifetime to his departed fiancée, whose sweetheart will try to express his sorrow by a large wreath of blue bead flowers, sprinkled with huge jet tears. And it is not merely the peasant boy who can find satisfactory vent for sorrow in such offerings. The

RANCHMEN
Matrimonial Club of Big Horn Basin is 1,000 Strong.

Advertisements in Newspapers Bring Replies From Lone Women.

Cody, Wyo., Feb. 2.—The entire Big Horn basin has gone "wife" mad and old bachelors who have stood out for half a century against marriage are simply falling over themselves to get in line for a wife. So eager have they become for womanly helpmates that they have organized a club, 1,000 strong, whose ultimate, final and only object is the acquisition of wives for its members.

Every member of the One Thousand club is worth at least $50,000 and some of them are rated at a cool million or more. The Big Horn country, while comparatively new to people in general, has been inhabited by a class of hardy cattle ranchmen and gold miners for almost a quarter of a century, and during those years nature has been so good to these people that they have been made rich in the goods of the world, although cut off until recently from enjoying the privileges of civilization. During this quarter of a century very few women, comparatively, have found their way into the Big Horn basin, and therefore the ranchmen of this section have remained unmarried, as a rule. Several years ago a branch railroad was built down to Cody, on the northwestern edge of the basin, and over this line a number of people have come in, bringing their families and wives, and some of the ranchmen and miners have married since then, but by far the larger number are yet single, although able, anxious and willing to support wives.

Some months ago the road commenced building a line right down the heart of the Big Horn basin, en route to the Wind River Indian reservation, which will be thrown open to settlement this summer, and some of these ranchmen went out into the world for the first time since coming to the basin years and years ago.

The railroad started the men to talking. They found they needed women to help house them—Chinamen wouldn't do any more. Somebody got hold of an old matrimonial bureau newspaper and succeeded in finding a pretty good wife.

"Why can't we do as well?" was the question many of the ranchmen asked themselves and then asked each other.

poet, the musician; the man of culture like alike turn to the colored beads in their sorrow.

One of the most characteristic of these Bavarian cemeteries is out at Dertwang, a tiny, mossy, gray-green village which creeps down to the edge of the yellow Tauber, the smallest old river with the biggest old bridge in Bavaria.

The church is a fifteenth century Gothic edifice, about the size of a family altar in a Rhode cathedral. It has no history and no especial grace, except an altar carved in wood; but one finds a curious contrast between the crumbling old building and the gaudily adorned cemetery, where every monument of stone or wood, old or new, expensive or cheap, carries its glittering burden of anchor, crown or bouquet in colored beads, jet or enamel.

As one turns the corner of the narrow street and first comes into view of the cheerful little graveyard, the impression is of an unusually large and showy outdoor millinery opening, a little garden to display hats, real German hats, for the wreaths have streamers of ribbon and crapes and the crowns have pompons of flowers and the stars of hope might easily be summer garden flowers, especially when appearing in pompadour pink and blue glass with crystal tears on the flower petals.

And the thick, guttural Bavarian pride in these symbols is a source of astonishment to the sophisticated American. They will tell you how the rain cannot injure but really cleans the emblems, and how beautifully they gleam and dazzle in the sun.

Possibly outside of custom and tradition the great appeal made by the glass tokens to the thrifty German mind is its durability. A wreath once given is there for a generation for church-going friends to admire.

JOKE ON HIM.

The late Horace Gilman of Worcester, one of the principal market men of the county, had a great weakness for the game of poker, says the Boston Herald. On a certain night, with his usual party, he was indulging in his favorite pastime, and it was toward daylight before the party broke up. On this particular occasion he lost quite heavily, and returned home in anything but the best of spirits.

After taking his shoes off at the door, he stole as quietly as possible to his room and prepared for bed. His wife had long since been asleep. He was very tired and ready for a good sleep, sat on the side of the bed, intending to lay down with the least possible noise, when suddenly his wife awoke and said: "Horace, dear, isn't it too bad your business requires your getting up so early?"

To live it out, and not let her know he was just coming in, he had to get up without one minute's sleep.

WOULD DISSOLVE THE DULUTH BOARD OF TRADE

Attorney General Young
Institutes Suit, Claiming It Restrains Trade.

Charges Conspiracy to
of Duluth Market.

Charging the Duluth board of trade with having violated the conspiracy act of 1890 by an attempt by the organization to destroy open competition in the grain and produce business on the Duluth market, the state of Minnesota has commenced an action in district court of this county in which it seeks to have forfeited the board's charter, to dissolve the organization and to have the court dispose of its property.

The complaint has been filed by E. T. Young, attorney general of the state and the interests in the board of trade are the people represented in the Minnesota Farmers' Exchange, with principal office at Minneapolis.

Rumors that such an action was contemplated were conveyed from St. Paul in the press dispatches of a few days ago.

The complaint alleges that the Duluth board of trade as now organized and conducted "is an arrangement, combination and conspiracy, entered into by the individual members" who are charged with having conspired and conspired together "to prevent any person, firm, or corporation, not a member of the board, from carrying on a grain or produce business in Duluth, or from buying or selling grain for export, or the milling business."

It is also alleged that the board attempts "to fix and control absolutely the rates of commission and interest charged on the Duluth market; to discriminate in rates of commission and interest and the manner of and facilities for doing business between members and non-members; to boycott or cause to be boycotted all non-members or any member not complying with the wrongful and unlawful pretended rules and regulations; to prevent all persons dealing on the Duluth market from transacting business with a non-member or such offending member, and, finally, to monopolize the Duluth grain and produce market, thereby obtaining the absolute control thereof in the Duluth market and its officers, thereby limiting, interfering with and destroying open and free competition in the purchase and sale of grain and produce on the Duluth market."

It is alleged that in the early fall of 1905 the Minnesota Farmers' Exchange sought to procure a membership in the Duluth board of trade so that it might buy and sell grain here, on the grain course of its business, but that its application was refused, the grounds being that one of the by-laws of the exchange was in contravention of a rule of the local board mandating the so-called "no-conspiracy" rule.

Further alleged that the Minnesota Farmers' Exchange, as soon as it learned of the reason for the refusal of its application, repeated and renewed its application, but that the objectionable clause and again made application, which was also refused.

refused by the local board. It is claimed that the second refusal was for no other reason than that, as the state is informed, the exchange was and is an organization of farmers and producers of grain who desire to facilitate the marketing of their own and others' grain.

Complaint is made that after the exchange was refused a seat on the board, it began selling grain brokers who belonged to the board and that as soon as the fact became known the board, through its directors, immediately determined that the Minnesota Farmers' Exchange was not to be allowed to transact business either directly or indirectly in Duluth. It is asserted that the board has resolved to keep the exchange out of the Duluth market and that all members must refrain from handling the grain belonging to the exchange or from dealing with it in any way, on penalty of being boycotted by the other members of the board.

The allegation is made that by reason of such alleged unlawful action by the board, commission merchants, mills and elevators at Duluth have refused to buy or sell any grain consigned to this city by the exchange and it is absolutely prohibited from using the Duluth market.

The complaint alleges that in further aid of the alleged conspiracy a membership fee of $1.00 is now demanded by the board, and that no person can become a member over the adverse vote of five members. It is also claimed that the control and monopoly of the Duluth market is now so complete that no person, firm or corporation can do business on the Duluth market.

Attorney General Young, to whom the complaint was made by the exchange, says that, believing such information to be true, he has founded the complaint. He alleges that the board has violated its charter and has usurped privileges not within its scope, and that it has restrained and interfered with and destroyed open and free competition in the Duluth grain and produce market. He claims that the board has violated the provisions of chapter 303 of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1895, and has become subject to the penalties prescribed for such violation by a domestic corporation.

The state asks that the power, privileges and franchise of the Duluth board of trade be forfeited; that the board be dissolved; that its property be disposed of by the court, and that a permanent injunction be issued keeping it from doing the acts complained of, and from in any way interfering with open and free competition on the local market.

The statement is made by those interested in the Duluth board of trade that the attorney general's action has been precipitated by people who have been working for the establishment of the Superior board of trade and the tearing down of the Duluth market, and that it is a peculiar thing to find the attorney general of a state in the position of aiding in a fight to tear down one of the institutions of his own state for the benefit of another, making allegations which he states to be in his belief true, when with the slightest kind of an investigation he could have learned that they were not true. It is pointed to as rather significant that he did not verify his complaint under oath, but merely signed it.

To begin with, there is the statement that the Minnesota farmers' exchange applied to the Duluth board of trade for membership, and that the board refused to accept it. This statement is entirely false. The board never having made an application for membership.

As to the assertion that the board has acted in an arbitrary manner, it is pointed out that it admits only such members as it chooses, that five members can blackball any man and prevent his admission and that a commission is enforced. The statement is made that if those were not permissible, there is not a board of trade or a stock exchange in existence that is legal.

Furthermore, the Duluth grain men say, there is not the slightest thing to prevent the establishment of another board of trade in the city of Duluth, if anybody wants to. These organizations are formed under a state law which prescribes their powers and limitations. It is a fact, also, that the decision of the courts of all the states have upheld them.

An inquiry made at St. Paul develops the fact that no action has been instituted against the Minneapolis chamber of commerce, although if the Duluth organization is illegal, the Minneapolis one must be, for it operates under similar rules.

Capt. Monaghan Returns.
Capt. John Monaghan of the steamboat inspection service and Mrs. Monaghan have just returned from a trip East during which time he visited the inspection offices at Detroit, Port Huron, Cleveland, Buffalo, Toledo and Chicago. Mrs. Monaghan remained with friends at Marine City, Mich., during the captain's trip to the states.

The weather is so mild in the East that in Ohio farmers are plowing. The ground is not frozen enough to have a crust.

To make difficulties of trifles is the common tendency. Herald want advertising enables one to make trifles of difficulties.

OLD SCOUT

Shoup of Idaho Distinguished for Services on Frontier.

His Presence of Mind Saved Him From Customer's Fate.

Washington, Feb. 2.—A Western congressman was observed the other day to enter a restaurant seemingly in haste. He did not at once sit down and it soon became apparent that he wanted a seat facing the door. Some one remarked that this was the congressman's habit and recalled a remark once made by the late Senator Davis of Minnesota concerning a colleague, now also dead.

"Keep your eye on Senator Shoup and see where he takes his seat in the senate restaurant."

Senator Davis would give no explanation of his reason for exciting the curiosity of the listener. He was a warm personal friend of the Idaho statesman but, of course, it was understood that there was something humorous or interesting in the idea put forth.

After several days of observation it became apparent that Senator Shoup would not take a seat at lunchtime in the senate restaurant unless he could sit facing the door. If the tables were occupied so that he could not sit facing the door he would not eat, but would wait until a table was free, and wait an opportunity to secure a seat facing the door. When informed of the remark of Senator Davis the grand old man smiled as he said: "It is a peculiar habit and I did not suppose that anybody noticed it. Of course there is no danger here, but for almost twenty years I was obliged to sit facing the door with my revolver on the side of my plate in order to be ready for trouble and the habit stays with me. I always feel more comfortable when I face the door while I am eating."

This brings about a revelation concerning the history of a remarkable man. Senator Shoup was for many years one of the bravest and most active of all the government scouts on the far Western frontier. One celebrated scout and Indian fighter has traveled all over the world giving exhibitions of frontier life, and he gives a realistic demonstration of his kiltie combat with an Indian chief, in which he came out victorious. But Senator Shoup had eleven knife fights with Indians and the fact is known to but few.

His brother Jim was here visiting for a few weeks and one evening he was asked: "Is Jim your only brother?"

There came a stern look on the gentle face as he replied: "Yes, Jim is my only living brother. I had another brother once, but he was assassinated."

When we found him his hands were all cut to pieces, showing that they had been in a knife fight. He was unharmed. It took some time to put them all under the ground, but those bandits did not live to tell the story of their crime. The head of their chief is now in alcohol in the hands of the late Senator Shoup.

If Gen. Custer had been possessed of the tact and diplomacy which Senator Shoup once displayed he might not have met with such a tragic fate at the hands of the Sioux. When he was a lieutenant in the army, on one occasion, he had an experience similar to that of Custer, but he came out of it alive and in triumph. He ran across a large Indian war party and he was in command and captured the enemy.

The late ex-Senator Sanders of Nebraska told the story of the brave frontier scout, and the story seemed to be true. Senator Shoup died one evening to tell the story in detail.

It was somewhere between 1870 and 1875 and was one of the most thrilling of experiences. Senator Shoup said: "It was reported at the fort that three emigrant wagons had been waylaid on the Cimarron river, their camp destroyed, the wagons burned and the people killed or made prisoners. I was detailed to bring in the marauders. After a cold and disagreeable ride in the sleigh and a wait at Garton, the passengers were put on a special train and I went to Grand Forks.

At Grand Forks there was a delay of three hours, and then Mrs. Cameron boarded a train and went to Duluth.

At Winnipeg Junction another slight wreck, occasioned by snow, was encountered and a second hour of delay resulted. This made the woman miss the Duluth train, so she had to wait seven hours at Staples.

Mrs. Cameron says that hereafter she will do her traveling by railroad in the summer time.

RAILROADS

MEETS MANY BAD DELAYS

Mrs. Thomas Cameron Has Adventurous Journey From Winnipeg.

Possible to Travel Around World Via the Canadian Pacific.

Mrs. Thomas Cameron of 1115 East Fourth street, who arrived in the city last evening from Winnipeg, where for the past seven weeks she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. T. A. Smead, tells a story of railway adventure that does not often fall to a person on this day and age.

She left Winnipeg at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and did not reach her destination until last night, arriving there twenty-four hours late. Under ordinary conditions she would have been home Wednesday morning, leaving the train at the union depot at 8 o'clock. Snow caused all the trouble. Several hours out of Winnipeg the train ran into a severe blizzard, and progress became so difficult that a second locomotive was attached to the train. But even with the two of them the cars moved very slowly, and the climax came when the train, on the Northern Pacific, when both engines jumped the track, making the cars useless for the time being except as a place of refuge from the storm.

It developed that there was no food on the train, and a young priest and another young man volunteered to go in search of a house. They found one three miles away, and when they returned to the train found a team, sent by the railroad company, awaiting to carry the few passengers to Garton. After a cold and disagreeable ride in the sleigh and a wait at Garton, the passengers were put on a special train and I went to Grand Forks.

At Grand Forks there was a delay of three hours, and then Mrs. Cameron boarded a train and went to Duluth.

At Winnipeg Junction another slight wreck, occasioned by snow, was encountered and a second hour of delay resulted. This made the woman miss the Duluth train, so she had to wait seven hours at Staples.

Mrs. Cameron says that hereafter she will do her traveling by railroad in the summer time.

HAS A NEW SYSTEM.

Canadian Pacific Rail and Steamship Lines Span the World.

It is now possible to travel completely around the world on the Canadian Pacific railway and its allied steamship lines. The first around-the-world ticket that was issued by the company is being used by Fred Shaughnessy, son of the road's president. He started from Montreal and will, four months later, return to Montreal, after having been around the world without having ridden on a railway. The ticket, which does not belong to the Canadian Pacific company, is issued by the British India steamship company.

The tickets issued for the trip are of cardboard, and can be carried in the vest pocket. Their simplicity, when compared with tickets issued for short trips in the United States, is striking. Across the face of the card is printed "Around the World." It is stated that the ticket is issued by the Canadian Pacific railway company and is good for one first-class passage. The route is: Montreal, Canada, via St. John, Liverpool, Cape Town, Singapore, Hongkong, Yokohama and Vancouver, via Panama, Colon, San Francisco, and steamship lines. Other than this the ticket contains nineteen squares for the conductor to stamp and the names of the foreign cities, which the pursers are requested to cross out with ink when the passengers arrive from these points.

Mr. Shaughnessy goes from Montreal to St. John, N. B., over the Canadian Pacific, and thence one of the company's Atlantic steamships to Liverpool, and thence by rail to Montreal.

Car Service Report.

The total number of cars moved by the Lake Superior Car Service association during the month of January, according to the report of Secretary James Kelly, was 29,057, or 4,146 cars in excess of the January, 1905, total. Such a record is a credit to the association, which has been maintained during the past month, allowing the free operation of trains.

Railroad Notes.

The General Railroad Agents' association held a meeting this morning in the Commercial club rooms. The usual routine business, such as ordinarily comes up at these monthly meetings, was transacted.

The Iron Mountain and the Frisco systems are engaged in a speed war as the result of a contest for the Southwestern mails out of St. Louis. The Iron Mountain has the contract now, and the Frisco, in connection with the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, is trying to capture the mails for Fort Worth, Dallas and other Texas points.

The Transcontinental Passenger association is considering the advisability of cutting off many places to which summer tourist rates hitherto have been sold.

The Norfolk & Western has closed a contract or seventy-five locomotives with the American Locomotive works. They are for both freight and passenger service.

R. A. Bolding has been made general agent of the Great Western at Denver. He was formerly with the Des Moines Short Line.

LEFT NOTHING TO WIFE

But Under the Law She Gets Half the Estate.

Kansas City, Feb. 2.—"I expressly direct that my wife, Emily E. Reed, receive no part or parcel of my property of any description."

This peculiar clause was in the will of Clarence G. Reed, which was filed in the probate court. In the will Mr. Reed bequeathed $1 and no more to his son, Frank E. Reed. The entire estate, valued at several thousand dollars, was left to Esther Keller, a bookkeeper, who lives at the Winwood hotel, where Mr. Reed died.

Reed was a travelling salesman for R. L. Dunne. He had not lived with his wife for twelve years. They were estranged, and she lived in California. Cal. Mr. Reed filed a suit of divorce in the circuit court, alleging that his wife, Emily, had deserted him and gone to live in California. He died before the suit was called for trial.

Although the will cuts the wife out of any share in the estate, the law will give her a widow's share of it, or, under the Missouri law, she can elect to take one-half the estate.

LATE DOINGS
IN MICHIGAN

Two Prisoners Escape From Delta County Jail at Escanaba.

Escanaba—John Phillips, awaiting sentence for highway robbery, and Robert Fraser, who pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary, sawed through the bars of their cell at the Delta county jail Wednesday night and escaped. Both men were to have been sentenced Friday.

It is believed the saws were passed to the prisoners by friends within the last few days. The suspicions of the sheriff were not aroused and escape of the prisoners was not known till yesterday morning, when the cells were opened. Phillips has a long prison record, having served sentences in Michigan and Wisconsin for burglary and highway robbery. Fraser is an Escanaba man and had been arrested before on minor charges.

Hermansville—Robert Hartnett of Hermansville met a horrible death in the Chicago & Northwestern railway yard in the village of Powers by being run over by a freight train doing some switching. It is supposed that Hartnett was sitting on an embankment of snow near a boxcar on a sidetrack and when the cars were moved his clothing caught on the car, throwing him under the wheels. His body was dragged a distance of about twenty rods before it was discovered by the train crew. When picked up he was lifeless. His head was nearly severed and his whole body was badly mangled. Hartnett was 36 years old and a bachelor. He leaves a feeble and grief-stricken mother.

St. Ignace—While making fires just west of the city limits, George Arnold of St. Ignace, met with an accident that well might cost him his life. He had felled a tamarack, secured and hewed it, and was sawing it into 8-foot lengths when his saw "pinched." He struck at it with his ax, and the severed sapling flew back with vicious force, hitting Arnold in the forehead, just above the eyes, inflicting a cut to the skull. Dr. Darby sewed up the wound, and expects his patient to come along nicely. The blow was a glancing one, or Arnold would have been killed outright. He was insensible for some minutes after the accident, and lost much blood.

Northland—William Riley, an employee of the Morgan Cedar & Lumber company at Northland, is dead as the result of injuries received while at work in the mill. He was operating a cutoff when the blade of the saw broke suddenly and one of the flying pieces struck him on the head, fracturing his skull.

Gladstone—An agent of the Finch Telephone company of Escanaba is in Gladstone, soliciting subscribers. Finch has a franchise and right-of-way into Gladstone, as well as a number of poles already placed. It is claimed that there will be a Gladstone switchboard installed in six weeks. The canvass for telephones has so far been very successful.

The Watch-Dog in your Vest Pocket

YOU can buy Health Insurance now. Several good "Accident" Companies sell it. Sixty dollars per year will bring you $25.00 per week, for every week you are Sick.

But, your time alone may be worth far more than that. And $200 per week might not pay for your suffering.

That's why "Cascares" Insurance which prevents Sickness, is worth ten times as much money as other "Health" Insurance.

Yet "Cascares" Insurance will cost you less than Ten Cents a week.

That gives you a "Vest Pocket" Box to carry constantly.

"Indigestion" means food eaten but only partially digested.

"Constipation" means food retained in the body undigested too long, till it decays.

It then supplies the poisons of decay to the system, in place of the nourishment it might have supplied.

Isn't that a tremendous handicap worth insuring against?

What does it cost to Cure Constipation or Indigestion, with their train of small and great ills, and to insure against a return of them?

Not so very much. One 10 cent box of Cascares per week, at most, perhaps half that.

One candy tablet night and morning, taken regularly for a short time, is warranted to cure the worst case of Constipation or Indigestion that walks the earth.

One tablet taken whenever you suspect you need it will insure you against 90 per cent of all other ills likely to attack you. Because 90 per cent of these ills begin in the Bowels, or exist through poor Nutrition.

Cascares don't purge, don't weaken, don't irritate, nor upset your stomach. No—they act like Exercise on the Bowels, instead.

They stimulate the Bowel-Muscles to contract and propel the Food naturally past the little valves that mix Digestive Juices with Food.

They strengthen these Bowel-Muscles by exercising them.

The time to take a Cascares is the very minute you suspect you need one.

—When your tongue is coated a little.

—When your breath is not above suspicion.

—When your head feels dull, dizzy, or achy.

—When you have eaten too heartily, or too rapidly.

—When you have drunk more than was good for your digestion.

—When you have a touch of Heart-burn, Gas-belching, Acid-rising-in-throat, or a Coming-on-Cold.

Carry the "Vest Pocket" Box where it belongs, just as you would your Watch, Pocket-knife or Lead-pencil.

It costs only 10 cents. At any drug-gist.

Be sure you get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company, and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC."

FREE TO OUR FRIENDS!

We want to send to you a box of French-designed, GOLD-PLATED BONBON BOX, hard-enamelled in colors. It is a beauty for the dressing table. Ten cents in stamps is asked as a measure of good faith and to cover cost of Cascares, with which this dainty trinket is loaded. 720 and today, mentioning this paper. Address: Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York.

EGGS STILL DROPPING

Receipts of Fresh Eggs Now Sufficient to Supply Demand.

Strawberries Coming In—Price of Potatoes Lower Again.

With fresh eggs selling for 18 and 20 cents on Michigan street, and with little or no demand for the storage eggs, the market is weaker at present than it has been for years at this season.

In ordinary years eggs are bringing an exorbitant price at this time and are usually selling at from 28 to 30 cents a dozen, according to market conditions.

But with the continued mild weather this year the price has been gradually dropping under the pressure of increased receipts. It took another drop this week and the price quoted at present is from 18 to 20 cents a dozen for the fresh eggs.

The receipts of fresh eggs are almost sufficient to supply the demand at the present time, and there is little or no market for the storage variety.

A number of the big Chicago dealers in eggs have been badly nipped by the falling market, having sold large supplies of storage eggs on hand with no prospect of getting rid of them without taking a big loss. The Duluth cold storage supplies were not larks this year, and they were, for the most part, cleaned out early in the season.

None of the Duluth dealers will therefore suffer greatly from the weak market.

The only price which is offered for storage eggs at the present time is scarcely equal to the figure at which the eggs were purchased last summer, and there is no profit to take care of the expenses of the cold storage plant. The demand for eggs is heavy, but the receipts of fresh eggs have been so large that they have forced the storage stock out of the market.

Butter continues firm in price, and there has been little or no change in the market conditions from last week.

Several shipments of strawberries were received this week from Florida. The fruit was not in season, and the price is beyond the reach of the average purse. The berries are retailing for from 65 to 75 cents a quart.

There is some fresh, hot-house lettuce on the market this week.

Each year the amount of stuff raised under glass at the Head of the Lakes is increasing. It is as yet far from equal to the demand, and large quantities of hot-house vegetables have to be imported from Chicago and Southern points, but the local supply is steadily increasing. One Superior firm has made a specialty of hot-house lettuce this year, and it has found an extensive market in both Duluth and Superior. A few radishes and other green vegetables are also raised each year at the Head of the Lakes.

The potato market is weaker again this week and the prospects here are that the price will not go much higher before the new crop is on the market.

Within four or five weeks the first of the new potatoes from the Far South will begin to come into the market. They will cut little figure in the price of the home grown crop for several weeks at that, but the growers with large stocks on hand are beginning to figure on how to get rid of them.

The market here is not so certain this winter. The warm weather has helped to keep the prices down, and the crop was underestimated by some who predicted a famine in the tubers before the new crop came on the market.

The price quoted on the street at present is from 10 to 18 cents.

Oranges are a little firmer this week. The shipments have been very heavy up to the present time, and the big demand has made inroads into the crop, which was none too large to begin with.

Most of the oranges now being received are of the smaller sizes, and it is difficult to secure the large varieties. But the smaller oranges are just as sweet and juicy, and the quality is excellent.

It is getting late in the season for apples, and the market continues very quiet with a slight advance in prices all along the line.

Poultry is firm and high, and the receipts have shown a falling off, owing to the fact that hens are now laying so freely. Springs are quoted at 14 cents and hens at 13.

Trads along the street has been good this month, and nearly every dealer in the city is able to show a very substantial increase over the corresponding month of last year.

Men are quite as eager as women to cultivate good looks. Every day the blood becomes more heavily loaded with these poisonous secretions, and if the trouble is allowed to run on, the lungs become diseased from the constant passage of poisoned blood through them, and then Catarrh terminates in the most dreaded and fatal of all diseases, Consumption. The only way to get rid of Catarrh permanently is to cleanse the blood, and S. S. S. is the ideal remedy for this purpose. It soon clears the system of all impurities, purges the blood of all Catarrhal matter and poisons, and effectually checks the progress of this dangerous and far-reaching disease. S. S. ## CATARRH FIRST A COLD THEN CATARRH THEN CONSUMPTION

A cold in the head is a common ailment, but it rarely ever stops there. It often grows stubborn and protracted, the mucous membranes, or inner lining of the body, become inflamed and secrete a filthy, unhealthy matter which is absorbed by the blood and soon produces that disgusting disease, Catarrh. Then follow the unpleasant symptoms of "hawking and spitting," ringing noises in the ears, headache, poor appetite, mucus dropping back into the throat, and a feeling of general debility. I had Catarrh for twelve years and suffered agony with headaches, nose stopped up, appetite poor, felt tired and weak, and I had lost all interest in life. I took S. S. S. and commenced its use, and after taking eleven bottles I found myself well again. I have never had any return of the disease and I consider S. S. S. the best treatment for Catarrh.

URGES DAIRY INDUSTRY

C. P. Craig Talks of Great Possibilities of This County.

Tells Some Remarkable Statistics of Dairying in Wisconsin.

"If the agricultural interests of St. Louis county are to be advanced I believe that no effort should be spared by the citizens of this city and vicinity to especially urge the importance of dairying as being the branch of agriculture most admirably pre-adapted to the soil of St. Louis county and the adjoining territory," says Charles P. Craig of this city, who is interested in the Jean Duluth farm.

Mr. Craig has, within the past week, been spending a little time investigating the dairy business in parts of Wisconsin, including the dairy farm belonging to Former Governor W. S. Hoard, the veteran editor of Hoard's Dairyman, a man who has a world-wide reputation for what he has done for the advancement of the dairy interests of this country.

"I would urge this because it brings quick returns and ready money to the man who engages in it, and dairying is surely destined to be the leading agricultural pursuit in this county in the near future.

"In Holland it is said that there is a milch cow for every inhabitant, and we read the statement with amazement of interest, but we do not stop to realize that in our neighboring state of Wisconsin, Jefferson county alone, there are ten cows to every nine inhabitants. We might be still more amazed to learn that the cows in this one county produce butter each year to the value of $2,000,000. The value of the milk is $1,000,000. Add to these figures $750,000 that is realized by the county each year on the hogs, largely raised on the milk, a by-product of the dairy, and the figures appear almost to be unreal.

"If these are true, however, and what is more, there is on deposit in the banks of Jefferson county $2,000,000 of the credit of the dairymen.

"The dairyman, besides supplying himself with food, butter, milk and meat.

"The total agricultural production of the county is valued at $5,000,000. "Think of this magnificent return from a county that is only a fractional part the size of St. Louis county, that has not nearly the area of tillable soil, nor the growing season, nor better adapted to the purpose, nor a market so large as this county. "For my own interest, I have recently visited the dairy herd of the veteran editor of Hoard's Dairyman, a man who will go down in history as having done more than any other person for the advancement of the dairy interests of this country.

"What I saw on his farm in the way of detail that interested me intensely is but small moment to any one not engaged as I am in trying to develop the subject. The great, broad underlying principle and lesson that we Duluthians should learn is just this: that the dairyman has done in a few years past, and recognize that fact that we have just as good an opportunity. "The figures will bear careful reflection. Think of it. One hundred turns annually for the butter sold, $500,000 annually in milk, $750,000 in milk, exclusive from dairy stock, $750,000 annual returns on the skim milk fed hogs and a total agricultural production of $5,000,000 a year, for this one little county."

MIND A BLANK FOR MONTHS.

Goes to Sleep in California and Wakes Up in Australia.

Victoria, B. C., Feb. 2.—The steamer Moana brought news from Sydney, Australia, that William S. Smith, a labor leader of Los Angeles who is a victim of a strange lapse of memory, had been found in a small town in Australia, is being returned home on the steamer Sierra.

Smith awoke one morning to find himself in an unfamiliar country, with strange vegetation and weird gum trees such as he had never seen all about him. He seemed dazed and inquired from strangers where he was. Much to his astonishment, he was told he was in a small town of New South Wales.

Smith said he had gone to sleep in a railway car in California six months before, and the interval since then was a blank. He tramped his way to Sidney, where medical examination showed that nothing was wrong with his mind other than that there was a gap of six months in his memory. At Sydney he told his story to the Labor council, which investigated and communicated with his friends, arranging for his return. His wife died at Los Angeles during his absence.

FIGHT WILDCAT IN A MINE.

Men Surprised by Animal Falling Down a Deep Shaft.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Feb. 2.—After falling 22 feet down the shaft of the Ankerman mine at Bingham, Utah, a full-grown and savage wildcat gave Foreman Abe Heaton and the miners of his shaft a desperate fight before it was dispatched by the men, who were cornered on the 35-foot level of the mine.

The cat evidently entered the mine on the 100-foot level and blundered into the shaft. In its fall it struck a cross-bar and hung suspended for a moment before Heaton and his men were at work. The animal regained its feet instantly and appeared to feel sure of its great fall attacked the men.

The miners, who were surprised by their surprise, seized their picks and drills and closed on the intruder. The night last several minutes before one of the miners struck the cat by a blow from a drill. The men saw that the cat was the animal. Except for a few minor scratches inflicted by the beast's claws, the men were not injured.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE NOW

Actions of Pickands, Mather & Company Followed With Interest.

Pumps Are Removed From Shaft on the Cuyuna Range.

Pickands, Mather & Co. have removed the pumps from their shaft on the Cuyuna range, eight miles from Brainerd, and it is evidently the intention of the concern to begin mining there as soon as possible or quit operations, for a time at least.

From Brainerd comes a rumor to the effect that mining is to be begun at once by the Pickands-Mather people, but it is whispered here in Duluth that they are about to give up the ghost for a while. Time is really the only sure thing which will tell just how the concern has disposed of the particular Cuyuna shaft from which the pumps were removed.

"C. H. Munger, the company's manager, is out of the city at present, and will not return until Saturday.

Following is an excerpt from an article in a Brainerd paper on the matter:

"A rather sudden change of front has been made at the Pickands-Mather company shift on the Silver Olson place, about eight miles east of this city. On Saturday night the pumps were removed from the shaft, and it is reported that the company is making preparations to commence mining at once.

"The report is that 175 feet of solid rock has been drilled here which means that there is an unlimited amount of which is merchantable and much needed in the market at the present time for mixture with a higher grade of ore."

Mining men are interested and wonder "what's up."

FARM FULLY UP TO DATE.

The Electric Light Plant Illuminates All Buildings About the Place.

Mexico, Mo., Feb. 2.—R. R. Howard, a young farmer who lives sixteen miles northeast of here, has an electric light plant, complete in every detail, on his farm. He not only illuminates his residence, but lights his barns and outbuildings. It has a capacity of twenty-five incandescent lights of sixteen candle power strength.

Besides being a practical and successful farmer, Mr. Howard is an electrical genius of no mean ability. He has patented several inventions with him have proved to be practical. His latest invention is an electric mail box signal. It consists of a bell in the house some distance from the road and their mail boxes are placed on the public highway. In many cases a quarter of a mile from the house. This electric alarm will ring whenever the box is opened.

SWINDLE IN TOWN SITES.

Oklahoma and the Southwest Scene of Many Recent Operations.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 2.—Returned hucksters from the Southwest report at hundreds of persons in all parts of the territory who are trying to capitalize on the swindle of the townsite fakes.

The swindle has been extensively worked in Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas and other Southwestern states in the last two years. The fakes are worked in this way: The swindlers pretend to buy out a new townsite and announce that the lots will be distributed by drawing numbers. Shares in the company are sold for, say, $25 each. The lucky number drawn first takes the best lot. The inducement held out is that every shareholder has an equal chance to draw a business lot worth $500 or $1,000.

As a rule, the land taken is adjacent to some railroad. A few buildings are put up, but as soon as the stock has been sold and the drawings held the swindlers disappear, leaving the owners left with worthless shares.

Dozens of these abandoned townsites are to be found along the lines of the Rock Island, the Frisco, the Katy and other Southern railroads. They are overgrown with weeds and as the title rests in others no attempt at farming is made.

Oklahoma has been the paradise of the townsite fakers, as the country there is rich and towns are generally believed outside of the Territory to be a waste of land. The swindlers have been working this scheme on one townsite and is

NEW THEORY OF THE VOICE.

Singers Cannot Hear Themselves and Are Aided by Phonograph.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 2.—A story of great interest to all singers or those who aspire to be vocalists, either amateur or professional, has recently been accepted by many teachers as well as by throat and pulmonary specialists. It is held that no vocalist is actually hears himself or herself sing. That is, not by the same means or in the same manner as do his or her auditors. Therefore, it is argued, they are ignorant of many imperfections and errors which are quite plain to others. This may to some extent account for the proverbial conceit of many professional entertainers.

Dr. Wangermann, who is himself a cultured musician and vocal instructor and was for many years chief assistant to Thomas A. Edison at his laboratory in Orange, N. J., in explaining this theory, says:

"The singer practically hears his own effort with his brain and entirely independent of his ears. The vibrations of the vocal cords in the act of producing a tone are simultaneously telegraphed to the brain, so to speak, and absorbed by it before the waves sound through the eardrums of the singer's ears, as they do those of those of his or her hearers."

"Thus the vocalist hears from within. It is really not his voice as it floats through the concert room that he hears. It is rather that his brain becomes sensitive of certain movements of his vocal cords. He may remain totally ignorant of many imperfections caused by the pulse or his hand, or the position of the teeth or the lips without the aid of the phonograph."

"For this reason phonographs are becoming recognized as of great aid to students of singing and elocution and are not merely for the reproduction of the human voice but for the making of records of students' progressive efforts are now found in the studios of many leading teachers of singing both here and in Europe."

In support of the theory of hearing from within it is pointed out that deaf persons, the drums of whose ears have become entirely useless and to whom vocalization of others would be merely dumb show, can hear themselves sing and speak perfectly.

THE WILD MAN OF PIKE'S PEAK SEEN

By Hunters and Thought to be Missing Alfred Marlowe.

Colorado Springs, Col., Feb. 2.—Running wild on the slopes of Pike's peak, away from human sight or sound, with only nature's law to clothe him—is it possible that such a wild man exists? Noah R. Schwartz and John Hamaker of Colorado City declare they saw such a man and chased him for miles without catching him, while on a hunting trip in the mountains two weeks ago.

The story told by these two hunters rings true and so stopped off. It is a coincidence, Sinclair says, "that he has not seen the darky since." Sinclair stopped within a few days, which, he is free to say, may have been stolen. In short, he can not remember what he did with them. He is especially inclined to give others the benefit of the doubt, inasmuch as he recently sent two diamond studs in one of his shirts to the land-

Young Sinclair, who has a fast car or two with plenty of money and leisure, had a lively time of it since reaching Florida ten days ago. His valet, a negro, who has relatives in Jacksonville, asked permission to take his friends there and so stopped off. It is a coincidence, Sinclair says, "that he has not seen the darky since." Sinclair stopped within a few days, which, he is free to say, may have been stolen. In short, he can not remember what he did with them. He is especially inclined to give others the benefit of the doubt, inasmuch as he recently sent two diamond studs in one of his shirts to the land-

The acquaintance at the club knowing that he was going to Ormond for the motor races and forecasting that they had a chance of seeing him, he followed him from him, followed him here almost on the next train, where they set up in a convenient location that did there has always been a question about his identity. Marlowe is supposed to have started one February morning in 1898 to walk from Cripple Creek, Colorado Springs, in company with Joseph Bradley. The two were caught in a snowstorm and Bradley finally turned up at a section house near Cascade, his mind a wreck from the terrible experiences he had gone through.

He was sent to the insane asylum at Pueblo, and, it is said, has never been able to give a clear account of his wanderings since that time. He has been seen by a number of people, but no one has been able to identify him as the same man who was seen at Cascade.

Now the theory is advanced by the Colorado City hunters that the strange creature they saw roaming the slopes of Pike's peak is Marlowe. The story reads like fiction, but in support of their claims they are earnestly talking of organizing a searching party to capture the wild man when warm weather sets in.

"We first became convinced of the presence when we noticed tracks in the snow leading from our camp at the head of French creek," said the hunters. "We were alarmed, because we feared that ferocious animals might be in our midst, but the following day our fears were dispelled when we saw ascending the mountain the most peculiar-looking man we had ever gazed upon."

He was almost naked, having for his covering only a coat of brown-gray hair nearly a foot in length. The hair on his head was almost white, and he wore a pair of blue trousers and a pair of shoes. His face and ankles seemed to be incased in a scurfy and scaly skin. He appeared to be over 6 feet high and weighing 50 pounds.

"When he saw us he appeared to become frightened and started on a brisk trot. We had him in our hands, but he only seemed to alarm him the more, for he ran and we started after him. The wild man was several miles or more from the place where we were, and he gave the stranger an opportunity to hide. We made our camp and for days afterward kept a watch for our strange friend, but did not see him."

"Prior to our discovery of the existence of such a man and the only solution was that he was Alfred Marlowe. The discovery of such a valuable piece of human history and the fact that he will return to our camp with a force of men to run him down as soon as the weather clears and the snow is off the ground."

CHECKS FOR GAMING DEBTS.

Stopped by New Yorker Who Was Flying High in Florida.

Hotel Ormond, Fla., Feb. 2.—Richard R. Sinclair of New York city has ordered a metropolitan bank not to cash certain checks which he recently drew in payment of gaming debts. He declares that the money they represent was obtained not by dexterity at cards. He has also lost several rings, which, within a few days, which, he is free to say, may have been stolen. In short, he can not remember what he did with them. He is especially inclined to give others the benefit of the doubt, inasmuch as he recently sent two diamond studs in one of his shirts to the land-

MADE RICH BY TIDELANDS.

Lawyer Who Took Worthless Paper for Fee Now Affluent.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 2.—Fourteen years ago Superior Judge R. B. Albertson, then a struggling lawyer, took from a poor client in payment of a fee of $500 a bundle of contracts for tide lands then completely under water.

He has just sold less than two-thirds of the property he obtained from these contracts for $36,000. He sold forty-five lots, and has left three lots on the west waterway and twenty-five other lots that are worth at least $150,000.

At the time Judge Albertson took the contracts, they were not considered worth the paper they were written on. His client had no money, and forced them on him. The title was doubtful, but the courts afterward cleared it up. For years Judge Albertson carried the lots because he could not get rid of them. The recent boom in tide lands gave him a chance to become a wealthy man.

Judge Albertson is serving his second term upon the bench. He has grown up with the city of Seattle, having read law here in early days while working on a newspaper as a reporter.

NATIONAL GETS PLANT

Iron Works Purchases Property Where It Has Works.

Deal is Closed in Boston
—In Plant Three Years.

A deal has been closed in Boston whereby the National Iron company of Duluth comes into possession of the plant and property which it occupies at Fifteenth avenue west and Ramsey street. The purchase price has not been given out.

The buildings were erected in 1889 for the Iron Bay company and were later used for various kinds of concerns none of which did anything of consequence. Three years ago last June the National Iron company, which until that time had been operating on Garfield avenue near the corner of Michigan street, and the plant and property which it occupies at Fifteenth avenue west and Ramsey street, has been a busy place and one of the best concerns which Duluth has possessed.

The move was made because of the continually growing business and the consequent demands made for more room. This increasing demand for more room, and the natural desire to own the plant in which they were working, made the company desirous of purchasing the property, as it is desired to make further improvements in property than they could otherwise make, and which were deemed necessary. This acquiring of the property will now permit them to make the improvements desired, and will leave them with a free hand, knowing that their location is now permanent. It is expected that the company will greatly expand hereafter.

The plant as it stands consists of four buildings, and the property covers 150 by 500 feet in area. The main building is 100 by 200 feet, and is two stories high; the foundry is 25 by 65 feet; the structural shop is 100 by 21 feet; and the pattern shop is 15 by 150 feet. The company has installed a most complete plant, and will make further improvements in the way of machinery, etc.

St. Paul, Feb. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—In an opinion filed today, the supreme court affirms the findings of the Polk county district court in the case of Bonness & Co. respondents vs. William Williams, defendant. The plaintiff brought it on representations that it was covered with valuable timber, and which an investigation proved to be a myth.

DUST EXPLODES.

Malt, Flour, Coal and Sugar Cause Terrible Catastrophes.

Coal is a very combustible substance, and if care is not taken, it will explode. This is especially true in the case of malt, flour, coal and sugar. These substances are very fine and light, and when they are disturbed, they will rise into the air. If they are then ignited, they will explode. This is a very dangerous thing, and it is one that should be avoided at all costs.

RATHER AWKWARD.
Viscount de Belmont of Brazil was dining in a New York restaurant, says the Los Angeles Times. Suddenly he cut down his knife and fork, and uttered an exclamation of approval.

"By Jove," he said, "I have never tasted anything so good as this. It is a real treat. I am sure it is the best I have ever tasted. I am sure it is the best I have ever tasted. I am sure it is the best I have ever tasted."

"She is my wife," the viscount's companion murmured modestly.
At this the young man laughed. "How fortunate I was," he said, "to praise the lady. Yes, I was far more fortunate than an Oxford friend of mine."

"My friend, on the boat coming over, stood in conversation with an elderly man on the promenade deck. Near by sat a woman in a deck chair. My friend, pointing to her, said with a sneer:

"I wonder if that ugly old woman is actually trying to flirt with me." "I don't know," the elderly gentleman answered, mildly, "but I can easily find out for you. She's my wife."

AUTOMATIC LIGHTER.
Kansas City Journal: The question as to which one shall get up first and make the fire on the cold, frosty mornings is forever settled in the home of B. C. ## LOOKED LIKE A BESIEGED CITY Cordon of Police Guarded Streets in Vicinity of Church.

Paris, Feb. 2.—The Church of St. Pierre Du Gros Caillou was the only one where an inventory had been ordered to be taken today in accordance with the law providing for the separation of church and state. The authorities adopted rigorous measures to repress disturbances, and the threatened counter demonstration by Socialists against the Militant Catholics, who gathered at the church, and in consequence, the Rue St. Dominique, on which the church is situated, had the appearance of a street in a besieged city. All the shops in the neighborhood of the edifice were closed, cordons of armed municipal guards on foot were stationed at intervals along the street, and a squadron of mounted municipal guards, with drawn swords, paraded the thoroughfare and kept the crowd moving.

FIRE AT COLBYVILLE.

Bucket Brigade Does Good Work at an Early Morning Blaze.

The Colbyville volunteer fire brigade had some work to do this morning, and they answered to the call nobly. Fire started in a house occupied by A. Erickson and Abraham Nelson at Colbyville, about 8 o'clock this morning, and it was nearly half an hour before the fire department was able to reach the scene, after a long and exhausting run.

Meanwhile the bucket brigade had been at work and they kept the fire down well until the department arrived.

The house was badly gutted, but much of the furniture was saved.

SNAKE GOT LOOSE.

Anaconda Got Away and Terrorized Everybody Aboard Ship.

"One of the most thrilling experiences of my life I went through a dozen or more years ago while making a short trip in a small sailing vessel along the Central American coast and there were incidents enough bunched in that voyage, all resulting from the one cause, to make a whole series of stories."

Wallace Ascott, in New Orleans, buying lumber in the interest of a Chicago firm of contractors, sent with several dealers in a safe near the lumberman's exchange one evening last week, and as yarn spinning was in order Mr. Ascott told his tale, says the New Orleans Picayune.

"I was down on the island of Utilia, off the coast of Spanish Honduras, working for an English firm as a sort of prospector about the time of the experience I'm going to tell you of." Mr. Ascott went on, "and my business completed, I became a passenger on a vessel up from South American ports and bound for Tampico, Mexico."

"The skipper was a Dutchman—everybody on board called him Capt. Hendrick—and the crew numbered six white men and two Indians, besides the cook and a 'nigger,' who was used for all sorts of work."

"I was the only passenger on the ship, and I soon became fast friends with the captain and the white men in the crew, who could speak English, and the second evening out at sea, I had a long talk with the chief while we were both sitting on deck enjoying the delightful breeze and smoking black cigars, and then it was that an astonishing bit of information was

"You don't know what we carry on this ship, but you," the captain asked, looking at me, a half-amused twinkle in his eye and a smile suggested in the curve of his mouth, and I confessed that my ignorance in that regard was complete."

"He told me then that down under the main hatch, securely crated in wire boxes, were two anacondas, one 19 feet long and the other a 12-footer, and a dozen or more smaller snakes of the poisonous breed, and he seemed to enjoy the conversation I expressed in a blank stare."

"I asked the captain what on earth he was doing with the reptile assortment, and he informed me the snakes were shipped at a small port near the mouth of the Orinoco river, in Venezuela, and were to be landed at Vera Cruz and sent on to Mexico City, where they were to form part of a reptile museum."

"I dreamed of snakes that night, and along toward morning, when a great hubbub up on deck aroused me, I sat up in my bunk, almost fancying that I could feel the scaly coils of one of the big constrictors about me. The noise on the boards over my head grew in volume each moment, and, springing from my bed, I hastily slipped on my clothes and rushed out in the passage, intending to hurry up the companionway to see what the matter was."

"The oil lamps in the passage were burning low, and the place was deserted, but I had hardly taken a dozen steps toward the stairs when something darted out of a small aperture, opening from a little compartment forward, and passed me like a streak of lightning. The thing was long and slender, and to my startled gaze, looked like a huge animated cable. I turned and watched it vanish through an open door at the end of the passage, and more puzzled than ever, I climbed up the steps to the deck."

"The captain and all the crew met me, and by the light of the round tropical moon I could see that the skipper's face was as pale as death. 'What's the matter I cried, taking alarm from the demonized appearance of the men and Capt. Hendrick gasped out in husky tones, 'Matter! Why, man, that 2-foot anaconda's got out of his cage and is crawling about somewhere on this ship. He was on deck a minute ago, and we tried to catch him, but he glided through that window there, pointing to a narrow opening, that served for a skylight, and now he's down stairs.'

"I grew cold with horror, for I then realized what it was that had passed me in the passageway a moment before—the squirming, wriggling thing, that I told you reminded me of a big cable. I acquainted the captain with my experience, and the Dutchman said that I'd had a narrow escape, indeed, as had that snake paused to attend to—we would have crushed by ribs to powder with one contraction of his powerful coils."

"I learned the circumstances of the snake's escape. It seems that one of the sailors on watch on deck had first seen the monster and given the alarm. The snake was frightened, and instead of attacking the sailor, glided behind a pile of staves and remained there until the whole ship had been aroused. The captain's first thought was to prevent the escape of the other reptiles, and, going into the hold with a lantern, he closely examined things. The rest of the scaly consignment were secure and untroubled, but the big fellow's box had been broken through."

"The sailors were leary of anacondas and didn't go about capturing the thing in the right way, and the snake escaped the cast of lassos, blankets and sticks of wood, and got down stairs."

"We didn't attempt to do anything until day broke, several hours later, and nobody would dare go downstairs. The only creature roaming around loose between decks, aside from his snakeship, was the ship's big Angora cat, and we all felt very sorry for Mr. Tom, as we were certain that fate would serve him up as the entire bill of fare for the anaconda's morning meal."

"When the sun was up we got busy—

SEALSHIPT. WHY?

Because all our oysters are shipped direct from the best beds on the Atlantic coast, direct to us in Seal-shipt Oyster Carriers. Under this method no ice or water comes in contact with the oysters and no chemical preservative is ever used. The inner receptacle holding the oysters is kept surrounded by ice and sealed—hence Seal-shipt.

Four Reasons. Why Not?

First—The oyster goes direct from the shell to the carrier, and is kept airtight and germ-proof.

Second—The Carriers come direct to us with no mixture of ice, water or preservatives.

Third—They are delivered direct to you by our drivers with all their natural flavor retained.

Fourth—You're always safe in buying oysters from us, because we handle Seal-shipt Oysters only.

When you want oysters, come to headquarters, a store that makes a specialty of them.

A BLACK EYE.

Story of the Man Who Acquired One Innocently.

Is there any agony equal to that of the sober, God-fearing man who has had an eye accidentally blackened and who is obliged to go to business while the changes are rung in the discolored—black to purple, from purple to saffron and from saffron to mud color.

A man of this kind was turning a corner in Park avenue recently when a block of wood driven by a shifty in the hands of a schoolboy struck him just beneath the left eye, says the New York Sun. Within an hour the skin all around the eye was puffed and black.

When the man entered his home his wife did not rush for remedies to relieve him. She just clasped her hands, stared at him and murmured:

"Good Lord!"

He has never been able to understand why he blushed, but he did blush and stammered:

"I—I was struck by a shifty—a 'I'—'Struck by a—ha, ha, ha!' Is the laughter shrilly. 'You don't tell me, struck by a—ha, ha, ha!' Is the shifty ball like the high balls that men talk about? Struck by a—ha, ha, ha!' And she went off into hysterics."

The next day the man went to his office. As he stepped into the elevator the man at the lever grinned cordially and remarked in a consoling tone:

"I had a worse one than that when a fellow punched me in front of Tammany Hall on election night."

When the man entered his office six of his associates sat at their desks. He did not wait for them to discover him one by one, but, walking boldly to the middle of the room, he said defiantly: "Good morning. How are you?" Then to clinch the matter, he added, after the manner of Mr. Toots: "I am well. How are you?"

The six associates looked up at him, looked at one another, chuckled fiendishly and made answer as follows:

No. 1—You remember I asked you to join me in boxing lessons, but you wouldn't. Every man should learn how to save his face, even if he does teach in a Sunday school.

No. 2—Never argue with a lamp post, John.

No. 3—It's funny how some men get quarrelsome when they take a drop too much. It always makes me merry.

No. 4—You ought to have countered with your left.

No. 5—Let John alone. He doesn't go in for it often, but when he does, he's a hummer.

No. 6—Well, every man has got to let himself loose once in a while. If he didn't, something in him would burst.

When luncheon time arrived the man approached the head office boy timidly and said:

"I don't feel like going out just now. I—please go out and get some lunch for me."

The boy nodded confidentially, and said: "All right; I understand," and when the man's back was turned, gave a brief sparring exhibition, ending with

"Do you know who was making all that noise in the hall about 3 o'clock this morning? Several tenants have been complaining."

"I don't know anything about it. I was in bed at 10 o'clock," cried the man desperately, as he started for his apartment on the second floor.

Just at the head of the stairs he ran into a pretty young woman who started back, gazed at him and began to shriek. As he entered his flat, he heard her saying to the janitor:

"It was some drunken brawler."

That night the man wrote to the chief saying that he must take a week off even if he should lose his place by doing so. He spent nearly all his waking time during the week before a mirror, watching the rainbow hues chase one another about that eye and wondering why a man with a blackened eye should be tortured with all sorts of cruel jests while he would have the sympathy of his friends if an accident had happened to his ear or his nose or his mouth or any other part of his body.

WOULD NOT RETURN.

Seattle Post-Intelligencer: During a heavy fall of rain a friend of mine carrying a very wet umbrella entered a hotel to pay a call to some one upstairs. After placing his umbrella where it might drip he wrote upon a piece of paper and pinned it to the umbrella: "N. B.—This umbrella belongs to a man who strikes a big round blow. Back in fifteen minutes."

He went upstairs, and after an absence of fifteen minutes returned to find his umbrella gone and in its place a note reading: "P. S.—Umbrella taken by a man who walks with a mile an hour—won't be back at all."

DELICATE QUESTION

To Be Settled By the Republican State Central Committee
Basis of Representation in State Convention the Problem.

St. Paul, Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the delicate questions to be settled by the Republican state central committee which will meet some time during the first two weeks in March is upon what vote to fix the representation in the next state convention. The question is a very important one, for a mistake in settling this point may stir up factions and start the old bitterness rampant again.

Many of the leading Republicans declare that to take the Roosevelt vote as a basis would be unfair, as he is generally admitted to be a vote in Minnesota from all parties, and that the vote cast for him was by no means representative of the Republican party in Minnesota. Rather than do this some of the leaders are in favor of taking the McKinley vote of 1904, which, it is argued, is a fairer basis than the Roosevelt vote.

This choice, however, would hardly meet with favor in Northern Minnesota, as the vote in Northern Minnesota in 1904 is not at all representative of the voting strength of that portion of the state today. This solution of the delicate problem will hardly meet with the favor of the members of the committee from the northern part of the state.

On the surface of things, the Dunn vote, it is argued, would be unfair. The party vote was so badly split on the head.

A DARING WATCHMAN

Saves Much Property From Damage by an Explosion.

He Throws Overboard Dynamite Threatened by Fire.

New York, Feb. 3.—The government drill scow Hudson, having on board about 500 pounds of dynamite cartridges, caught fire early today and, but for the courageous action of Watchman Abraham C. Quinn, who stayed on board until he had thrown the greater part of the explosive overboard, serious damage to the scow and the bridge, which spans the river at One Hundred Fifty-fifth street.

Quinn was the only person aboard the scow, and when the fire broke out, began to throw the cases of dynamite cartridges overboard. After he had disposed of more than half of them he was forced to quit the scow. Firemen then extinguished the flames before they reached the bridge. The scow was filled and sank.

WITNESSES

To Codicil to Field's Will Are Coming to Chicago.

Liverpool, Feb. 3.—Among the passengers on board the Cunard liner Lucania, which sails today from here for New York, are Second Secretary Craig Wadsworth of the American embassy here and Dr. Samuel Kirshbaum, one of the clergymen of St. Margaret's church, Westminster, who are on their way to Chicago to prove the codicil to the will of the late Marshall Field, presumably making provision for his wife, Dr. Kirshbaum and Mr. Wadsworth witnessed the signing of the codicil.

BOATS MAKE LATE TRIPS ON THE LAKES.

Marquette, Wis., Feb. 3.—After buckling for twelve hours, the Ann Arbor, No. 2, and the Ann Arbor, No. 3, arrived in port last night. It was the latest trip ever made here. Both boats came by way of the Door, and had to go through big wharves, near Plum Island. They left again today for Frankfort. It is the latest trip ever made to this port in the winter time.

BELGIAN SUCCESSION

Might Be Complicated by Action of King Leopold.

Paris, Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—In diplomatic circles it is feared that Prince Albert of Belgium's title to the throne may be disputed sooner or later. King Leopold, as already stated, has a son by his second wife, the Dowager's daughter, whom he secretly married. If his majesty should choose to add a civil marriage ceremony to the church marriage, that son would become "Count of Flanders" and crown prince of Belgium, according to law.

It is possible that to avoid trouble for his legitimate successor, Prince Albert, Leopold refrained from the civil marriage, and it is further stated that he secretly contracted a civil marriage as well as a church marriage, for his majesty does not believe better than to set the world by the ears.

BALFOUR MUST ACCEPT CHAMBERLAIN'S POLICY OR RESIGN LEADERSHIP

Unionist Leaders Have Important Conference at a Secret Dinner.

Little Hope That the Two Will Reach an Agreement.

Walter Hume Long May Assume Leadership of Unionists.

London, Feb. 3.—What is likely to be a historic meeting took place last night when Former Premier Balfour dined with Joseph Chamberlain in order to discuss the leadership difficulty, or, as it is euphemistically called, "the future of the Unionist party."

The event was surrounded with great secrecy, although it appears that both men were prepared for it by discussions with the leading men of both sections of the party. Even the location where the dinner took place is not announced and judging by the Chamberlainite newspapers, which alone were privileged to make mention of the momentous interview, there is little hope that an agreement will be reached and it is thought that the most likely outcome will be that both Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Balfour will give way and thus hand over the leadership to Walter Hume Long, formerly chief secretary for Ireland, who would endeavor to bring about unity in the party.

Apparently Mr. Chamberlain, while steadily declining to take the leadership of the disunited party, practically delivered an ultimatum to the effect that unless Mr. Balfour was prepared not only to accept Mr. Chamberlain's scheme but to make it his militant policy, he will withdraw with his followers and form a separate tariff reform party.

According to information from the same source as the above, the tariff is the chief stumbling block in Mr. Balfour's path and the third alternative is the choice of a new and unfettered leader.

Mr. Chamberlain, Mrs. Chamberlain and their son Austin will leave London today for a week's stay at Torquay.

CHILD-STEALING EAGLE DESCRIBED

By the Kaiser Before a Number of Natural Scientists.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Before a number of natural scientists, hunters and sportsmen, the Kaiser described his experiences in hunting the child-stealing eagle, in Germany called the stone eagle, and the aquila chrysaetus of ornithology, probably the finest example of the whole species in Europe. The Kaiser first described the nest of this giant bird, three feet in height, and having over seven feet of wing. The nest, he said, was simply an accumulation of sticks and branches, thrown together on some mountain ledge, which man can reach only at the risk of his life. "The nest affords no comfort whatever for either mother or babies, but in front is the wall board. On the edge of the rock the parents deposit the birds, hares, lambs, pigs, calves, and, sometimes babies, on which the young birds feed. The little eagles are the most vicious and the old birds divide the meat among them while they are very young. Later they leave the nest to themselves; the more they fight the sooner will they paddle their own canoe."

The Kaiser, several years ago, shot two old birds, and then watched the famous eagle hunter, Count Arco of Munich, steal two young eagles out of the nest. On another occasion an old eagle looked on while his nest was despoiled of young. The imperial lecturer denied that the eagle defends his young. Great preparations are necessary before a nest can be emptied of its contents; sometimes men are at work for hours with the old eagles looking on, or making away as fast as their wings will carry them.

The Kaiser told of the experiences of several hunters, who assured him that the eagle, as a rule, is a craven, and that nothing is further from his mind than to attack man. He sometimes attacks women and children, but the first only when tortured by hunger. The lecturer said he knew of several cases in the Bavarian and Swiss Alps where eagles carried off children. Leo Dorn, in Hindelang, is the most successful eagle hunter in the world. He has just shot his seventy-second giant bird.

PHOTOGRAPHS PROVE UNDOING OF LETTISH.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 3.—Vanity proved the undoing of scores of Lettish revolutionary leaders desirous of immortalizing their connection with the armed insurrectionary militias. The leaders were photographed in groups, wearing their uniforms, and these pictures subsequently fell into the hands of the authorities, who thus easily traced the originals and tried them by court-martial.

WAITING TO LYNCH MAN

Mob of Thousand Gathers on Streets of Poplar Bluff, Mo.

If Negro is Identified He Will be Hanged at Once.

St. Louis, Feb. 3.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Poplar Bluff, Mo., says that over a thousand men gathered on the streets this morning, awaiting the positive identification of the negro "Bud" Jackson arrested last night on the charge of having assaulted Mrs. Daniel Norman, openly declaring the intention to lynch him if Mrs. Norman identified him. Jackson is held in jail, surrounded by guards. It is stated that Mrs. Norman is unable to leave her home to identify Jackson at the jail, and Sheriff Hogg, therefore, announced he would take the negro to the home. The crowd announced its intention of accompanying the sheriff and prisoner.

FIRE AT INDIANAPOLIS.

Indianapolis, Feb. 3.—Fire in the wholesale district, early today, partially destroyed the overall and garment factory connected with the Havens & Geddes establishment, and the stock of the Sellig Dry Goods company. The loss is $75,000.

AN INCREASE IN CUSTOMS

Is Agreed to in Principle by the Moroccan Delegates.

Special Fund to be Created to Improve the Ports.

Algiers, Feb. 3.—The Moroccan conference held a short sitting this morning and agreed in principle to increase the customs duties of Morocco, and to create a special fund out of the customs receipts for the improvement of the ports. The proposals were adopted ad referendum, as some of the delegates were not instructed. Many objections were raised to the proposed increase in the customs.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—Germany now takes a more peaceful view of the result of the conference at Algiers on Moroccan reforms than she did a week ago. Two questions, the smuggling of arms and taxation, having been disposed of without serious differences, the foreign office is inclined to believe that an agreement will also be reached with reference to the police administration, though this admittedly presents greater difficulties than the questions already settled.

RIVAL TONGS TO BE GOOD

Chinese Societies in New York Sign a Treaty of Peace.

New York, Feb. 3.—The "treaty of Chinatown," an agreement between the societies known as Oh Leong Tong and the Hip Sing Tong, to insure peace and good will among the Chinese of Greater New York, was drawn up yesterday by Justice Warren W. Foster of the court of special sessions, who acted as arbitrator, for the societies. The treaty will be signed with much pomp and ceremony next Tuesday. If the warring factions live up to it, the reign of terror in Chinatown, in the darkened recesses of whose mysterious buildings murders and other crimes have been of almost weekly occurrence, and where occasionally the never-sleeping enemy of the feudists has flared out in pitched battles of the street, will end.

Gambling is to be eschewed, no deadly weapon is to be bought or accepted as a gift, and every difference of opinion is to be promptly taken to the Chinese consul for settlement. The agreement consists of ten articles. Each society is to give a bond in the sum of $1,000 to be forfeited through any act of violence by its members.

Despite the efforts of the police, the Chinese murders have been increasing of late years and every outbreak of lawlessness in Chinatown has been laid to one or the other of the rival tong. The Chinese government became interested in the matter and the consul, together with Judge Foster, managed a week ago to secure a truce, which has now led to the agreement.

MAN AND THREE YOUNG CHILDREN ARE BURNED TO DEATH AT PRENTICE

Terrible Tragedy at an Early Morning Fire in Wisconsin.

One of the Children Burned Was Born on Friday.

Mother Escaped With Life But May Die of Exposure.

SENATOR HEYBURN

St. Paul, Feb. 3.—A special to the Dispatch from Prentice, Wis., says: Fire resulting from the explosion of a lamp in the home of Grant Stewart at 4 o'clock this morning destroyed the home. Mrs. Stewart broke through a window and escaped from the house. Her husband, a babe born yesterday, and two other children were burned to death. Mrs. Stewart had not recovered from her illness and suffered severely from exposure to the cold and may die.

The fire started to spread to adjoining buildings and for a time the whole town was threatened, as a strong wind was blowing. The firemen, however, succeeded in confining the flames to narrow limits.

HEAVY CALIBER FOR REVOLVERS

Government Proposes to Adopt a Larger Bullet for Army.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The war department has decided to go back to the heavy caliber for army revolvers, and to adopt a cartridge proposed by the ordnance bureau carrying a bullet of .45-caliber to replace the .38-caliber now in use. The reason for the change is that it is desired to have a bullet with greater stopping power than that now in use. Opportunity also is given for a decided innovation in the type of revolver. The ordnance bureau has invited manufacturers of pistols to enter into competition and submit types of revolvers either of the automatic kind or along the lines of those now used by the army. All weapons submitted, however, must be made for the use of the .45-caliber cartridge which has been adopted. The competition will take place some weeks hence.

LADY GREY IS DYING.

London, Feb. 3.—Lady Grey, wife of Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, who was thrown from a trap, Feb. 1, while driving near Ealingham, Northumberland, sustaining a concussion of the brain is dying. She has not regained consciousness.

LOCK CANAL IS FAVORED

The Isthmian Commission Makes Its Report to Secretary Taft.

Will Next be Transmitted to President With Taft's Views.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The report of the Isthmian canal commission, recording its decision in favor of an 85-foot level lock canal, was submitted to Secretary Taft today. The report is accompanied by the report of the board of engineers, the majority of whom declared for a sea level canal. It will now be for Secretary Taft to express his own views upon the great project in an endorsement when transmitting the papers to the president.

EUROPEAN HOTELS TO COPY AMERICAN.

New York, Feb. 3.—Hotel management in Europe has been Americanized to a large extent by travelers from the United States. The next step will be the building of hotels on American models from the ground up.

A party of important European hotel proprietors are now in this country on a tour of investigation. Two of these proprietors are about to put up new hotels in Paris which will embody the latest American ideas. Washington, Buffalo, Philadelphia, and New York as well as New York will be studied by the investigators.

The visitors made a very careful examination of the steel-frame and hollow-tile skyscraper hotels of New York, as being the most perfect form of fireproof construction ever conceived. They had never seen buildings of this type before, and the new Astor and Belmont hotels and a dozen or more skyscraper apartments on the upper west side were a revelation to them. Herr Aulich of Carlsbad and Herr Gelsdorf of Paris and Trouville, said they had no doubt of the fireproof skyscraper hotel becoming common in Europe, although it might not reach such heights there as it does here. Both gentlemen freely admitted that hotel construction abroad, so far as safety from fire is concerned, is far behind the United States.

DANISH SCIENTISTS

Refuse to Discuss Santos Dumont's Remarks on Polar Balloon.

Copenhagen, Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Your Vienna correspondent reports on an interesting conversation with Santos Dumont, asking the writer to submit same to the scientific and polar authorities here. This was done, but the gentleman said the matter was not yet ripe for discussion. Santos Dumont says: "Wellman asked me if it was possible to keep aloft in a balloon for forty days. I denied that, but offered to build a balloon that might be kept aloft for two weeks. And two weeks will suffice for our purpose." Santos said he would accept the job of piloting Wellman to the North Pole if the inducement was large enough.

Santos Dumont has also told of a new flying machine which he is building, and that might be used for the polar journey. This new airship will be heavier than the air, which is the old idea advanced by Jules Verne. The principle is to fly through the air, and despite the air, not with the air. There will be three screw propellers, two nearly twenty feet in diameter, the other six and a half feet in diameter. There will be also steering apparatus. The engine motors will have 25-horse power, the basket will be made of bamboo wood. Santos hopes to finish the motors in a few weeks.

STRIKE IS NOT ANTICIPATED

Miners and Operators Leave Conference Feeling Optimistic.

No One Predicts How a Strike Will be Averted.

Indianapolis, Feb. 3.—The national executive board of the United Mine Workers of America went into session behind locked doors today. Prior to the meeting President Mitchell said nothing but routine matters were to be considered, and he had nothing to say. According to the figures at the headquarters of the miners a general strike April 1 would bring out of the mines 620,000 men, if the non-union miners of West Virginia, numbering 150,000 could be induced to strike with the union men of the other districts.

HE INTENDED NO OFFENSE

Japanese Leader Surprised at Comments of British.

Tokyo, Feb. 3.—M. Oishi, leader of the progressive party, who, Jan. 21, before the budget committee of the diet, interpolated War Minister Terauchi on the subject of the strengthening of the British army, under Article vii of the Anglo-Japanese convention, is somewhat surprised at the British comments on his question. He authorizes the statement that he had no the slightest intention to give offense. His only motive in raising the question was a sincere desire to "help our noble ally in effecting a most difficult but indispensable reform." He thought the external stimulus offered facilitated the accomplishment of a difficult task.

The Japanese embassy, which called the government at Tokyo on the subject of the Oishi-Terauchi incident, received this morning the official version of the war minister's answer to M. Oishi, as follows:

"The speech of Lieut. Gen. Terauchi, minister of war, recently made in the house of representatives, was, according to the official verbatim report, substantially to the following effect:

"I am aware of the article in the alliance agreement, pointed out by M. Oishi, stipulating that the naval and military authorities of the two powers shall frankly and sincerely consult one another on the conditions and means for armed assistance to be rendered. The government, therefore, will have to act upon this stipulation hereafter, but they have not yet entered into any discussion on the subject."

ACTION ON STAKES TO BE DEFERRED

Parties in Interest Will Experiment With Permanent Holders.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The interstate commerce commission has been advised by the parties in interest that experiments are to be conducted to determine if permanent stakes can be used on lumber cars and has been requested to defer action in the case of the National Wholesale Lumbermen's association and other similar organizations and certain Eastern and Southern railroads and connecting lines pending these tests. Action by the commission, therefore, will be deferred. The railroads already had conceded to the lumbermen the point that they should not be required to pay freight on such stakes so that the only question still in controversy was that of who should furnish the stakes. The matter was held open by the commission to permit the railroads and lumbermen to reach an agreement among themselves.

PRISONER ENDS LIFE IN CHICAGO JAIL.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Rocco Bell, who had been arrested on a charge of burglary, committed suicide in the county jail here early this morning. The prisoner tore the bed sheet into strips and, making a rope of the pieces, hanged himself to the bars of the cell door. When the body was discovered by guards the man had been dead several minutes. Bell had threatened to take his life, and, on that account, had been under close surveillance.

FIRE AT FRAZEE.

Briggs Hotel and Saloon Burned With Loss of $5,000.

Frazee, Minn., Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire last night totally destroyed the Briggs hotel and saloon. The loss is $5,000, partly covered by insurance. The furniture in the hotel was mostly destroyed and the saloon fixtures were all destroyed.

THIS YOU?

GEORGE V. BURGESS.

Whose picture appears above, Democratic candidate for alderman in the Fourth ward, has been for many years a resident of Duluth and of that ward, and has seen the city grow from a village to its present splendid proportions.

If elected, the interests of the ward will be his interests and he will advance them in every way possible. To Park Point residents, of whom he is one, he will say that he will always labor to secure facilities commensurate with their needs. He believes that all street railways in the city should be consolidated and that not more than one fare should be charged for any ride within the limits of the city.

He is in favor of municipal ownership of all public utilities. The story has been circulated by some of those opposing the candidacy of Mr. Burgess that he is interested in the Duluth General Electric company. All such statements are false. Mr. Burgess is a member of the Burgess Electric company, a company which furnishes electrical supplies, does wiring, etc., but it has absolutely no connection with the Duluth General Electric company and is entirely independent of it in every way, which is a power company only.

BISBEE STOCKS ARE STRONGER

Trading in Them is More Lively Than It Has Been.

Trading was not quite so brisk in the copper market today as it has been. North Butte opened at $38 and fell to $36.50, closing at $36 bid and $37 asked. Anaconda opened at $116 and closed at $114.50 bid and $115.50 asked. United Copper closed at $74 bid and $74.50 asked. The general tone of the Bisbee stocks was stronger. Calumet & Arizona sold at $121 and closed at $121 bid and $122 asked. Calumet & Pittsburgh sold at $37 and closed at $37 asked. Denn-Arizona was inactive and closed at $25.50 bid and $26 asked. Lake Superior & Pittsburg was inactive and closed at $48 bid and $49 asked, and $49.50 asked. Black Mountain was inactive and closed at $12.50 bid and $12.75 asked. Keweenaw sold at $17.75 asked, Warren sold at $13 and closed at $13 asked. Copper Queen of Idaho closed at $3 asked and Sullivan at $2.50 asked.

GOOD WORD FROM GOOD MAN FOR ALD. MCEWEN.

ALD. W. E. MCEWEN.

W. E. McEwen, Democratic candidate for alderman of the Fifth ward, is confined to his home on account of sickness. While convalescent he is unable to make a personal appeal and friends and admirers are, therefore, his candidates. Among the good things being done for him is a letter which J. W. Reynolds is sending to his friends in the ward and which contains a splendid testimony from Alderman Watson S. Moore.

"Without solicitation from any one and solely in the interest of good government in our city, I take the liberty to write to urge you to support Mr. Wm. E. McEwen."

THE PEOPLE WILL RISE

And Follow Bryan to Victory, Says Representative Kenley.

Hepburn Rate Bill Still Under Discussion in House.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Less than a score of members were in their places when the house met at 11 o'clock today to continue discussion of the Hepburn railroad rate bill.

The rate debate was opened by Mr. Clayton (Ala.). Instead of being a new thing, he declared, the legislative regulation of interstate commerce to be as old as the common law. The states have always exercised this power to the full extent. Congress, he said, has the power to regulate interstate commerce, and ought to exercise it in restraint of the railroads, and for the benefit of the public. The necessity for the legislation is brought about by the unjust discriminations of the roads through rebates and terminal charges.

Mr. Clayton maintained that the Elkins bill, preventing rebates, could not be enforced without an espionage which was un-American, and the present bill would make it possible to obtain information without resort to the spy system, because the books of railroad corporations will be open to the agents of the commission.

Whether it be commission, anarchy or not, the time will come when the people will rise and follow William J. Bryan to victory. This was the opening prediction of Mr. Clayton (Ala.), who followed Mr. Clayton for the bill.

He was replying to Mr. Sibley's recent characterization of the pending bill. The maximum rate, he said, settled affirmatively the constitutional question of granting the power to fix rates.

"I believe in his honesty and sincerity," he said, "and I believe he has adhered to his original intention to give power to establish a reasonable rate and left the question of the maximum rate out of consideration."

Mr. Esch (Wis.) said there were five ages in railroad legislation: the age of competition, the age of government control, and there is the fifth, the age of government ownership.

Mr. Esch took issue with Mr. McCall, saying that the president had been induced in a non sequitur in his rate legislation recommendation. That the recommendations of the committee, under conditions, he showed by reviews of high rates, rebates and over-capitalization of railroads. The total of $12,000,000,000 capitalization, he declared to be half fictitious.

His analysis of business of the four great express companies was made by Mr. Esch, who maintained that the bill gave the commission authority over this instrumentality of transportation. The express companies, he said, carried freight at rates charged three or four times higher than freight. These companies, he said, had been carrying freight at rates charged three or four times higher than freight.

SURE OF ELECTION

Frank Jordan, the Popular Candidate for Third Ward.

The above is an excellent likeness of Frank Jordan, candidate for alderman for the Third ward on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Jordan has been a resident of Duluth and a taxpayer for the past fifteen years, and is fully qualified to look after the interests of those he represents in a careful and conscientious manner. A thorough canvass has been made for Mr. Jordan and his friends are confident of his election.

land. Mr. Yarn went there several years ago, apparently poor and friendless, and was always fond of the sweet little girl who is so crippled as to be unable to walk. Her parents gave to him a great deal, and as he became too feeble to earn a living, furnished his entire support, though they are themselves people in very modest circumstances. During his last illness, frequent attempts were made to persuade him to be removed to the Marsh home, but all to no purpose. He gently but firmly refused, saying he would rather die in the little hut than be carried there. A few hours before his death he presented Mr. March with the will, also a chest protector, between the folds of which was a diamond ring valued at $500. It is believed that he had become deranged and had not heard his wealth from pure miserly intentions.

Beneath his rough coat was stored no less than seven broadcloth suits of clothing, evening suits, silk stockings, patent shoes, and a complete wardrobe for a gentleman. He was always kind and courteous and his manner was that of a gentleman.

BOATS NAMED BY H. COULBY

Names for Four New Six-Hundred Footers Are Selected.

President Howard Coulby of the Duluth Steamship company has selected the names for the four new six-hundred footers which are being built for the concern by the American Shipbuilding company and will be delivered in 1906.

The first boat to come out will be christened the J. Pierpont Morgan, in honor of the well known New York financier. The second steamer will be named the J. D. Rockefeller, after the Standard Oil company and at the head of the Amalgamated Copper company. The third will be named the J. H. P. Henn, the Chicago capitalist.

Peter A. B. Wier is the name selected for the fourth steamer. Mr. Wier is a large landowner in the city and is largely interested in street railways. These new boats will be among the largest and best equipped ever built on the lakes and all of them, it is expected, will make a record in the carrying of cargo and passengers.

They are being constructed at the South Chicago yards of the Shipbuilding company.

PROMINENT OFFICIALS

Of United States in Chicago to Attend Packers' Trial.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Attorney General William H. Taft and Chief of the Secret Service John E. Wilkie arrived in Chicago today for a conference with District Attorney Morrison.

The attorney general and Mr. Morrison had an extended conversation regarding the progress of the trial, and will meet again before the case opens Monday.

CHINKS VISIT COLUMBIA. New York, Feb. 3.—The visiting high commissioners of the empire of China, Viceroy Tuan Fank and Tai Hung Chi, inspected Columbia university today. They manifested especial interest when shown through the women's college and told of the great progress in that department during recent years.

MAY ADOPT TURBINES. Washington, Feb. 3.—The board of construction of the navy has about decided to recommend the installation on board either the South Carolina or the Michigan, the two new battleships now being designed of turbine machinery. The question has been under consideration for some time. It is probable that bidders will be invited to offer their own designs for such machinery.

SITUATION UNCHANGED

Prospects That Cullum Will be Returned by Big Majority.

Chances Are Good for Very Heavy Vote Being Cast.

The end of the week sees little change in the political situation, from what it was last Monday.

Everybody appears to have made up his mind which way to vote, and while the canvass of the city is a very thorough one, the arguments of the campaigners appear to have little effect.

"Why, of course, we are going to vote for Cullum. What's the use of talking about it?" seems to be the attitude of the great mass of independent voters, and the mayor's friends predict that his plurality will surprise everybody when the votes are counted Tuesday night.

The Cullum workers find it hard to restrain themselves from becoming too enthusiastic and over content, so many encouraging assurances are received.

The third ward, which for a time was thought might be a center of dissatisfaction, is now looked upon as one of Cullum's strongholds, and odds of 2 to 1 are being offered for the mayor to carry it. The First, Second, Fifth, Sixth and Eighth are also expected to return frequent majorities for Cullum.

The Seventh ward is regarded as doubtful. Hugo carried it two years ago, but Cullum's friends claim he will carry it this year, in spite of the fact that it is a strong Republican stronghold.

The Fourth ward, which is Trevillion's home ward, may give him a majority, but it is hard to see what the residents of the Point have contributed to the campaign. The city attorney, these were the two chief thorns in the sides of the Park Point residents, and now they are removed.

The aldermanic fights are in about the same shape as they were a week ago, with the exception of the Third and Fifth wards. In these two wards the Democratic candidates have been making big gains, and it is now claimed that the election of both Jordan and McEwen is assured. In the Sixth ward, a Democrat is also likely to win out, Mark apparently having a lead over his antagonist.

The other wards are very uncertain. Ole Jensen probably has the most difficult fight on his hands of any of the candidates, but he has been making good headway in the last few days. The Fourth ward looks like anybody's fight, and, out in the Eighth there is one of the clearest, closest fights in the city in progress between Eklund and Poulsen.

The vote should be a heavy one. The registration is the largest ever brought out for a municipal election in Duluth. Interest has been steadily increasing since the last registration day, so that there is no reason why the vote should not run up close to the total registration.

PRAIRIE FIRE IN CHICAGO SUBURB

Blaze is Spreading to Small Dwellings in Austin.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—A fire which started in some dried grass threatened a large section of the residential district of the suburb of Austin with destruction today. The fire, which was insignificant when first discovered, spread rapidly, and within an hour after its discovery the fire companies located in the suburb had been compelled to close a portion of the street.

The fire was still unchecked, and was advancing steadily upon a portion of the residence district, with very little in its path except small frame dwellings.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

La Porte, Ind., Feb. 3.—Mrs. Eliza Hull, wife of Prof. Lawrence C. Hull, commander of Orchard Lake Military academy, Michigan, and daughter of Dr. N. S. Darling of La Porte, is dead at Boulder, Colo., where she went for her health. She was a graduate of Michigan university, and had held the chair of history at Wisconsin state normal and Wellesley college. Her burial will take place here.

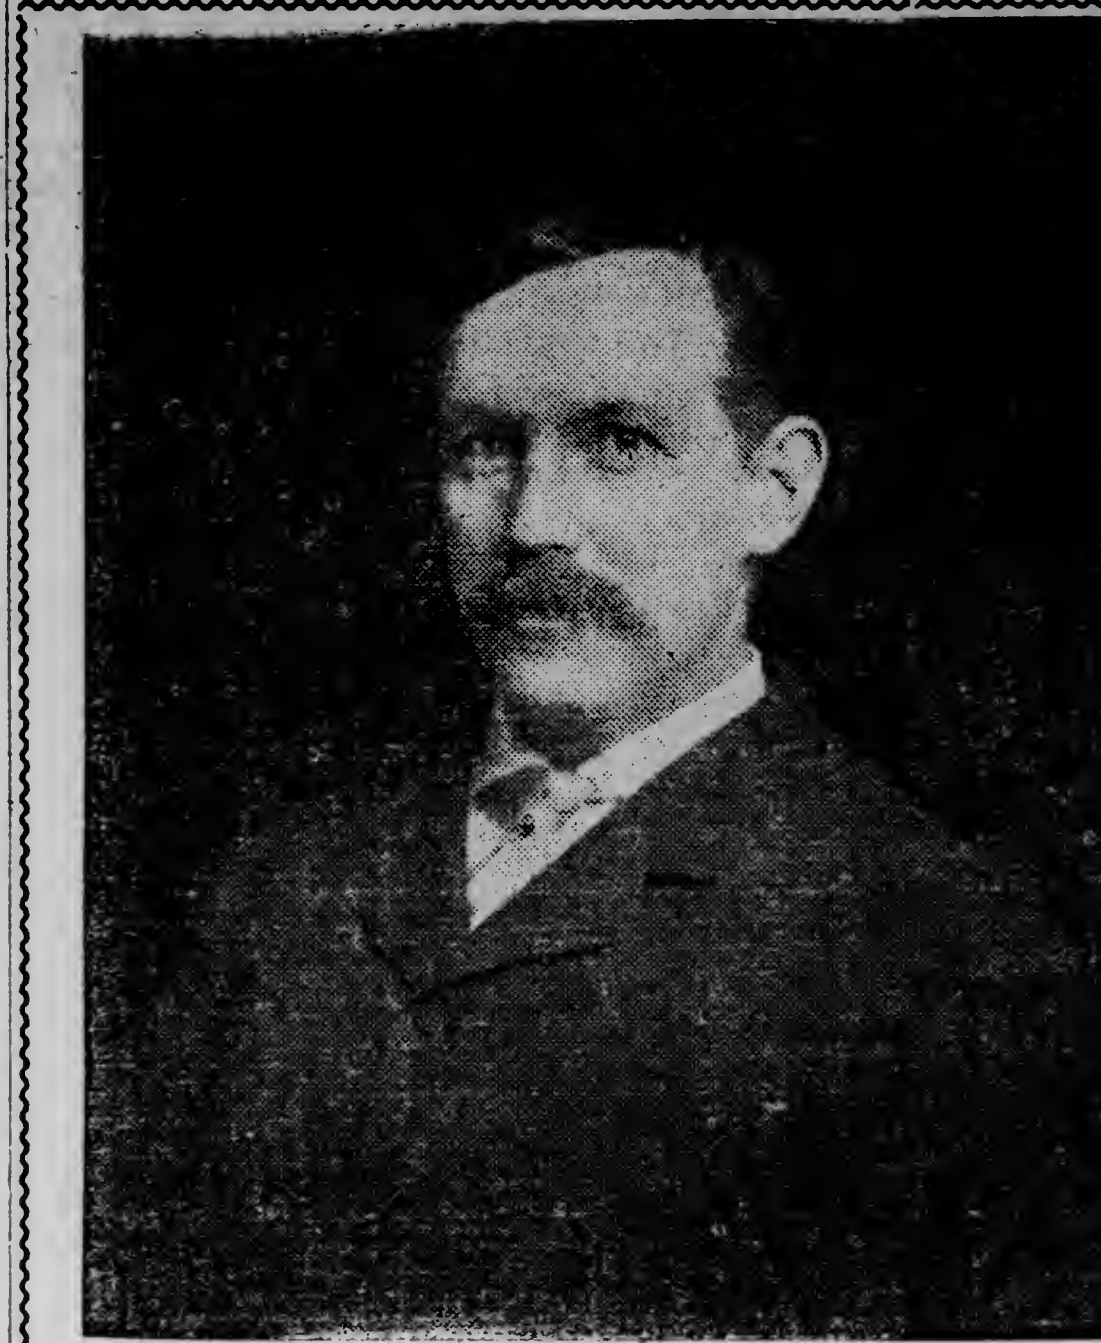

La Crosse, Wis., Feb. 3.—Thomas Minshall, postmaster at La Crosse, Minn., for forty consecutive years, 1859 to 1899, died at the age of 82 years. He held the office of longest of any postmaster in the United States when consecutive years are considered. At the St. Louis and Chicago exhibitions he received the honor of being the oldest postmaster in the country.

THOS. F. TREVILLION.

To the Voters of Duluth:

I have served twelve consecutive years in the common council, and have been engaged in business in Duluth for over fifteen years, and I believe it can be said of me by all men and people with whom I have done business, that my word is as good as my bond.

I did not seek and only consented to accept a nomination and give my party representation after two prominent Republicans had declined a nomination from purely business and personal reasons, and I believe that I am entitled to the loyal support of all Republicans.

Mayor Cullum has had the advantage of his official position and extensive newspaper advertising in his desperate effort to prevent the Republican party from making a nomination against him, in attracting your notice to him, while I, without the backing of powerful newspapers, must appeal to you and the people at large by open letter. All I ask is fair play and an impartial consideration at your hands.

I do not claim all the attributes of a saint, but I am no pharisee.

I believe not only in "Good Government" but also in fair and impartial government. I do not believe in that kind of "Good Government" which touches only in spots and is inaugurated only in campaign times and preached for political purposes; and if elected mayor of the city of Duluth, I will give the city a good, impartial, business administration without fear or favor of any person or interest. I will counsel with the best men of my party and give the city a better and more satisfactory administration than it has today.

I believe in municipal ownership of public utilities. I believe in the extension of water and light service to the settled portions of the city as fast as possible.

I believe that all reasonable complaints should be given a fair and full hearing, and all appointments should be made according to qualifications.

I have made no promise of any appointment, in case I shall be elected.

If elected mayor, it will be my policy to carry out the foregoing and such other matters of public interest as shall from time to time arise in the furtherance of good government and the best interests of the city.

He told me frankly that he thought there was no hope, and that I could not be cured. He proposed an operation, but I remembered reading of the remarkable cures credited to Warner's Safe Cure, and sent out for a bottle. I soon began to recover. My kidneys are completely cured. ## COMMANDER REPRIMANDED

Young of Bennington Was Remiss in His Duties.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Although not sentenced to "public" reprimand, there was today made public the reprimand addressed by Secretary Bonaparte to Commander Lucien Young, who was in command of the Bennington at the time of an explosion of her boilers last summer. Commander Young was tried by court-martial and convicted of remissness of duty in that he failed to sign the steam log of the Bennington.

After quoting that portion of the navy regulations outlining the duties of a commanding officer, the secretary says: "These duties include the obligations of a good example to all subject to his authority, the responsibilities include a share in the blame incurred by any accident of the ship which may be due to his neglect or failure to see that his own duties because they seem to think lightly of his."

"In your case, sir, there was the greatest reason why you should have been careful to comply in letter and spirit with every provision of the regulations, because your brilliant services in the past and your merited reputation for seamanship and gallantry would surely render failure on your part to do all that an officer should do the more subversive of."

The military courts are busy with the trial of the soldiers and sailors who participated in the recent mutinies. The trial of the soldiers will begin next week. The evidence thus far obtained tends to show that the mutinies were largely attributable to bad service conditions and to the incompetency of the officers.

VICTORY IS IMPORTANT

Decision in Viaduct Case May Have Far Reaching Effect.

Legal Battle Will Save City Many Thousands of Dollars.

In the opinion of the city authorities, it was one of the most important legal victories ever won by the city, when Judge Cant handed down his decision yesterday in the case between the Northern Pacific railway and the city of Duluth.

The case was one of long standing, but it was pushed through to a successful termination by Bert Foster, the city attorney.

The determination of the case in favor of the city yesterday, if affirmed by the supreme court, will go a long way toward solving the troubles of the Lake Avenue viaduct and the residents. For some time the street car service on the avenue has been withdrawn on account of the dangerous condition of the viaduct. This has necessarily interfered very materially with the convenience and comfort of those persons who would have use for it, but the city was handicapped for want of funds to make the necessary permanent repairs. The temporary repairs cost almost half as much, and if the court should have decided the viaduct case against the city after the temporary repairs had been contracted for, it would have been almost a total loss to the city, as good business policy would have doubtless persuaded the council to order permanent repairs at once, instead of the temporary makeshifts. The city attorney announced to the council two or three weeks ago that he had secured a board of public works to delay letting the contract for the temporary repairs until Judge Cant had announced his decision, as the council might want to proceed differently after the decision was made.

The determination of the question in favor of the city is considered another factor in the solution of the present difficulties with the Lake Avenue viaduct, but a saving of many thousands of dollars to the city in the future. Judge Cant's memorandum, which was filed with his decision, indicates that he decided the case on the broad proposition that a railroad company must make a crossing safe, which by the railroad's own admission, it has not done. The decision is therefore far-reaching. It may apply to the Sixth Avenue viaduct, the Garfield Avenue viaduct, the Jewell street viaduct, and similar structures, as well as the Lake Avenue viaduct. Expenditures for these structures and their repairs will now have to be made by the railroad companies instead of from the general fund of the city. The decision is therefore of great importance to the city, as it will save well as the people of Lake Avenue and Park Point. It is expected that the council will take action on the Monday night to begin proceedings to compel the railroad company to make the necessary repairs to the viaduct which have become necessary since the action just decided was commenced.

THE MEETINGS CLOSE.

Dr. Rice Concludes Revival Services—Conversions Number 120.

The special revival services which have been in progress at the First M. E. church during the entire month of January, closed yesterday with a very large audience in attendance. The meetings were of intense interest and the new converts numbered more than one hundred and twenty.

Throughout the entire series, Dr. Rice has done all the preaching. His sermons have been of a high order, and have attracted a large audience. One of those interested in the meetings said today: "He has ever inspired me with a desire to be a Christian, but to the person of Jesus Christ. He has interest to the general taxpayer. Methodist altar. Nobody could take exception to any sermon of Dr. Rice. He is a preacher and to be an ex-communicant. No such religious awakening has ever occurred in the history of this church."

Dr. Rice's last sermon, which was given yesterday, was a powerful one, and he will preach for two weeks (exclusive of Sunday) at the services of all churches at the West end.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its use as a preservative of the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the poisons and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal eventually cleans and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood.

It is the only remedy that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I will cheerfully endorse Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

Hood's

Sarsaparilla enjoys the distinction of being the greatest curative and preventive medicine the world has ever known. It is an all-round medicine, producing its unequalled effects by purifying, vitalizing and enriching the blood on which the health and strength of every organ, bone and tissue depend. Accept no substitute for Hood's, but insist on having Hood's AND ONLY HOOD'S.

King, which arrived here today, had on board a large crew of seven men of the New York brig Irene, which was wrecked in a gale off Cape Lookout on Jan. 28. The crew were rescued by the schooner Henry B. Fiske, from which they were transferred to the Storm King in Vineyard sound yesterday.

COURT CLERK IS INDICTED

Linn of Cook County, Ill., Charged With Larceny and Forgery.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—John A. Linn, a clerk of the superior court of Cook county, was today indicted by the grand jury, which has charged him with larceny, embezzlement and forgery. Twenty-five separate indictments were returned against Linn. One of them charges that he entered into conspiracy with Frank J. Chasler, a clerk in his office, to defraud Cook county of $50,000 by false pretenses; another that he embezzled money and warrants belonging to the county, valued at $500; nine indictments allege that he committed larceny against the county, by taking different sums of money ranging from $10 to $1,800; twelve indictments declare that Linn forced county warrants for sums ranging between $12 and $1,000, and that he charged that Linn entered into a conspiracy with others to persuade Chasler to remain away from his office, and to refrain from giving testimony; and another that he withheld the record of his office from his successor.

THE POLICEMEN WILL DANCE

Annual Ball of Duluth's Finest at Armory Monday Evening.

Greatest Social, Acrobatic and Gastronomic Event of the Year.

While the average voter is tempted death in horrible forms by inhaling campaign cigars next Monday night, Duluth's "most" will be shaking its heels at the annual dance in the Armory.

The policemen's annual ball is no ordinary event. When the blue coated army of chivalry and courage comes with a galaxy of beauty to woo the neighborhood, the result is a gayest of beautiful colors, and to the dreamy strains of ravishing waltzes; when beauty and courage sit down together to discuss chicken salad, turkey, olives, coffee and all the other accompaniments of the festive banquet, when brilliant salutes of courtesy and a universal repartee drop from silver-tongued orators; when the flower of the finest police force in the world takes a brief respite from stern duty, and shedding the mask of the protector of the peace, assumes the light, graceful manner of the ballroom, then you get the real goods in the line of a ball.

The policemen's hall is no cheap affair. It is the real, genuine article, all wool, four-ply and a yard wide. The guests do not belong to the set that is considered fair game for Col. Mann, of Town Topics infamy, but with every ticket goes a guarantee of a full meal and a full dance program. The rest of the guests, however, are the men who cannot have a good time at the policemen's hall is about slated for the festive, the shippers and the dress-gown of society.

The proceeds of the dance go to the Police Relief fund for the assistance of the men and their families, and it is now the only source of income the fund has. Every widow of a member of the association receives $100, and every member, whose wife dies, receives $100 toward the funeral expenses. The fund is separate from the police pension fund, created at the last session of the legislature.

Special police, sworn in for the election, will patrol the dance, and it is six hours that the dance is in progress, and the sergeants and lieutenants will alternate on the watch at headquarters, changing every half hour, so that no man need miss much of the evening's enjoyment.

ECHOES OF HARMONY.

Anoka Free Press: The Free Press has several sessions called attention to the fact that the Jacobson governorship boomlet was originated by the Republican traitors who assassinated the head of their own ticket in the last campaign. It now desires to add that the Jacobson candidacy has absolutely no other life than that which it has taken from the Republican John.

North Branch Review: It's a cinch that neither Bob Dunn or L. W. Collins will be re-elected next fall.

Pine City Pioneer: Will Block and the other members of the Minnesota State convention fricas? We hope not.

Gray Eagle Gazette: "Jacobson for governor." That seems to be the cry of the people, but not the cry of the politicians. Minnesota must rule or ruin.

Halstad Reporter: The state political pot has begun to boil. Here's hoping that the pot of 1896 does not boil over like that of 1892.

St. Vincent New Era: The push of noble traitors who reformed the party at the state convention of the governorship, built better than they knew for Governor Johnson. No matter who the Republican nominee is, Governor Johnson will hang on to a lot of the Republican vote. The Republican vote is a lot of numbers at his election, and no other Republican can cut into the Democratic vote as Mr. Dunn did.

Minneapolis Telegram: Harmony would come when some people die—only there are others who grow up.

Remond Sentinel: Hennepin county for Governor! The Republican ticket, says, wouldn't be fun? If they nominate a man for governor, they can't expect to win any county in the state would be ground.

Anoka Union: The Dunn newspapers are making a great play as to their loyalty to the party, and are throwing dirt on those who repudiated their candidate and defeated him. If they want to win, they can have it, to their heart's content.

Atkin Republican: The Minneapolis Republicans are going to have a harmony of opinion on the subject of the Harmonious nomination. The Harmonious nomination is to be the watchword and covers are to be laid for twice hundred. The Harmonious nomination is to be the watchword and covers are to be laid for twice hundred.

It was summer. The afternoon was cool and refreshing, one of the sort to make campers really glad that circumstances had been such as to allow them to spend the warm months on Park Point. Campers and people from town strolled about among the trees, or stood on the beach, watching the big lake boats as they ploughed through the sun-lit waters. There was just enough breeze to send little ripples chasing over the surface of the lake, catching up the sunbeams and tossing them about like diamonds.

A good many of these loungers were in evidence. They were lying or sitting on the clean sand in groups, in pairs and singly, but mostly in pairs. Pretty well down toward the pavilion two women occupied a portion of the landscape. They appeared to be strangers judging by the length of sand that separated them, yet they were within easy speaking distance of each other. Both were rather young. The most youthful appearing was a blonde, one of the type the novelists like to have about them. She was sitting on the beach, her feet tucked up under her, and she was looking toward the pavilion with a smile on her face.

"Dear me, this is interesting," she said, looking up at the other woman. "I only met him once."

"It all depends. I don't see why that sort of love shouldn't be worth just as much as the really ought coming home circumstances."

"But what are the proper circumstances?"

"I cannot easily explain just what I mean, but you might let me pass judgment on your particular set."

"It was on a lake excursion to Two Harbors last Sunday. I went with a bunch of girls just for a lark. There happened to be two or three fellows on the boat we knew, and one of them introduced me to the man. I was taken with him right away. He seemed so different from the ordinary, and was so nice and interesting, that I found myself giving him more of my time than I really ought. Coming home on the boat he was with me all the way. It was moonshine, with a lot of stars. The boat wasn't so crowded that we couldn't find room on the upper deck. He talked of so many things. I guess he had traveled a lot the way he talked of places and people. I don't know when I have met a man who was so entertaining, and at the same time a person of such evident refinement."

"Did he propose to you?"

"Oh, my, no. It didn't get so far as that. But he did say some things along that line, and asked me if he could call, and just before the boat drew up to the dock, as we were about to get out, he put his arm around me and kissed me."

"Scandalous!"

"I was terribly angry."

"Did you tell him just what you thought of him?"

"Not exactly. For you see he might have done it again if I had. The blonde laughed prettily, in an embarrassed way.

"I showed my anger, though, and spoke to him just as meanly as I could."

"Did he appear squelched?"

"He was awfully repentant."

"I'll bet he was."

"You say that as if you didn't mean it."

"What you meant to say was that he was a scoundrel."

"Well, you know how men are."

"Maybe I am not as wise as you seem to think I am."

"The conversation was interrupted by the girl, who spasmodically clutched her companion's arm, and said in a low, excited voice:

"Isn't it strange? She whispered excitedly, the color coming and going in her face. "There he is now."

A man was approaching along the beach. So interested had the blonde been that she had not heeded his approach, and he was now only a few paces away. The man, who seemed to be about thirty years of age, was strikingly handsome. There was just enough gray mixed in his dark hair to add an air of distinction to his generally good-looking face. He was wearing a simple dress. Altogether his figure was one which would attract attention.

"He is the man," she whispered excitedly, the color coming and going in her face. "There he is now."

Northern Pacific Company Must Rebuild Lake Avenue Viaduct.

Judge Cant Holds Old Compromise Agreement to be Void.

Upholding the city of Duluth in every point of its contention in the proceedings against the Northern Pacific Railroad company to compel it to rebuild the Lake Avenue viaduct, Judge Cant has rendered a decision in which the company is ordered to begin the work within a reasonable length of time and to have the viaduct completed by June 1, 1906. The compromise agreement for the old viaduct between the city and the railroad company is held to be void.

The result of the proceedings is a distinct victory for the present city administration; the mandamus action being instituted for the city by City Attorney Bert Foster. The hearing was held last October. The railroad company was represented by C. W. Burn, Emerson Hadley, J. L. Washburn and J. H. Stone. The city was represented by C. W. Burn, Emerson Hadley, J. L. Washburn and J. H. Stone.

Judge Cant finds that Lake Avenue has been used and maintained as a highway at the point of intersection with the railroad tracks, since the autumn of 1870, or spring of 1871. He finds that by reason of increased use of the viaduct, the present viaduct, built in 1891 and 1892, is a necessity. It was also found that the viaduct was built after an agreement reached between the city and the old St. Paul & Duluth Railroad company, the main points of which were as follows:

The railroad company was to contribute $50,000 toward the cost of the structure and the city the remaining $50,000. The city was to maintain that portion of the viaduct comprised within the limits of the right of way for fifteen years and to maintain the remaining portion, something over 900 feet, forever.

The court finds that the question of who should maintain that portion of the viaduct within the limits of the right of way after a lapse of fifteen years is open.

It is held that the Northern Pacific Railroad company which succeeded to the rights and title of the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad company failed and neglected to maintain or keep in repair the viaduct and its approaches, and that the city is held to be out of repair and dangerous to travel.

The court decides that the city is entitled to judgment for a peremptory writ of mandamus directing the company to make the repairs in a reasonable length of time, inasmuch as the plans and specifications prepared by the city except the relaying of the sidewalk, consisting of the curbing of the approaches, the company is commanded to begin the repairs.

As a result of these findings and conclusions, the court holds that the compromise agreement between the city and the railroad company is void.

At the judgment for twenty days is ordered.

Judge Cant goes into the merits of the case exhaustively, in his memorandum filed with the findings. He recites at length the events leading to the building of the viaduct, and finds that the railroad was there before the avenue was opened to travel.

The question of priority, however, is left to the city's option. He says the question is not whether the street was there a month or a day before the railroad was there, but whether a condition of affairs exists whereby the public safety is endangered, and whether that condition has been created by the railway company in the prosecution of its enterprise for the attainment of its own ends.

Judge Cant holds that the railway company was and is at all times subject to the exercise of the police power of the city and that, wholly irrespective of the question of priority, it is bound to make whatever repairs are required by the city in the exercise of that power. The court cites a state decision in support of his contention that the city has the right to require a company to bridge a dangerous crossing if nothing more than the exercise of police power, and is everywhere so considered.

The fact that a railroad first traversed the country is not such a permanent right as to preclude the exercise of opportunity of the police power, as will serve to forestall the exercise of police power.

Judge Cant puts the question thus: "The duty having rested on the railway to construct the viaduct, was the city's duty to maintain it?" He answers in the affirmative, and holds that the city is a valid one and is the railway company relieved from making such repairs.

This question the court maintains is answered in the case of the state against the Minnesota Transfer Railway company, 80 Minn. 108.

"A city," he says, "cannot, under the guise of making a contract, be permitted to barter away its governmental powers. The railway company was bound to take notice of that rule. Some of the rights bargained away in the case last mentioned were bargained away here. The contract was, therefore, void and voidable. The fact that it may have been a compromise agreement is of no avail."

"The city is not estopped from questioning the validity of that agreement. The public, in such cases, will be assisted by the courts. The city is not estopped, but here, as in 80 Minn. 115, the ends of justice will be subserved by compelling the defendant to perform its duty."

Judge Cant then treats of the limitation of any there in cases of this kind where repairs are required. He holds that the substantial body and structure of the viaduct, including the approaches, must be furnished and provided by the railway company, and that the city is not estopped from requiring the railway company to make the repairs.

Judge Cant says that the part of the avenue that has been raised to meet the approaches for travel, therefore, is the company's expense, that the exercise of police power over the company is not desired to be carried so far as to relieve either the city or adjacent property from the burdens of the ordinary course of travel, borne by the city or by such property.

To make difficulties of trifles is the common tendency. Herald want advertising enables one to make trifles of difficulties.

RAILROADS STAGE LINE HAS A RIVAL

Sharp Competition on the Ripple-International Falls Route.

Interesting Ride Through the Wilds of Northern Minnesota.

Until the Minnesota & International railroad is completed through to International Falls, or until business shows a falling off, Northern Minnesota will be able to boast of two cross-country stage lines. They are running in opposition to each other at present, and their route is from Ripple, terminus of the railroad, to the border town. The proprietors of both outfits appear to be making a living.

The trip across the wild and sparsely settled region is said to be well worth the taking, even if a person has no business to transact at either end. Stage coaches are rapidly coming to be a thing of the past in the United States, especially in unsettled districts, and the novelty of being able to say that one has ridden by stage for 100 miles or so is one that will become of more value as time advances.

Of course sleighs are used at the present time. The ride in the summer, if it can be made at all, will be indeed adventurous, for the roads are said to be rather rough, and the passengers are liable to encounter all sorts of new experiences before the journey's end is reached.

The stage runs three times a week each way. The opposition lines have the same schedule. They leave Ripple Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 p. m. and Sundays at 9 a. m. On the return trip they leave International Falls at 2 o'clock on Thursdays, Saturdays and Tuesdays. They arrive at the falls on Wednesdays, Fridays and Mondays.

Each line has gotten out glaring handbills advertising the advantages of a ride by their teams. Joe Parly, first of the houses, would like to see patrons to "look for the big fellow with the black whiskers," and T. W. Breckin, the newcomer, tells the riders to keep their eyes open for "the fellow with no whiskers. Ha, ha!" evidently taking the invitation as a joke.

There is quite a lot of travel through that northern country, particularly during the winter months, owing to the extensive land and timber holdings. Duluthans are extensively interested in the region, and are contributing their share of patronage to the stage lines. Half-way houses, of the sort early mining stories of the West tell about, have been established along the route, and the prospect is that they offer an interesting field for observation.

Noil Leaves Missabe.

Roy Noil, chief clerk in the office of the superintendent of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, at Proctor, has resigned his position. He is well known in this city. Carl S. Van Leuven, who has been in the superintendent's office for some time, has been promoted to the position made vacant by Mr. Noil's resignation.

Missabe's Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road will be held Tuesday at the company's general office, 111 West Main street. It is expected that changes of importance in the personnel of the board of directors or officers is considered improbable.

The Hoosac Tunnel and Mining Company, a Colorado corporation, was organized for the purpose of constructing a tunnel through the Hoosac Mountains, Colorado, and of operating a stage line between the terminus of the tunnel and the city of Denver. The company is now in the process of raising capital for the purpose of constructing the tunnel and of operating the stage line.

Idaho Springs, Colo.

Idaho Springs, Colorado, is one of the largest and one of the most beautiful cities in the State. It is situated on the edge of the Rocky Mountains, and is surrounded by some of the most beautiful scenery in the world. The city is a health resort, and is famous for its mineral springs. It is also a center of the mining industry, and is the headquarters of the mining companies of the State.

What is a Transportation Tunnel?

In the Idaho Springs Mining District, covering practically all of the Hoosac Mountains, there are over 300 miles of mineral veins. These veins are rich in gold, silver, copper, and other valuable minerals. The company is now in the process of constructing a tunnel through the Hoosac Mountains, and of operating a stage line between the terminus of the tunnel and the city of Denver.

Why You Are Asked to Join.

The Hoosac Tunnel and Mining Company can borrow money to accomplish its purpose, but the directors and stockholders would not permit the company to run in debt to such an extent that they would be unable to pay the interest on the debt. The company is now in the process of raising capital for the purpose of constructing the tunnel and of operating the stage line.

Probable Profit to You—Several Hundred Per Cent. Annually.

This is a treasury story that is offered and the price at which you can buy it today is far below the value at which it will be sold when the tunnel is completed. The company is now in the process of raising capital for the purpose of constructing the tunnel and of operating the stage line.

The man who has a preconceived notion that investment in a mining enterprise is not profitable to the small investor is wrong. The Hoosac Tunnel and Mining Company is now in the process of raising capital for the purpose of constructing the tunnel and of operating the stage line.

In labor circles, aside from the fact that two strikes are in active operation, matters are quiet. The two strikes mentioned are that of the job printers, which has been on ever since Oct. 4, and that of the boilermakers which has been on for two weeks. The first is a demand for an 8-hour day and that of the boilermakers is a demand for an increase in the wage scale.

It looked at one time, about a week ago, as though the job printers and the typographers, which is the name of the bosses' organization, might get together, but the matter fell through, the bosses refusing the proposition of the printers, and declaring that nothing but a nine-hour day would be considered. The matter fell through, the bosses refusing the proposition of the printers, and declaring that nothing but a nine-hour day would be considered. The matter fell through, the bosses refusing the proposition of the printers, and declaring that nothing but a nine-hour day would be considered.

The boilermakers seem to have reached a path by which they may lead into settlement. The bosses refuse to meet the union, and the union refuses to send a committee to the bosses. It is a case of Malheur and the mountain, with both stubborn. However, this matter may be adjusted at any time, as each side of the cities will relax a little and send to see the other. At present it seems to be wholly a question of strike etiquette, and ceremony is a hot gridiron to stand on.

As soon as the union excitement is over it would not be surprising to see the unions of the city take hold of the idea of securing for themselves a playground where they may erect a pavilion and use it for dances and speech-making, and the grounds for picnics and games. The idea is not a bad one, and it likely be acted upon before long.

DELICATE QUESTION.

of the ticket as to indicate nothing as regards the Republican, it is urged, would never stand for their representation being based on the Dunn vote, and there are other districts of a less important standing, politically, which would not be subject to the Dunn vote as a basis for their representation in the next state convention. What will likely be done, and this has been advanced by authority, is to take a general average of the vote cast for all the state representatives in the last election. It is urged that upon this basis the most just representation in the next Republican convention can be secured. It is now the general opinion that the committee will report on the 10th of March. A call from Conde Hamlin, chairman of the committee, is expected daily.

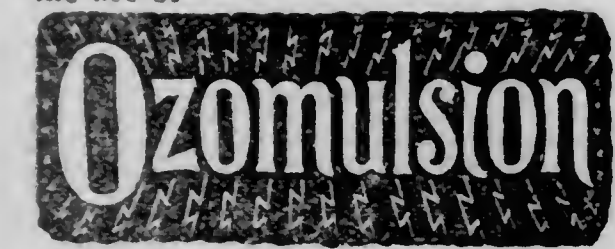

J. J. Lomen of the same district, by the way, as E. A. Nelson, has formally announced himself as a candidate for secretary of state, and has been connected with the committee since 1894. He is one of the best informed men as to the duties of the office in the state of Minnesota. In 1894 he went before the convention to secure the nomination, but was defeated by P. P. Hanson. This makes the fight very interesting for the population from which Lomen is a candidate. A Newswoman and Nelson is a Swede. The office has usually gone to a Swede.

Frank Eddy candidly admits that Governor Johnson is the sole asset of the Democratic party, but he goes further. In a recent interview with your correspondent, he declared that the Republicans must wage the next gubernatorial campaign largely on sentiment. Its leaders, according to the sage of Stank Center, must bend their efforts toward creating sentiment, and will take the concrete form of votes at the polls next fall.

If Johnson to carry Eddy's delight!

figure to a logical conclusion—is the sole asset of the Democratic party in Minnesota. Then sentiment is to be the sole asset of the Republicans in the upper Midwest. The former is a concrete flesh and blood possession; the latter an abstract uncertainty. The Democrats believe that the "goods" in the hand are worth any amount of sentiment in the bush.

By a campaign of sentiment, Mr. Eddy explains it as the awakening in the breasts of every Republican voter the pride and joy that he is a Republican and identified with a great and glorious party. This pride once aroused, he reasons, the Republicans will never lose the noble act of scratching the head of the ticket.

The Democratic leaders now see why Eddy advocates an early convention. He realizes, they say, what a Herculean task it will be to fight a campaign on sentiment.

"Our only issue in the coming campaign," says F. A. Day, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, "will be good government. Beyond that issue, there is none in municipal or state politics. Governor Johnson stands for good government."

The Heron Lake News has the following comment on Frank Eddy:

"The News has had much to say about ex-Congressman Frank Eddy. Mr. Eddy is one of Minnesota's ablest men, a fine orator and a splendid business man. He has tripped himself on the tariff question and endorsed the Democratic position, but the lamp still burns and he may return. Mr. Eddy has many friends who would like to see him a candidate for governor."

This is the burden of a number of the country newspapers' editorials of the state. Eddy's friends may force him into the race yet.

There is much agitation among the Republican leaders of Lac Qui Parle and Chippewa counties for a union of interests. Some of the prominent workers are attempting to get the party together and decide upon a candidate for state senator. Chippewa county has, as the leaders of the former county to ask that Lac Qui Parle politicians do the gracious thing and not present a candidate at all.

Some members of the country press are asking what is the matter with President Suckney for governor? The interrogation mark is especially emphatic in most of the columns asking the question. Few will venture with success a "go" beyond the interrogation point.

Prominent Republican leaders from the northern part of the state who were at the Merchants recently, state that, if Jacobson wanted to declare himself as a candidate for governor, he could raise a campaign fund of $5,000 within two months by opening public subscription lists in the districts where he is worshipped as a little god for his record in the legislature when he attacked corporations without gloves.

It is not without reason that he "could" start out tomorrow and on $1 and $1.50 subscriptions raise $5,000 in short order. It is no idle boast when friends of Jacobson say that he can be elected governor of Minnesota without the aid or contributions of the corporations.

Eddy can be induced not to announce himself as a candidate for governor, Sprague, who is worth at least $100,000, is not counting on a contribution of $5,000 to the Jacobson campaign fund."

C. C. Dinehart, a Shaver, who has announced himself as a candidate for state treasurer, may develop into a serious candidate by reason of the geographical position of his district. He is a resident of the western part of the state, which has never as yet had a state officer from that section. New Tim, who is also a candidate for the same office, is from the Second district. Should Dinehart's candidacy take seriously, however, he may withdraw and let Dinehart have the solid support of the Second district.

There is some excitement going the rounds in regard to Senator A. D. Stepien. He has been mentioned in many of the northern newspapers and has for years been a prominent worker in the Republican party. He is a native son of Minnesota, has been mayor of Crookston and surveyor general of logs and lumber for the Seventh district. He is a member of the state central committee from the Ninth district.

Capt. James Hunter of Fairbanks, Meek county, has joined the aspirants for state governor. He has been mentioned in many of the northern newspapers and has for years been a prominent worker in the Republican party. He is a native son of Minnesota, has been mayor of Crookston and surveyor general of logs and lumber for the Seventh district. He is a member of the state central committee from the Ninth district.

Lyman D. Bates has called off his friends who have been mentioning his name as a gubernatorial possibility. He has announced that he would not be a candidate under any condition and has declined to have his name mentioned in his behalf. Rumor has it, however, that he would accept the nomination for lieutenant governor.

MANHATTAN IS OURS!

GET INTO MANHATTAN WITH US NOW AND THE LUCK OF A ROARING GOLD MINING CAMP IS YOURS.

MANHATTAN IS ANOTHER JOHANNESBURG

Manhattan, Nevada, has been under active development for a period of less than 90 days. In that period it has shattered all previous records of mining districts in the production of gold.

More ore containing gold has been brought to the surface in Manhattan during the first two months of its subsistence than was mined in the initial two months of Johannesburg, Cripple Creek, or Goldfield, heretofore the world's three greatest gold camps.

The average value of the ore shipped to the smelters to date is $400 per ton.

In all the world's history of mining such a high average of values has never been approached.

The average value of the enormous annual production of Cripple Creek is below $30 per ton; of Johannesburg $50 per ton.

The Black Hills mines, that are paying millions in dividends, are outputting ore having a tonnage valuation of less than $5.

The general average of ore mined in California ranges from $5 to $20 per ton.

Goldfield, the sensational gold camp of the world for high-grade ore, is maintaining an average of $300 per ton.

In one bound, Manhattan not only joins the list of producers of high-grade, but leaps forward as the Greatest of all Gold Camps.

MANHATTAN COMBINATION MINING COMPANY

As usual, we are in at the birth, and are enabled to offer for subscription at 15 cents per share stock of the par value of $1 in what we consider one of the most likely properties in the entire Manhattan district, namely, the Manhattan Combination Mining Co. The property has been explored and reported on by eminent engineers in our employ, and an investment in shares in this company, in our opinion, presents one of the best opportunities for money-making that it has ever been our good fortune to offer. Less than six weeks ago, we advertised treasury stock in the Laguna Goldfield Mining Company of the par value of $1, at 15 cents per share, and filled nearly all the wants of our immense clientele at that figure. Since then this stock has sold on the San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board and the Goldfield Stock Exchange at as high as 43 cents, and seems destined for par within a few months. Two weeks ago we advertised shares in the Seyler-Humphrey Mining Company of Manhattan at 30 cents, and are now turning in down orders at an advanced figure, the entire allotment having been subscribed. Two months ago we put out Bullfrog Amethyst stock at 15 cents. It is now selling around 40. It will go to $1 or better.

Here is a Manhattan offering worthy of the attention of the biggest investor, as well as of the smallest. No man with funds at his disposal can afford to miss it.

The Manhattan Combination Mining Company owns two full mining claims known as the Black Mammoth and Black Mammoth No. 1. The ground is 3,000 feet long by 600 feet wide. It is a mountain. It has the appearance of a big black butte, and for miles around Manhattan it can be seen, so rugged are its croppings and so strongly is it marked by mineralization. A tremendous ledge runs through the property.

The claims are centrally situated, in the hub of the Manhattan district and within a few hundred feet of the gulch in which the town of Manhattan is located. On these two claims, in the opinion of mining engineers of note, will be found the MOTHER LODE of the entire Manhattan Mining District.

HAS THE MOTHER LODE.

The property was located by two men who were among the first to get into the district, after the original discovery was made by John Humphrey. They were practical miners who, hearing the news of Humphrey's great find, went into the section to look it over. They saw some specimen rock taken from the shaft on the April Fool claim, the first of the Humphrey locations, and could hardly believe their eyes. However, they were early on the scene and had time in which to do extensive prospecting, to determine the trend of the ledges, the character of the formation, and other peculiarities that would contribute to enable them to find other valuable ground if it was there. Thus they at once set about to prospect the district on their own hook.

They realized that the ore deposits on the low-lying hills, where John Humphrey had staked out the April Fool group of claims, were fabulously rich in their deposits, but they were not convinced that on these claims the main ledge or mother lode of the district existed. Finally, as a result of investigation and unremitting toil, they discovered the tremendous ledge that crops on the surface of the Black Mammoth and Black Mammoth No. 1 claims, and they immediately have authorized the sale of the surface in similar manner, unmatched by any other croppings of similar height or dimensions, will be found the head center of all the veins of the district.

Surface assays vary from $8 to $60 per ton, and, in the opinion of the consulting engineers, it needs but development work to make this property Manhattan's greatest producer.

The property is fully paid for, and is owned outright by the company. The company has no less than 100,000 shares of the par value of one dollar each, five hundred thousand shares have been accepted by the original owners in payment of the property, and five hundred thousand shares have been placed in the treasury, to be sold by the company to obtain funds for development purposes. The ownership stock is pooled and will not be issued until sufficient treasury stock is sold to put the finances of the company in proper shape to mine the property successfully. This includes the erection of mills, if necessary, to treat the ore, and thus to save high rates of transportation and reduction.

It is a trite saying that "the need of the prospector is the opportunity of the investor," but it is a truism here. To secure the necessary funds for properly developing the property, the company has authorized the sale of the necessary number of shares of treasury stock to provide funds for proper mine development.

Our engineers have examined the property, and they have been greatly impressed with its apparent possibilities. Good panings were obtained by them from the boldly outcropping ledge, and other indications were found that point to the correctness of the theory of the locators, that on this property will be found, after a short period of development, the mother lode of the entire Manhattan district.

The proceeds from the sale of treasury stock will initiate a campaign of development work second to none. This work will be supervised by Sol Camp, the eminent mining engineer, who is at present superintendent of the famous January mine of the Goldfield Mining Company, which has produced upwards of $2,000,000 in the past two years.

The company is officered and directed by practical and intelligent mining men of recognized ability and probity, whose operations have been marked by a number of successes in other Nevada mining camps, particularly Goldfield and Tonopah. An honest and capable administration of the company's affairs is assured.

L. L. Patrick, the president of the company, is the organizer of the Combination Mines Company of Goldfield. Upon Mr. Patrick's judgment, the property now owned by the Combination Mines Company, of Goldfield, was purchased for $5,000 down, less than two years ago; the company was capitalized for 400,000 shares of the par value of $1 each, and each subscriber received his stock at a valuation of 17½ cents per share. The company is now paying dividends at the rate of 150 per cent per annum on its entire capitalization, and in two years of development work sufficient reserves have been blocked out by the Combination mine to insure the maintenance of a heavy output and the payment of dividends at the same rate for at least six years to come.

John S. Cook, treasurer of the company, is the head of the banking house of John S. Cook & Co., Goldfield, which has upwards of a million dollars on deposit.

Sol Camp, director and consulting engineer, is not only superintendent of the famous Goldfield Mining Company, but has a record of successes in Colorado behind him, and is conceded to be the most successful practical mining engineer in all of Nevada.

TREASURY SHARES 15 CENTS.

We are authorized to dispose of a limited number of treasury shares to provide funds to properly develop and equip the property. The initial offering is made at 15 cents per share, and the proceeds will go into the ground. We guarantee this. Both the president of the company, L. L. Patrick, and the consulting engineer and director, Sol Camp, are members of our corporation, and their presence on the directorate has been secured as a guarantee of the proper management of the company's affairs and the miner-like development of the property.

Basing our opinion on the reports of our experts and our experience in Goldfield, where we have had a hand in the financing of a number of properties that have "made good" in every sense of the term, and by investment in which our clients have made fortunes—we unhesitatingly recommend the purchase of stock in the Manhattan Combination Mining Company at 15 cents per share as one of the very best investments that it has ever been our good fortune to offer.

The possibilities are tremendous. Already company shares of the Manhattan property of merit that have been put out in Goldfield and Tonopah have increased in value and are selling at 50 to 100 per cent in advance of the price at which they were originally offered to the public. Stock in the Manhattan Combination Mining Company will repeat this performance. Every rich strike, and, in fact, every rumor of a strike that comes to Goldfield and Tonopah from the scene of the sensational discoveries increases the demand for stock in reputable Manhattan companies, and the splendid prospects of this company's property for making a great gold mine being so well understood on the ground, an early advance in the price of its shares may be expected.

To those who have watched the progress of events in Tonopah and Goldfield since the inception of these camps, the opportunity offered at this time in Manhattan need not be dwelt upon; but for the information of those who have not kept track of events the following facts and figures are submitted:

$250 bought 1,000 shares of Tonopah Belmont stock in 1901. You can get $2,000 for that block of stock now on either the San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board or the Goldfield Stock Exchange.
$100 bought 1,000 shares of Tonopah Extension stock in June, 1902. That block of stock is now selling at a valuation of $7,500.
$150 bought 1,000 shares of Tonopah Midway in 1902. They are worth $1,550 according to current quotations.
$100 bought 100,000 shares of stock in the Goldfield Mining Company in 1904. They are now worth $92,000.
$125 bought 1,000 shares of Sandstorm stock of Goldfield eighteen months ago. They are now worth $1,800.
$100 bought 10,000 shares of the Florence mine of Goldfield in November, 1903. They are now worth $22,500.
$175 bought 1,000 shares of stock in the Combination Mines Company of Goldfield in November, 1903. They cannot be had now for $5,000.

In the opinion of observers on the ground—men who have gone through both the Tonopah and Goldfield mining excitements—the chances for profit in Manhattan are far greater than they were in either Tonopah or Goldfield.

OUR MANHATTAN GUARANTEE

To get "in right" in this new field for quick fortune-making it is only necessary for you to find an affirmative answer to these questions:

- (1) Are the men at the head of the company successful mining men of Tonopah or Goldfield?
- (2) Does the character of these men form a safe guarantee that the property will be mined in a systematic way and that the treasury funds will be used economically and for purposes of mining only?
- (3) Is the property worthy? Are the surface indications good? Does the property lie in the heart of the newly discovered mineral belt? Will mining men of experience and probity direct the work of opening up the property?

We guarantee an affirmative answer to each of the above questions.

A limited number of treasury shares is offered for public subscription at 15 cents per share. Already subscriptions are pouring into our office from men on the ground at Manhattan, Goldfield and Tonopah, and non-residents of the mining camps mentioned will, as already pointed out, find it the part of discretion to telegraph us their reservations and let their remittances follow by first mail.

Marquette Range

Oglebay, Norton & Co. Take Option on Old Hungeford Mine—Sinking of Shaft at Rolling Mill Proceeding.

Ishpeming, Mich., Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oglebay, Norton & Co., of Cleveland, whose principal field of operations is on the Menominee range, have taken an option on the Peck property, formerly known as the Hungeford mine, in the Humboldt district of the Marquette range. The tract adjoins the Humboldt mine at the west and the Washington on the east, neither of which properties are now in commission. The Washington is a length of over nine miles, dotted with a number of shallow pits, and as did the Humboldt, produced ore of low grade, similar to that mined at the Peck, which is an open pit property with a record of only several thousand tons, produced over twenty years ago. Operations will be started by Oglebay, Norton & Co. in the spring, and there is reason to believe that a good-sized body of non-ferrous metal will be found. The suspension of old mining men was not due to depletion of deposit, but to a falling off in demand. There is nothing of value at the mine in the way of equipment or buildings. A representative of the Washington Iron company has been a number of tenants of the company's houses at Humboldt to vacate the premises. For a time the tenants were not charged rent, the understanding being that they would keep the places in fair repair. A recent inspection showed the houses to have been greatly neglected, also that a number of the unoccupied dwellings had been completely demolished, the material in them having been burned for firewood. The Washington company owns a majority of the houses at Humboldt, but only very few of them have been kept in good condition by the tenants. The company also has sustained heavy loss at its mine during the past two seasons, but it has been idle. The buildings have been torn down, and the material carted away. The heavy pieces were placed with dynamite, all the iron being sold to junk dealers. In fact, the company's representative was amazed at the scene of desolation and destruction presented.

The big demand for ore of almost all grades is going to give a new lease of life to most of the idle mining properties on the Cascade range, so-called, south of Negaunee, many of which have been idle for years. All are hard ore properties, and most of the ore mined is a lean variety, which during recent years has not met with ready sale. Captain Harry Roberts of Duluth has secured an option on the Volunteer, the largest mine on the range. Some work has been done at this property the past two seasons, but it was largely confined to removing the ore in the stockpile and the house owned by John Algor of Detroit, who purchased it from the Pittsburg & Lake Superior company. He operated it extensively for a few years, and afterwards leased it to the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, which surrendered it after a short time, and it was then leased to the Donora Iron company. The last operator of the mine was the United States Steel corporation. It is the intention of Capt. Roberts to thoroughly explore the ore bodies believed to lie below and contiguous to the underground workings, with a view to showing up sufficient deposits, so that a sale of the property can be effected. The mine has been something of a white elephant on Senator Algor's hands. The general is not a miner, number being his specialty, and he naturally feels like getting out of the iron business. He has paid a big price for the Volunteer, and very little work has been done since he purchased it. The acreage is extensive, however, and there is an excellent chance for new ore bodies. In the same district, John T. Jones of Iron Mountain is arranging for the extension of his Peck mine to his property, whose development was started last year. He expects to ship about 30,000 tons the coming season.

The sinking of the shaft at the Rolling Mill property, a new mine being opened in the Negaunee field of the Marquette range by the Jones & Laughlin company, is progressing with satisfactory results, not a hitch occurring since the shaft was turned last fall. A depth of about 350 feet has been attained, and sinking is progressing at the rate of about fifty to sixty feet a week. A holding plant procured from the Jack Pot mine, a Gogebic range property formerly operated by the company, has been installed at the Rolling Mill, in place of the former exploratory equipment, and it is of ample capacity to take care of all rock removed from the shaft until it has been sunk to the ore deposit, found by diamond drilling to lie nearly 600 feet below the surface. The equipment now in use will be replaced by a more powerful plant from the company's East Angeline mine at Ishpeming next May.

A force of sixty men is engaged in rebuilding the upper works of the Lake Superior & Ishpeming railroad's Peck mine at Marquette. Much of the planking and timbers will be renewed, and 100 ore pockets will be reconstructed. The work will require all winter to complete the big hauler which will carry away the water pumped from the mines opened in the basin of the former Lake Angeline, at Ishpeming, has been receiving from the Pacific coast, and the contractor now expects to finish his work by the middle of March. The shipment comprises about 120,000 feet of plank and square timber, and was three weeks on the road. The mine have all been driven. This was the hardest part of the job, and amounted to about three-fourths of the work. At one point in the lake bottom, the hauler will rest on bents fifty-seven feet above ground, and at another place it will run through a trench eight feet in depth.

Marquette Miners Being Imported Owing to Shortage of Labor—The Baltic to Ship Heavier Next Year.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A delegation of Austrian miners has arrived at Crystal Falls, Menominee range, to take guard of an importation of 350 to 400 men the mining companies of the district intend bringing in this spring. The men are being secured through employment bureaus. Shortage of labor has hampered operations in the district for some time.

The Pevan Mining company, at Iron Mountain, has started a considerable shipment of ore to Cadillac, Mich. The receiving concern is known as the Mitchell-Dixie company, which has erected a modern charcoal furnace at that place. It is expected the plant will go into commission the first of March. It will have an initial capacity of 125 tons of pig iron daily. The storage house is roomy enough to hold 20,000 tons of ore, and it is expected the building will be filled with raw material before smelting operations are commenced. Heavy shipments have recently gone forward from the Hancock mine of Pikesburg, Mather & Co. at Amasa, Iron county, the loaded cars crossing the lake from Menominee to Frankfort via the Ann Arbor ferry line.

At Pikesburg, Mather & Co.'s Baltic mine, in the Starbush district of the Menominee range, the shaft has been sunk on the fifth level and a drift has been put through the mine, and in which mining work is now being conducted. A good-sized stockpile is already in existence, and the mine is to be at the rate of over 400 skips a day. The Baltic will make a materially larger shipment this year than last, and thirty or more trucks are to be there and at the company's Casplan property. In the same vicinity, the ore bodies in the district are being assayed, and the activity of the properties for many years to come.

Oglebay, Norton & Co., which also

Most Striking Figure in the Copper Mining World

Rapid Rise of Thomas F. Cole to a Commanding Position in Copper Mining—Sketch of His Marvelous Career.

(Copyright, 1906, by Horace J. Stevens.)

The man of the hour in American mining circles is Thomas F. Cole, of Duluth, the average man, whose knowledge of mining affairs is but slight, and gained at second-hand, the present prominence given Mr. Cole by the press and by men of large affairs, must come as something of a surprise, but to those who have known the man and watched his steady rise for the two decades past, it is no astonishment. It merely happens that the world at large is becoming acquainted slightly with a big man who has done big things, and is capable of doing even bigger.

The equipment now in use will be replaced by a more powerful plant from the company's East Angeline mine at Ishpeming next May.

A force of sixty men is engaged in rebuilding the upper works of the Lake Superior & Ishpeming railroad's Peck mine at Marquette. Much of the planking and timbers will be renewed, and 100 ore pockets will be reconstructed. This was the hardest part of the job, and amounted to about three-fourths of the work. At one point in the lake bottom, the hauler will rest on bents fifty-seven feet above ground, and at another place it will run through a trench eight feet in depth.

A number of Marquette range miners are leaving for Michigan's Iron Range to the north shore of Lake Superior, to accept employment at the Helen mine of the Lake Superior corporation. The company recently had the deposit tested by diamond drills, and the showing proved so satisfactory that it has been decided to develop the mine. Captain E. J. Blee of Negaunee has been engaged to take charge of the underground operation. The Helen is a hard hematite property, requiring skilled miners to work it, and the wages range from $2 to $4 a day for contract work. Mr. Blee was employed at the Helen two years ago, and says that the territory should be wonderfully rich in iron indications. He thinks that exploratory work will reveal further large bodies of ore. About 300 men are now employed at the Helen.

The Riverside Mining company of Chicago, which after several months has been successful in finding the workings of the old Riverside mine at Republic, Marquette range, of water, is now the intention of Capt. Roberts to thoroughly explore the ore bodies believed to lie below and contiguous to the underground workings, with a view to showing up sufficient deposits, so that a sale of the property can be effected. The mine has been something of a white elephant on Senator Algor's hands. The general is not a miner, number being his specialty, and he naturally feels like getting out of the iron business. higher wages, always needed in a small mine, to fill and became a brakeman on the Duluth & Torch Lake railroad—a big contract for a more experienced man, but one that he filled satisfactorily. He was then promoted to a position of chief clerk and cashier, at a salary of $1,000 a year. He was then promoted to a position of chief clerk and cashier, at a salary of $1,000 a year. He was then promoted to a position of chief clerk and cashier, at a salary of $1,000 a year.

At the Chapin's experience was never tired of work and courted rather than shunned the hardest tasks to be found. The Chapin, then, as now, was the largest iron mine of the Menominee range, and when a good man was needed for chief clerk and cashier, at a salary of $1,000 a year, he was selected for the position. He was then promoted to a position of chief clerk and cashier, at a salary of $1,000 a year.

Arizona Copper Mining

Showing at Lowell Mine of the Copper Queen Favorable to Calumet & Pitsburg—New Hoist ordered for Calumet & Arizona—Powell Takes Hold.

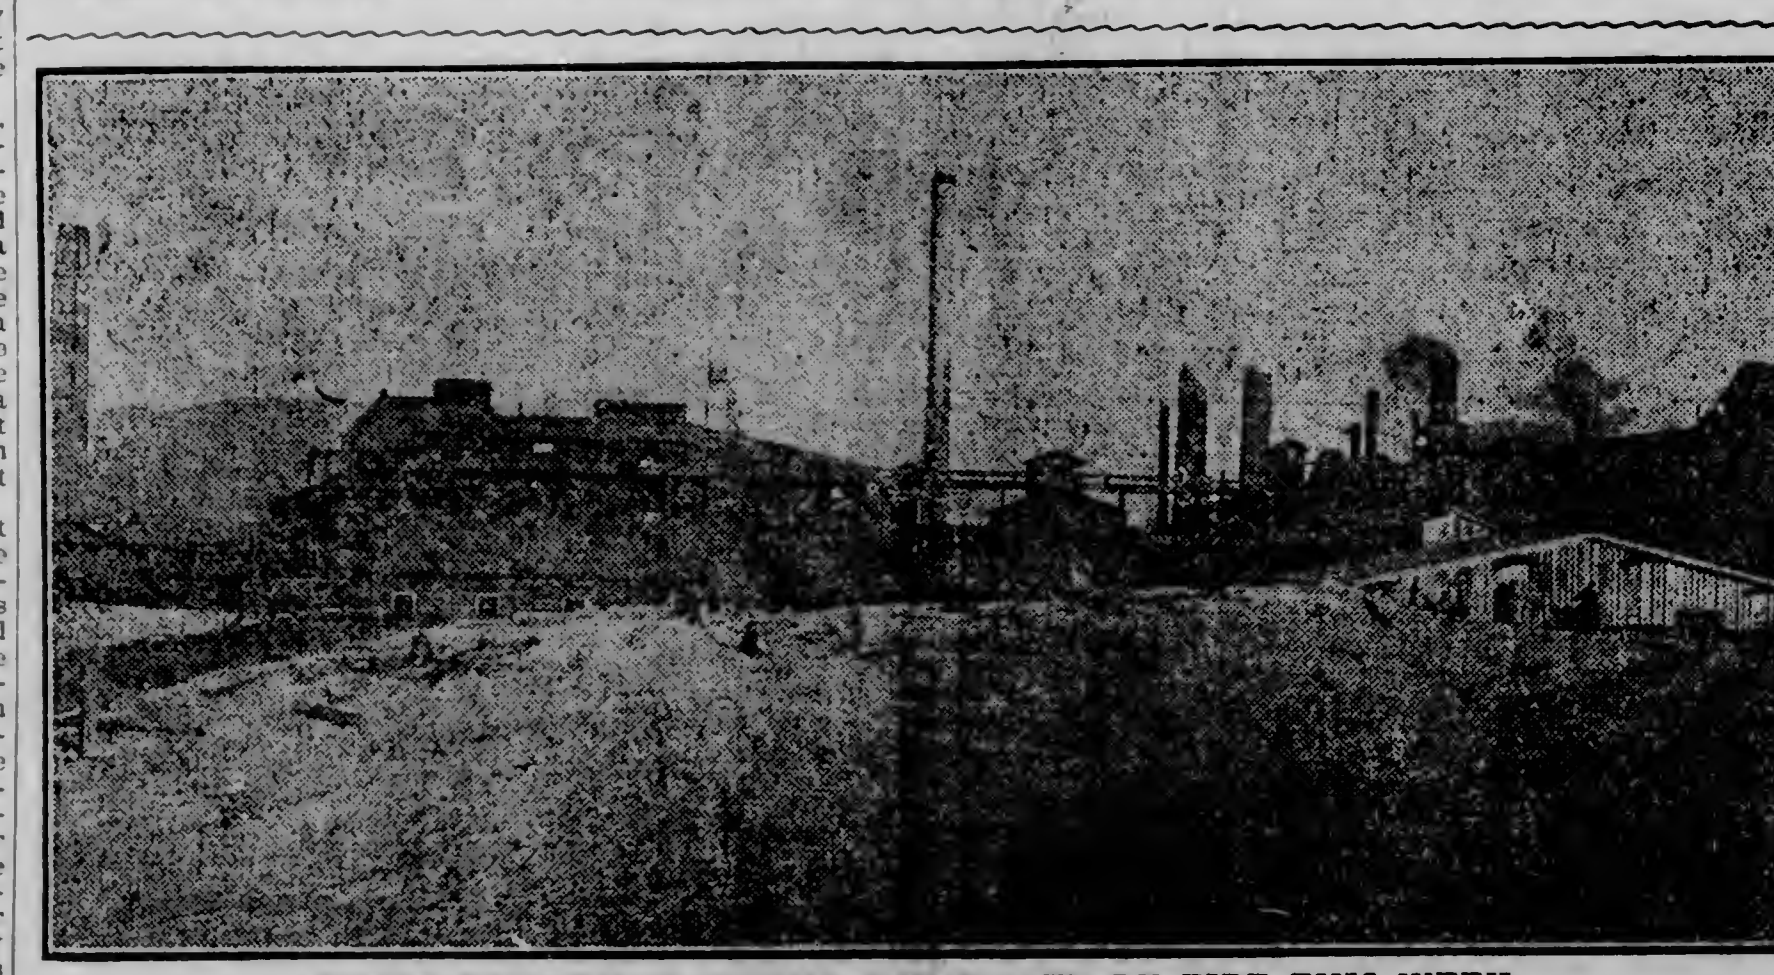

Bisbee, Ariz., Feb. 3.—The situation in the Warren district may be summarized as more hopeful, or in better prospects, more absolutely certain of production of large dividends than ever before in its history. Nothing in the mines may be said to in any manner detract from the hopeful prospect that has prevailed in the past, while recent developments can be said, in all probability, to contain every ingredient making in the direction of greater things than have ever before been realized.

Calumet & Pitsburg, in its two shafts, one of which the Houston, is certain to soon come to ore, while the other is certain of similar success by means of the drifts that are to go from the mine. The mine is now being developed by the Houston, which has abundant evidence of the steadiness that has prevailed with reference to its stock. The same may be said with every one of the other Warren district stocks that are now on the market. No exception is to be made of the one outlying property, Wolverine & Arizona, the pioneering proposition of the camp, which is now considered certain of making findings within a short time which will demonstrate the formation that has all along been contended for in that vicinity by those who have maintained confidence in the conditions there.

On the other extreme, the Saginaw has made headway with its work, which is exceedingly encouraging to future possibilities in that vicinity. Inasmuch as the vicinity below the Saginaw is very large, and the outlook very promising in the territory, in so far as surface showings go, it is very important that the Saginaw should keep up the good work it has under way. Development has been encouraging of late to the theory of those people

Butte Companies Breaking Record

Eight Now Mining Copper-Silver Ore in Commercial Quantities and Others in Line for Production.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 3.—Butte is now breaking all of its previous good records in the way of copper ore production, and is destined to make greater achievement. Counting the six branches of the Amalgamated one, and the seven sections of the Milled Copper, there are eight companies mining this class of ore in commercial quantities in the district, and at least seven others that have started in the field with a view of mining it. The eight producers are the Amalgamated, United Copper, Original Consolidated or Clark company, North Butte Copper, Pittsburg Copper, Raven Copper and East Butte Copper. Reliance Copper, entered in the seven list, will undoubtedly be mining copper ore on a commercial basis within the next six months, but it is not extracting any now because it is sinking its shaft. On the 800-foot level it has a vein of good ore. It expects to open this vein in a depth of 1,000 feet, but in order to reach it 200 feet more will have to be added to the shaft and a crosscut driven to the vein. This will take time for after sinking is finished a good-sized station will have to be cut near the bottom and pumps installed to keep out the water.

Returning to the six remaining companies, some are at work and some are not, but the only reason the latter are not working is because they are new in the arena and have not had time to get under way. Included in the list are the American Copper & Coram syndicate, which is organized under the laws of the state of Maine, with a capitalization of $100,000; the Butte & London Copper, with a capitalization of $500,000; the Butte Copper Exploration, with a capitalization of $100,000; the Butte & Boston company, with a capitalization of $375,000; the Alice company, an old one operating here, and the company which is to be organized to work a group of claims on the east side. The latter will be in the field within two weeks, and it is expected that it will be organized to work a group of claims on the east side.

The Butte Copper Exploration company, the last one to complete its organization and make its announcement, is also working. It has been working since its completion it has bought boilers and other machinery and began equipping the property. It intends to develop, which is the Six o'clock group of eight claims near the Greenleaf east of the city. George McGee, formerly an engineer in the employ of the Butte & Boston company, was placed in charge of the work and will superintend not only the installing of the machinery, but also the work of development, which will be begun on the Six o'clock claim. This claim has on it a two-compartment shaft, 440 feet deep, and it is well timbered. There is some water in the shaft, but not much time will be consumed in raising it to the surface, and the water will be pumped out by a small pump. Since the company was organized one of the men who owned the interest in the Golden Chief, one of the claims comprising the group, has given it out that there is a lot of 3 per cent copper ore in this particular claim and some spots of richer material, and the shaft is only 130 feet deep. He says that at the time the work was done copper was only 12 cents a pound, and the 3 per cent ore was not considered rich enough to extract and market at the prevailing price of the red metal. Copper ore that will now run 3 per cent is considered good, for since copper was 12 cents a pound many improvements have been made in the process of treatment, which, with the advanced figure at which copper is now selling, makes this class of ore desirable.

The Butte & London Copper company, organized about two weeks ago, expects to begin active operations in the near future. The ground of this company has never been developed to any extent, but the company intends to sink a shaft 1,200 or 1,500 feet and crosscut north and south. It figures that the vein of the Jesse mine, owned by the North Butte company, traverses the property, just as the Pittsburg & Montana Copper company figured, and correctly so, that the veins of the west side traversed its ground on the flat. If the vein of the Jesse extends to the ground of the Butte & London, it is likely that other veins running parallel with it also cross the ground of that point. A heavy railway company intends to find out all about it by sinking and crosscutting.

It is reported that copper ore has been struck in the Blackrock claim in the North Butte district, but it has not been verified. According to those who say they know, the strike was made in a drift on the 600. The property is being worked by a company composed of Minneapolis and St. Paul men, but is owned by Butte men. It adjoins the property owned by the Greenleaf, William F. Fitzgerald, the estates of William and James Forbes and J. K. Clark and also W. A. Clark.

Zinc and Lead Mining

Northern Michigan Men Form Companies to Mine in Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois.

Ishpeming, Mich., Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Northern Michigan mining men have within the past fortnight become interested in several companies organized for the purpose of exploiting zinc and lead mining in Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois. Mining in this portion of the country has been carried on for more than a century, but it is only during the past five years that the district has developed into great producing center for lead and zinc ores and recently it has been attracting more attention than ever. Although the value of millions of dollars worth of mineral have been taken from shafts of such shallow depths that the men of the Superior country, a region of deep mining, would be characterized as merely test pits.

The work of the early miners was confined wholly to mining lead ore, or "mineral," as it is termed in that region, which being regarded as of little value. As late as 1880 the market price of the latter metal was about $5 a ton, but since that time it has advanced in general use the price has advanced to a figure at least four times that. Mining activity in the district ceased from the date of the latter year until 1902, when a number of Chicago companies started active operations there, their advent marking the revival of a boom which has increased until there has developed a "rush" to the field. The ores mined are galena, or "mineral," lead, dry bone (carbonate of zinc) and black jack (sulphide of zinc). As illustrating the influence exerted by the influx of mining companies, the growth of such towns as Platteville may be pointed to. Platteville four years ago had a population of several hundred people. Today it is a city of several thousand, and from a sleepy farming town it has developed into a municipality with every evidence of prosperity.

John E. Hodge, a Marquette county man, member of the firm of Longyear & Hodge, diamond drill contractors, spent several months in the district a year ago, when his firm conducted exploratory operations for several different concerns. Tests are not made to the depths required in the copper and iron districts of Northern Michigan. In fact, the lowest depth from which Longyear & Hodge took cores was 250 feet. Mining in that district is what is called "shallow" mining, and a man would call scraping over," said Mr. Hodge. "Over an expanse of territory covering about 2,500 square miles the entire country is covered with pits or mines that in this upper region would be called test holes. These pits were dug so many years ago that the rock and soil thrown up from them is now covered over with sod and layers of earth, everywhere is seen evidence of where the early-day miners won the ore in a primitive way. Conditions have not radically changed in the district since that time except where practical mining men are in control of mines. The windmill is still used, sometimes with manual labor. In the modern mines, however, steam is used for hoisting, and the equipment of some of the properties is up-to-date in every respect.

"The important deposits of lead and zinc ores occur in three different classes, those which are found in crevices, which are in the nature of vein deposits; the porous parts of limestone, which are referred to as honeycombed, and those which are termed disseminated deposits. The main crevices, which are more extensively mined, have a vertical position, and run approximately east and west, although they are crossed sometimes by others running north and south, at different angles. The miners descend the crevices to the district. If the crevice runs at an angle in the morning, the crevice is referred to as a "10 o'clock." The different angles are referred to in as many hours as there are in the day between 10 o'clock and 4 o'clock, and while it is confusing to miners from other districts, there seems to be no mistakes made by those who use the nomenclature and can interpret it.

"The width of the ore crevices is anywhere from the thickness of a knife blade to thirty feet, extending for miles in some instances. With depth the crevices pass into a peculiar form of deposit, known as flats and pitches, and it is in these basins that the greatest amount of ore is found. It is a recognized rule throughout the district that the mineral-bearing formation is found on the slopes and in the minor valleys. There is within the productive area very little flat ground, but nevertheless there is significance in the fact that the mines are for the most part located below such divides. Very little mining has been done below the actual bottom land, but this is due to the fact that wet mining could not be carried on by the small hand miner, who, for lack of pumping facilities, was compelled to abandon his 'mine' when water was reached.

"Nearly all the companies are close corporations. Very few of the mine managers are practical mining men, but there is so much ore, and the cost of winning it is so low, compared with copper, that in mining, they cannot well help being successful. Very little timber is required. With the introduction of modern mining methods and machinery, the country will produce a vast amount of ore. As I have said, the territory is covered with pits, anywhere from a few feet to sixty feet deep, and in almost all of them zinc ore is to be found, where it was left untouched by the miners of past decades."

Large Norton & Co. Take Option on Old Marquette Mine— Sinking of Shaft and Mill Proceeding.

Islepening, Mich., Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oglebay, Norton & Co., of Cleveland, whose principal field of operations is on the Menominee range, have taken an option on the Peck property, formerly known as the Marquette mine, in the Marquette district of the Marquette range. The tract adjoins the Marquette mine on the east, and the Washington on the east, neither of which properties are now in commission. The Washington has a length of over a mile, dotted with a number of shallow pits, and, as did the Marquette, produced ore of low grade, similar to that mined at the Peck, which is an open pit property with a record of only several thousand tons, produced over twenty years ago. Operations will be started by Oglebay, Norton & Co. in the spring, and there is reason to believe that a good-sized body of non-ferrous ore will be found. The suspension of old mining work, was not due to depletion of deposit, but to a falling off in demand. There is nothing of value at the mine in the way of equipment or buildings. A representative of the Washington Iron company has been in the city, and a number of the company's houses at Humboldt to vacate the premises. For a time many of the tenants were not charged rent, the understanding being that they would keep the places in fair repair. A recent inspection showed the houses to have been greatly neglected, also that a number of the unoccupied dwellings had been completely demolished, the material in them having been burned for firewood. The Washington company owns a majority of the houses at Humboldt, but only very few of them have been kept in good condition by the tenants. The company also has sustained heavy loss at its mine during the time property has been idle. The buildings have been torn down, and the material carted away. The heavier pieces were placed in the open, all the iron being sold to junk dealers. In fact, the company's representative was amazed at the scene of desolation and destruction presented.

The big demand for ore of almost all grades is going to give a new lease of life to most of the old mining properties on the Menominee range, south of Oglebay, many of which have been idle for years. All ore of head ore properties, and most of the ore mined is a lean variety, which during recent years has not met with ready sale. Capt. Harry Roberts of Volin, has secured an option on the Marquette mine, the largest mine on the range. Some work has been done at this property the past two seasons, but it was largely confined to removing the ore in the stockpiles. The mine is owned by Senator Alger of Detroit, who purchased it from the Pittsburgh & Lake Superior company. He operated it extensively for some time, and afterwards leased it to the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, which surrendered it after a short time, and it was then leased to the Denver Iron company. The last operator of the mine was the United States Steel corporation. It is the intention of Capt. Roberts to thoroughly explore the ore bodies believed to be below and contiguous to the present workings, and to make a new shaft, and to show up sufficient deposits, so that a sale of the property can be effected to new interests. The mine is located in some one in sight of the workings, and it is hoped to make some shipments this year. The mine was opened in 1888, but has been idle since the time of the steel corporation. No. 1 shaft is down below the fourth level, and some drifting has been done.

(Copyright, 1905, by Horace J. Stevens.)
The man of the hour in American mining circles is Thomas F. Cole, of Duluth. To the average man whose knowledge of mining affairs is but slight, and gained at second-hand, the present prominence given Mr. Cole by the press is something of a surprise, but to those who have known the man and watched his steady rise for the two decades past, there is no astonishment. It merely happens that the world at large is becoming acquainted slightly with a big man, who has done big things, and is capable of doing even bigger.

As facts are always better than adjectives, and the facts will enable the reader to judge for himself, a brief summary of the salient features in the life and progress of Thomas F. Cole will throw a strong light upon the character of the man. Born forty-four years ago, in Keweenaw county, Michigan, of English parents at a time when copper mining was more active in that district than in any other part of the world, he was left fatherless at the tender age of six years, by an accident in a Phoenix mine which cost his father's life. Though but a small child in years, there already existed in him the traits of the courage and persistence so often shown in later years. He was the youngest of a family of small children, and as such he became necessary for him to take up his lot in the world, and at an early age he was working on the hills of the Phoenix and Cliff mines—hard labor for a small boy, but necessary to him to keep the wolf from the door. At the door of the little cottage where his one friend in the lake bottom, the haunter of the mine, and at another place it ran through a trench eight feet in depth.

A number of Marquette range miners are leaving for Michipicoten island on the north shore of Lake Superior, to accept employment at the Helen mine of the Lake Superior corporation. The company recently had the deposit tested by diamond drills, and the showing proved so satisfactory that it is about all the men prospecting will do. E. J. Blee of Negaunee has been engaged to take charge of the underground operation. The Helen is a hard bonafide property, requiring skilled miners to work it, and the wages range from $3 to $9 a day for contract work. Mr. Blee was employed at the Helen two years ago, and says that the territory about it is wonderfully rich in iron ore. He thinks that exploratory work will reveal further large bodies of ore. About 300 men are now employed at the Helen.

The Riverside Mining company of Chicago, which after several months of work has succeeded in locating the workings of the old Riverside mine at Republic, Marquette range, of water, is preparing to institute development work, having appropriated it is said, $50,000 for the work. A fifteen drill air compressor, a hoisting engine, crusher, and other machinery will be installed. The main shaft will be reburied and a hoisting house and ten dwellings will be erected. The mine is in sight of the workings, and it is hoped to make some shipments this year. The mine was opened in 1888, but has been idle since the time of the steel corporation. No. 1 shaft is down below the fourth level, and some drifting has been done.

higher wages, always needed in a hole where there were many small mouths to fill, and became a breaker on the Cliff and Torch Lake mines. On the latter mine he was in charge of the shaft, and was selected for the place on the strength of his work at the Phoenix and Cliff mines, and the fact that he was not yet legally of age.

At the Chapin his experience was much the same as before. Each position secured was better than the last, and within two years he was a valued clerk, forgoing to the front because he never tired of work and courted rather than shunned the hardest tasks to be found. The Chapin, then as now, was the largest iron mine of the Menominee range, and when good men were needed for chief clerk and cashier, at a property employing upwards of thousands of men, young Cole was selected for the place, on the strength of his work at the Phoenix and Cliff mines, and the fact that he was not yet legally of age.

Butte Companies Breaking Record Eight Now Mining Copper-Silver Ore in Commercial Quantities and Others in Line for Production.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 3.—Butte is now breaking all of its previous good records in the way of copper ore production, and is destined to much greater achievement. Counting the six branches of the Amalgamated one, and the seven sections of the United Copper one, there are now eight companies mining this class of ore in commercial quantities in the district, and at least seven others that have entered the field with a view of mining it. The eight producers are the Amalgamated, United Copper, Original Consolidated or Clark company, North Butte Copper, Pittsburg Copper, Raven Copper and East Butte Copper. Reins Copper, enumerated in the seven list, will undoubtedly be mining copper ore on a commercial basis within the next six months, but it is not extracting any now because it is sinking its shaft. On the 800-foot level it has a vein of good ore. It expects to open this vein at a depth of 1,200 feet, but in order to reach it 200 feet more will have to be added to the shaft and a crosscut driven to the vein. This will take time, for after the sinking it will be a good-sized station will have to be cut near the bottom and pumps installed to keep out the water.

Returning to the six remaining companies, some are at work and some are not, but the only reason the latter are not working is because they are new in the area and have not had time to get under way. Included in the six list are the American Copper or Corvick syndicate, which is organized under the laws of the state of Maine, with a capitalization of $150,000; the Butte & London Copper, with a capitalization of $200,000; the Butte Copper Exploration, with a capitalization of $500,000; the Columbus Butte company, with a capitalization of $375,000; the Alice company, an old one operating here, and the company which is to be organized to work a group of claims on the east side. The latter will be in the field within two weeks, provided there are no hitches in the preliminary work.

The Butte Copper Exploration company, the last to complete its organization and make its announcements, is already at work. Two days after its completion it began to dig, and other machinery and began equipping the property. It intends to develop, which the other companies are not doing, the vein of the Greenleaf east of the city. George T. McGee, formerly an engineer in the employ of the Butte & Boston company, was placed in charge of the work and will superintend not only the installing of the machinery, but also the work of development, which will be begun on the six o'clock claim. This claim has on it a two-compartment shaft, 400 feet deep, that is well timbered. There is some water in the shaft, but not much time will be consumed in raising it to the surface and starting it towards the Pacific ocean. Since the company organized one of the men who owned an interest in the Golden Chief, one of the claims comprising the group, it given it out that there is a lot of 3 per cent copper ore in this particular claim and some spots of richer material, and the shaft is only 130 feet deep. He says that at the time this work was done copper was only 12 cents a pound, and the 3 per cent ore was not considered rich enough to extract and market at the prevailing price of the red metal. Copper ore that will now run 3 per cent is considered good, for since copper was 12 cents a pound many improvements have been made in the process of treatment, which, with the advanced figure at which copper is now selling, makes this class of ore desirable.

The Butte & London Copper company, organized about two weeks ago, expects to begin active operations within the near future. The ground of this company has never been developed to any extent, but the company intends to sink a shaft 1,200 or 1,500 feet and crosscut north and south. It figures that the vein of the Jessie mine, owned by the North Butte company, is the west side, traversed its ground on the flat. If the vein of the Jessie extends through the ground of the Butte & London, it is likely that other veins running parallel with it also cross the flat at that point. At any rate, the company is likely to get all about it by sinking and crosscutting.

It is reported that copper ore has been struck in the Blackrock claim in the North Butte district, but it has not been verified. The ground of this claim was struck by the company, but they say they know, the strike was made in a drift on the 500. The property is being worked by a company composed of Minneapolis, Butte, and other men, but is owned by Butte men. It adjoins the Niagara, owned by Meyer Gensberger, William F. Fitzgerald, the estate of William and James Forbes and J. K. Clark and also W. A. Clark.

Butte Lead Northern Michigan Men Form Companies to Mine in Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois.

Islepening, Mich., Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Northern Michigan men have within the past fortnight become interested in several companies organized for the purpose of exploiting zinc and lead mining in Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois. Mining in this portion of the country has been carried on for more than a century, but it is only during the past five years that the district has developed into a great producing center for lead and zinc ores and recently it has been attracting more attention than ever. Altogether, many millions of dollars' worth of minerals have been taken from shafts of such shallow depths that in the Lake Superior country, a region of deep mining, would be characterized as merely test pits.

The work of the early miners was confined wholly to mining lead ore, or "mineral," as it is termed in that region, zinc being regarded as of little value. As late as 1880 the average price of the latter metal was about $5 per ton, but since zinc has come into mines many the price has risen to a figure at least four times that. Mining activity in the district ceased from the date of the latter year until 1902, when a number of Chicago companies started active operations there, their advent marking the revival of a boom which has increased until there has developed a "rush" to the field. The ores mined are galena, or "mineral," lead, dry bone (carbonate of lead) and black jack (sulfide of zinc). As illustrating the influence exerted by the influx of mining companies, the growth of such towns as Platteville may be pointed to. Platteville four years ago had a population of several hundred people. Today it is a city of several thousand, and from a sleepy farming town it has developed into a municipality with every evidence of prosperity.

John E. Hodge, a Marquette county man, member of the firm of Longyear & Hodge, diamond drill contractors, spent several months in the district a year ago, when his firm conducted exploratory operations for several different parties. Tests are not made to the depths required in the copper and iron districts of Northern Michigan; in fact, the lowest depth from which Longyear & Hodge took cores was 250 feet. Mining in that district is what an upper peninsula miner of whom I called "scraping over," said Mr. Hodge. "Over an expanse of territory covering about 2,500 square miles, the country is covered with pits or mines that in this upper region would be called test holes. These pits were dug so many years ago that the rock and soil thrown up from them is now covered over with sod and layers of earth. Everywhere is seen evidence of where the early-day miners won the ore in a primitive way. Conditions have not radically changed in the district since that time except where practical mining men are in control of mines. The wilderness is still used, sometimes with horsepower, in other instances with manual labor. In the modern mine, however, steam is used for hoisting, and the equipment of some of the properties is up-to-date in every respect.

"The important deposits of lead and zinc ores occur in three different classes, those which are found in crevices, which are in the nature of vein deposits; the porous parts of limestone, which are referred to as honeycombs, and those which are termed disseminated deposits. The main crevices, which are more extensively mined, have a vertical position, and run approximately east and west, although they are crossed sometimes by others running north and south, at different angles. The miners designate the angles of these crevices in terms peculiar to the district. If the crevice runs at an angle in which a man's shadow would appear at 10 o'clock in the morning, with the sun shining, the crevice is referred to as a "10 o'clock." The different angles are referred to in general terms, but there seems to be no mistake made by those who use the nomenclature and can interpret it.

"The width of the ore crevices is anywhere from the thickness of a knife blade to thirty feet, extending for miles in some instances. With depth the crevices pass into a peculiar form of deposit, known as lumps and pitches, and it is in these basins that the greatest amount of ore is found. It is a recognized rule throughout the district that the mineral-bearing formation is found on the slopes and in the minor valleys. There is within the productive area very little flat ground, but nevertheless there is significance in the fact that the mines are for the most part located below such divide. Very little mining has been done below the actual bottom land, but this is due to the fact that wet mining could not be carried on by the small hand miner, who, for lack of pumping facilities, was compelled to abandon his mine when water was reached.

"Nearly all the companies are close corporations. Very few of the mine managers are practical miners, but there is so much ore, and the cost of winning it is so low, compared with copper and iron mining, that they can get on with very little mining. Very little timber is required. With the introduction of modern mining methods, the country is being worked to produce a vast amount of ore. As I have stated, the territory is covered with pits, anywhere from a few feet to sixty feet deep, and in almost all of them zinc ore is to be found, where it was left untouched by the miners of past decades."

Arizona Copper Mining Showing at Lowell Mine of the Copper Queen Favorable to Calumet Pittsburg-New Host ordered for Calumet & Arizona Powell Takes Hold.

Islepening, Mich., Feb. 3.—The situation in the Warren district may be summarized as more hopeful, or in better terms, more absolutely certain of production of large dividends than ever before in its history. Nothing in the mines may be said to in any manner detract from the hopeful prospect that has prevailed in the past, while recent developments can be said, in all positions, to sustain every ingredient making in the direction of greater realization than have ever before been realized.

Calumet & Pittsburg, in its two shafts, one of which the Houston, is certain to soon come to ore, while the other is certain of similar success by means of the drifts that are to go from Briggs shaft, has abundant occasion for the steadiness that has prevailed with reference to its stock. The same may be said with every one of the other Warren district stocks that are now on the market. No exception is to be made of the one outlying property, Wolverine or Arizona, the pioneering proposition of the camp, which is now certain of certain of making findings within a short time which will demonstrate the formation that has all along been contended for in that vicinity by those who have maintained confidence in the conditions there.

On the other extreme, the Saginaw has made headway with its work, which is exceedingly encouraging to future possibilities in that vicinity, inasmuch as the vicinity below the Saginaw is very large, and the outlook very promising in the territory. In so far as surface showings go, it is very important that the Saginaw should keep up the good work it has under way. Development has been encouraging of late to the theory of those people

Of unusual interest to many in this city is the following account of the wedding of Miss Ernestine Hirsch and Harvey Petersberger, formerly of this city. Miss Hirsch is well known in Duluth, where she resided for several years, and Mr. Petersberger made his home here for some years. The wedding took place at 10 o'clock this week at Quincey, Ill., and the following account is from a paper of that city:

Miss Ernestine Hirsch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lesser Hirsch of 631 North Sixth avenue, became the bride today of Harvey Petersberger of Duluth, Minn. Rabbi Epstein of the Jewish synagogue performed the ceremony at 10 o'clock this morning at the Hirsch residence.

Members of the Hirsch family were the only witnesses of the marriage, and the ceremony was a quiet affair. The bride and her attendant not even carrying flowers.

"The bride wore a traveling costume of blue broadcloth with hat to correspond with the train which was being plighted. Miss Fannie Hirsch, a younger sister of the bride, served in the capacity of maid of honor and was the only attendant. She was attired in a summery gown of tan silk.

Bride and groom left at noon on their honeymoon tour, and will be gone about two weeks. Davenport will be the first stopping place, and from there they will go to Chicago. Upon their return they will be at home to friends in a suitably furnished room at Eleventh and Maine streets. Later on they may settle down to housekeeping for themselves.

"Something of a romance is connected with the wedding of Miss Hirsch and Mr. Petersberger. They became acquainted while the former was visiting her brother about a year ago in Duluth. Mr. Petersberger was at that time and up to a few weeks ago identified with the Columbia Clothing company of Duluth. They became good friends as soon as they were introduced. Cupid did the rest. Their engagement was announced last fall when Miss Hirsch attended the wedding of her brother at Duluth.

The bride is an attractive and vivacious young woman, whose growing glory is a wealth of raven hair, which enhances the beauty of her peach-blossomed complexion. She is not only gifted with a pretty face and figure, but possesses many womanly accomplishments.

Mrs. Lawrence Larsen was pleasantly surprised yesterday afternoon at her home, 628 East Ninth street. The affair was in honor of the seventeenth anniversary of her wedding, and Mrs. Larsen was presented with a set of silver spoons. Those present were: G. Jensen, H. Turt, J. ## A Valentine Dinner

By Cornelia C. Bedford.

Though it may not be a legal holiday there is no day more universally beloved by young people than that of their cherished saint, the good Valentine. Hence it is that we may fitly honor his anniversary by pretty festivity—dances and gaiety for the feet that lightly trip through the rippling measures, and equally dainty feasting for those who perchance have grown a shade more staid.

In planning a menu for a Valentine dinner it should be made to accord with the general color scheme. This may either be rose, emblematic of hope and happiness or scarlet, the color of the heart of love's passion. For a pink dinner the following menu would be very appropriate:

Oysters on the Shell Cocktail Sauce Cream of Love Apple Sauce Twix Apples Tenderloin of Beef Cauliflower Shirrip with Celery Salad Cheese Wafers Angel Parfait Kisses and Bonbons Coffee

In planning the decorations it is also in trimming the tenderloin, be sure to carefully remove the thin but tough wide muscle which runs along one side. The tenderloin or fillet, as it is also called, weighs from three to five pounds, but is not very thick through. Hence will cook quickly. It should always be served rare, and from thirty to forty minutes in a very hot oven is sufficient for roasting.

The potatoes need to be begun early in the day. Wash a half cupful of rice place in a double boiler with water and boil until the rice is tender—this will take about thirty-five minutes. Drain, arrange in a vegetable dish and mask the top with a cream sauce, pruning the remainder around them.

From a head of celery, take the whitest and best stalks. Wash them, let stand in cold water until crisp, then cut in half inch pieces, there should be a full pint. Thoroughly rinse and separate a can of shrimps, then cut each in four pieces. Mix the celery moisten with mayonnaise. Make cups of blanched lettuce leaves, fill with salad, mince and mayonnaise and powder the top of each with paprika.

The dessert is as delicate as its name would imply. Whip one quart of cream, skimming off as much of the froth as possible and laying it on a sieve to drain. When no more foam will rise, beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, gradually adding one-half of a cupful of powdered sugar. Now beat in one scant teaspoonful of vanilla and one teaspoonful of extract of rose. Lightly mix in a cupful of whip and one-half of a cupful of candied rose leaves. Turn into a mold lined with a tightly fitting cover and a narrow strip of muslin dipped in melted lard and bury in ice and salt water for two hours.

The coffee should be clear and strong. Use a drip pot and allow one tablespoonful of coffee to each cup of water. Half of a cupful of boiling water for each person. This gives a drink of double strength which can be diluted by the addition of a little boiling water if desired.

Flourishes are needed for the third course. Select small ones and have the fish-monger fillet them; each will yield four boneless strips. Wash and make very dry on a cloth. Chop and pound a dozen oysters to a paste; add a half teaspoonful of anchovy essence, salt, paprika, a few drops of lemon juice, a drop of onion juice and one teaspoonful of cracked dust. Spread one fillet with a thin layer of this and cover with a second. Repeat until six pairs are ready. Arrange carefully several inches apart on a greased shallow pan, pour over two-thirds of a cupful of sherry and add a tablespoonful of butter cut in bits. Bake for twenty minutes in a hot oven, basting three times with the mixture in the pan. When done, sprinkle a little finely chopped parsley over each. With this serve potatoes (earth apples) which have been pared out in spirals with a French knife, called a quiller, scalded for ten minutes and finally dried and fried in deep fat. When such a knife is not at hand, a fluted slicer may be used; the spirals, however, are newer and more ornamental.

A Valentine Dinner

By Cornelia E. Bedford.

Though it may not be a legal holiday there is no day more universally beloved by young people than that of their cherished saint, the good Valentine. Hence it is that we may find many a young man and woman celebrating their anniversary by a party of friends—dancing and feasting for the first time since their wedding.

In planning a menu for a Valentine dinner it should be made to accord with the general color scheme. This may either be rose, emblematic of love and happiness or scarlet, the color of the heart of love's passion. For a pink dinner the following menu would be very appropriate:

Rice Croquettes Cauliflower
Shrimp with Celery Salad
Cheese Wafers
Angel Parfait
Kisses
Coffice

In planning the decorations it is always possible to rent from a caterer a table top in the shape of a heart; these tops are furnished with clamps which fasten them firmly to the ornate table. They are usually made of smoothly adjusting silver cloth and damask to so irregular a shape will determine the average height and width of the table.

The room should be entirely covered with the floral. A couple of flowers before the dinner table, then, will add to the effect.

For the dinner table, then, select roses, holly and carnations are the most appropriate flowers, while favors may be given in the shape of a heart.

The initial course of the dinner itself will be a simple affair. Spread a half of a tablecloth of butter, one tablespoonful of grated cheese and salt and pepper to taste.

When the dinner is served, drop them into vinegar which has been used for pickling beets and onions. The mixture should be entirely covered with the liquid. A couple of hours before the dinner begin to dry, then cut off about one-third of the end and with a small spoon carefully remove the yolks these may be used for a lunch salad.

Snip the upper edge of the pretty pink portion of the table, then spread a half of oysters and fill with a spoonful of the following mixture: Two tablespoons of onion juice, the juice of fresh lemon, one teaspoonful of oil, one tablespoonful of freshly ground horseradish, the juice of half of a lemon, one teaspoonful of Worcestershire, two-thirds of a tea-

The Lingerie Blouse

A novelty in construction

George Baker

The Dutch neck and the short sleeve

Its Triumphs and Its Failures—Stout Linens and Sheer Embroideries Contribute Their Charms—Shirtwaist Designs—The Dutch Neck and the Short Sleeve—High Collars and Long Sleeves on Imported Models—A Riot of Handwork—Lace and Embroidery Mingle in Clever Designs.

The showing of lingerie blouses at the smart shops is something to make the impecunious woman resolve to become skilled in the art of needlecraft instantly. If she cannot possibly purchase the exquisite examples that are spread before her, and pay the high price demanded without a regretful thought for the money so spent; then, at least, she can purchase the same or similar materials, and evolve for herself duplicates of those fascinating things, and for a fraction of their retail price, too.

Several of the metropolitan daily papers have lately contained announcements that sewing classes are in course of formation, and that for the price of subscription members will be instructed in the making of lingerie blouses, fancy neckwear, corset covers and such things dear to the fastidious heart, the cutting and fitting of those necessities of the wardrobe being done by experts.

A look-in at one of those clubs on a Saturday morning disclosed a large number of exceedingly well-dressed girls and women, all the way from 10 to 60, each one busily sewing at her work as though her bread and butter depended upon it. And the sheer and filmy materials upon which they worked! Just one look at the materials would assure even the most ignorant visitor that this was no Dorcas class making garments for the home or the foreign heathen. The softest of French nainsook and batiste, the sheerest of handkerchief laces, the finest of Valenciennes and Cluny laces, those are what the woman who knows is putting into those dainty blouses that she will afterwards have the satisfaction of saying that she has made them every stitch herself.

The blouse that lingers in the back still reigns the favorite, when the dressy type is under consideration. That the fronts are thus left free for such elaboration as may be desired upon is the real reason, the true lawfulness of this selection. There is simply no end to the designs offered; and once the work is begun, it is interesting to see just how far one can get away from the styles and methods that the ready-made blouses display. Any touch of originality shows up to the most delightful advantage where the blouse is concerned, and every stitch taken to its elaboration can be made to produce a telling effect. What wonder is it that with the approach of Lent each and every one of those so-called subscription sewing classes announces a full list, not a vacancy to be had for the late comer.

There is evident a return to the plain and severely tailored shirtwaist, the one that goes best with a tailor-made coat and skirt costume. One model in New York—and his name seems to be known from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast and back again—announces that really fashionable interest in this class of shirtwaist has never waned; that his workrooms have been plentifully patronized, and that, while the style in this garment has varied hardly perceptibly since its introduction, it has, nonetheless, gone calmly on its triumphant way, accepted by the best dressers, making a niche for itself in each and every well-regulated wardrobe that nothing else could possibly fill.

But, just the same, this very maker has perhaps the highest-priced line of lingerie blouses of batiste, handkerchief linen, soft French nainsook, and even in the silk weaves this same style may be found in his shop at prices that would make the uninitiated shiver.

One very clever model just recently introduced makes use of the extremely modish bolero in a very fetching fashion. There is a vest or plastron of tucking, the tucks running lengthwise, and each of them handstitched. Then there is a rounded bolero of broderie anglaise, or English eyelet work, applied on this plastron, the flat seam where the two join being covered with a ruffling of a narrow Valenciennes, the real hand-made web, of course.

The little square Dutch neck that was introduced last summer is expected to have quite an enthusiastic following in the new season. For the youthful this is, indeed, a charming device, one wherein a pretty throat is seen to delightful advantage; and possessing the added merit of them extensively—to whom the American woman without a maid resorts so freely.

Parisian coiffeurs make a specialty of instructing ladies' maids in their art, and the mistress usually pays the fee for such instruction. When the fashion in hair-dressing changes, as it does every once in so often, maids will bring her maid along with her, sent her beside the hair-dresser where she can observe every move, and then she readily learns just how to accomplish the novel coiffure.

With the eye to small economies and a perennial thirst that even the wealthiest of French and English mondaines practice, one can readily see how inexpensive, as well as convenient, it is to have a maid who is skilled in the art of coiffure always at hand.

Who was it that ever started the fallacy that disorderly, untidy hair, with wisps blowing every which way for Sunday, composed an artistic coiffure? Whoever it was, certainly was no friend to the girl of artistic aspirations, for anything more slovenly than this so-called artistic mode of hairdressing cannot well be imagined. A good thing it is that Dame Fashion has taken a hand in the game, and announced that brilliantine is to be applied the last thing to the finished coiffure. It pays, and pays well, to purchase the imported article in this respect, for the French brilliantine, the finest of French hand-made waxes have little tabs that stand up in the back against the hair, a mode that is suited only to a high dressing of the coiffure. I am bound to prove somewhat uncomfortable when a low dressing is followed, even though a hairnet be worn.

The short elbow sleeve—and some of the most expensive models have the arm covering so abbreviated that it never reaches the region of the elbow at all—is making a perfect furor for itself. It fits in well with the fad for short sleeves in coats and wraps, and with the long gloves, that do add more than a little to the modishness of one's appearance. But when the summer days come, with their oppressive heat, the modish woman will undoubtedly turn to the long-sleeved blouse, for even fabric gloves are bound to cling all too closely to the flesh in summer weather, and the long and daintily finished lingerie sleeve will look all the prettier when viewed from beneath the short sleeve of the linen coat.

Laces and embroideries, both of the machine-made persuasion, are very cleverly used after several different methods, and with excellent results in pretty nearly every instance. One model uses them in alternate strips, with a narrow Valenciennes to piece them together. The yoke has them meeting in a V in the middle, the blouse being joined in the same manner. Another model uses them in a wavy line that does much to break the abrupt line which the use of a yoke all too often entails.

Some novel outlines

Sets of four combs are supposed to be necessary. One for either side of the head and two for the back. The hairnet is now usually made after a comb fashion; this holding those little "scooping locks" at the nape of the neck better than did the pin.

Ostrich tips, usually combined with an alginate, are once more in favor; and without tips, the downy, fleecy flues sometimes tipped with pen-shaped spangles, or lightly dusted with gold or silver dust, are considered extremely appropriate for the younger generation. Chaplets of leaves, in gold or silver tissue, velvet or the ordinary foliage of the millinery counter, are wound around the knot of the coiffure, no matter just where it may happen to be placed. Coronets of ribbon bows and rosettes are among the latest effects, and very clever results are achieved in those simple materials. One in white satin ribbon has an intricate braiding of ribbon for the foundation, and on this there are five roses in the same white ribbon, each well wired and spangled with diamond rhinestone dewdrops.

Those little Juliet caps have not made all of the success in New York that they have abroad. Caps, however, over there are in far more favor than they ever attained to here. At a recent wedding the bridesmaids all wore lace mob caps, just the same as their great-grandmothers used to wear, and the effect while hardly universally becoming, was still successful from a purely spectacular point of view. One place or more is shown with jewels either real or mock—and gold mountings,

The extreme vogue of ribbons brings forth new uses every day. A recent idea shows a corset cover made entirely of wash ribbons in two-inch widths, these running around the body and attached together by means of lace bending through which are run wash only ribbons. The front is finished with a full of the ribbon down either side of the bodice, and the armholes are treated in the same manner. Hats of tiny ribbon plantings are shown among the advance models for the spring and summer season for both the little folks and their elders. Nothing could be simpler than the construction of these.

The wire shape is selected and after a thin lawn or similar material is adjusted over it the plantings are sewed on, row after row, much in the same manner as braid, with the exception, of course, that only one edge is sewed down. Some there are with fancy soft straw crowns, which can be bought in plume form and are very easy of manipulation. Gaily colored belts attract the eye of the passerby at the belt centers of the metropolitan slopes. The fad for plaids and checks in broad silks and woolen weaves has influenced the ribbon manufacturers to bring out plaid and checked ribbons, and it is of these ribbons that the belts are made. They range in width from one to two and a half inches, being mounted plain over a foundation of hair-cloth. They are then stitched many times lengthwise, usually in white heavy silk, and fasten with a gold or silver buckle in the front. Elastic belts, that is, elastic over which is slipped a wide silk or ribbon are studded with steel nailheads and frequently jet, but the steel decorations are the most popular.

DESCRIPTION OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

The Dutch Neck and the Short Sleeve.

The little square cut-out neck that is variously known as the Dutch, the Continental and the London Dutch, is one of the characteristics of the lingerie blouse in its summer time guise. As seen in the illustration, the square cut at the neck is somewhat filled in with lace, and a softening touch is given in the little lace ruffle that runs around the throat. The blouse is tucked in groups all across the front and in the shoulder seams, and a straggling pattern of Canterbury bells is wrought by hand with delightful effect across the front. The fastening is in the back, just a little leafy vine pattern being worked in parallel rows either side of the fastening. The sleeve is a short and moderately full puff, dropping into a tucked band at the elbow, and this in turn edged with a lingerie frill with a lace edge.

A Novelty in Construction.

The usual order of things is reversed in this effective little blouse, for the broad piece of imitation Irish crochet, in place of forming the yoke, as is usually done, is made to fill in the space between the bust and the waistline. The top of the blouse, altogether of lengthwise tucking, and is plaided with a guipure embroidery in lace design. To this the all-over lace is applied, the fullness of the blouse so made dropping into a firmly-boned ribbon ceinture. The sleeve is novel in effect, full and puffy at the top, and the semblance of a series of puffs is given by means of applied bands of the trimming lace at close intervals. The collar is also of this lace, and the garment fastens in the back.

The Daintiness of the Later Mode.

The exquisitely sheer embroidery that is combined with a novel lace that partakes partly of the nature of Venetian and partly of that of Irish crochet makes this waist a marvel of daintiness. And yet it is so simple that any woman who knows at all how to handle a needle may readily reproduce it for herself. A little Valenciennes is used to blend the broad lace and the embroidery together, and with excellent results. There is a V-shaped yoke over the shoulders, composed of the bands of lace and embroidery, the braid lace making the collar with featherbone supports as usual, the Valenciennes assuming a slightly wavy line where the blouse is applied with scant fulness. The shoulder is broad, the sleeve top assuming lengthwise lines, while the cuff employs the same materials in the contrary direction.

For Wear With a Tailor-made Gown.

The plain severity of this style will commend it to many, although the handkerchief cuff, lace edged, does in a measure mitigate the plainness of the shirtwaist. The front shows a novel variation of the similar broderie anglaise or eyelet work, this all wrought by hand; while a folded stock collar of the plain linen is left absolutely untrimmed. Deep tucks occupy the front, either side of the plastron and fill the entire shoulder seam. This latter item is of the broad variety, and extends well to the curve of the arm, while the tucks are pressed flat in the shape of plants close down to the waistline. The sleeve is full, shirred to the armhole and with the fullest caught into tucks below the elbow, the handkerchief ruffle making a finish halfway to the wrist. The fastening is effected at one side of the plastron, insistibly.

Some Novel Outlines.

Quite a different appearance is given to this blouse in the clever way the plastron is inserted. The fastening, as usual, is in the back. The plastron is of small-placed tucks, handstitched, and the broderie anglaise that forms the bolero part is applied with a little ruffled Valenciennes to cover the joining seam. The collar is high and well featherboned to hold it close to the throat, the tucking and a little lace ruffled along his top making this item. The sleeve is quite full, shirred to the armhole, and lace and a tuck are used to form a festoon pattern on the forearm. The deep castellated cuff is of the tucking and edged all along its several tabs with the ruffled Valenciennes.

FASHION NOTES.

Ruches are still the favorite neck finish, and are used in gowns of all descriptions, from the most elaborate sort to the simple shirtwaist dress. The stiff white stock and turnover collar, so much worn several years ago, are still used to some extent, and for certain occasions are the only suitable choice. But in the lingerie, silk and crepe blouses and any costume which is not of the most severe type, the becoming ruche is generally seen. The washable kinds are the most practical for many uses, and for this reason the net or footling ruching is a favorite, as it may be left in the neck of a wash blouse and laundered with it.

The platted chiffon ruches are also very pretty, but need constant replenishing, and can only be worn once or twice, so that they are rather expensive. There is also another sort of ruching which is not washable but looks very well in simply made gowns. It comes at 25 cents a box, which makes the cost of each ruche about two cents. The skirt is of a folded stiffened net, finely plaited, and though not suitable for a very fine, elaborately trimmed blouse or frock, is a very satisfactory general wear.

For the well-dressed woman fresh ruching is, of course, essential, and it is much to be preferred that the simplest, most inexpensive sort be worn and that it be spotlessly fresh.

On the white lingerie blouse, of the lace trimmed and embroidered sort, half-inch wide colored ribbon is also used, either the plain gros-grain ribbon or the self-figured dotted or embroidered kind.

The very thin handkerchiefs showing little plaids or cross bars in white thread across the surface are also in favor, and the mercerized linen varieties with colored borders and initials or signatures in the corners are still in vogue. The plain linen handkerchief, however, with a rather narrow hem and hand-stitched initials in one corner are always very desirable and in good taste.

THE MODE IN COIFFURE.

Some Recent Revelations—Delightful Variety and a Wide Choice Permissible—Coiffure Ornaments and Dressings.

There are pretty nearly as many ways of dressing the hair this season as there are individuals, one might almost say, and the statement would be not so very far from the truth, after all.

In the later modes fashion decrees a change from the undulations that have become so distressingly popular, and which, even when done by an artist, cannot help but appear strikingly artificial. While the waved hair is still in good standing, the later modes endeavor to produce some nearer semblance to a natural wave.

Evening coiffures this season, and especially when planned for opera and theater wear, are still to be dressed high. The fashion of omitting the hat when on grand occasions is one that gains ground almost daily on this side of the water. What in the world is the sense in making an elaborate coiffure for evening wear and then covering it up with a hat? Added to which the cost of one evening hat—or two at the most—would pay for any number of elaborate or artistic coiffures many times over, and perhaps allow a margin for instruction in the art besides!

Women who will unhesitatingly and ungrudgingly allow themselves all sorts of extravagant luxuries will nevertheless deny themselves the services of an artistic coiffure or a trained maid. In this one instance the American woman of even moderate means would do well to copy her French or English cousin, with whom the maid is as indispensable as are the clothes of which she takes care. She is supposed to be skilled in the care of the hair, the skin, the complexion, and to replace in her services the many specialists—most of them incompetent and all of them expensive—to whom the American woman without a maid resorts so freely.

Parisian coiffeurs make a specialty of instructing ladies' maids in their art, and the mistress usually pays the fee for such instruction. When the fashion in hair-dressing changes, as it does every once in so often, maids will bring her maid along with her, sent her beside the hair-dresser where she can observe every move, and then she readily learns just how to accomplish the novel coiffure.

With the eye to small economies and a perennial thirst that even the wealthiest of French and English mondaines practice, one can readily see how inexpensive, as well as convenient, it is to have a maid who is skilled in the art of coiffure always at hand.

Like all of their toilet articles and accessories, must pass examination by the public chemist ere it can be placed on sale, so that it can be officially guaranteed as absolutely pure and harmless—contains less alcohol than does the domestic, and there is less danger of the hair becoming brittle and snapping off under its continued use.

Few women there are who have sufficient confidence of their own natural growth to achieve the elaborate structure that is prescribed for evening and full dress use. Little dusted with gold or silver dust, are considered extremely appropriate for the younger generation. Chaplets of leaves, in gold or silver tissue, velvet or the ordinary foliage of the millinery counter, are wound around the knot of the coiffure, no matter just where it may happen to be placed.

The simple fashion of parting the hair and drawing its length into a knot at the back is one that when becoming at all is usually extremely and characteristically so. The few women to whom this style is appropriate wisely enough seldom or ever change it, in spite of the many and frequent changes that fashion recommends in this connection. Just a long, loose and easy wave of the locks over the ears is all that is supposed to be necessary to its dressing. Not that kind of a wave that is known as Marcel, after its inventor, but just that loose wave that comes when the locks are habitually braided in a thick braid and not caught too tight.

The ornaments that are supposed to finish the coiffure are becoming prettier and daintier every day. The many combs necessary to keeping would be struggling locks in place are shown with jewels either real or mock—and gold mountings,

A Veteran Contractor Gone

James Porter Was One of the Largest Contractors in America.

Four of His Sons Continue the Business on Wider Scale.

The death of James Porter of this city, at his home in Lakeside, Monday evening of this week, marked the passing of one of the veteran contractors, one of those who have been engaged on some of the largest and most important construction work on this continent and one who has been able, in the declining years of his life, to look back over a long period of success and watch a family of sons take up his work, where he left it, and push onward until they have established the reputation of being one of the largest contracting firms, along the lines of general construction, that there is in the West.

James Porter was 84 years of age, when he died. For the past eleven or twelve years he has not been actively engaged in business, but the firm of Porter Bros., composed of four of his sons, has, during that period, continued to build up the business and reach further and further into new fields until now their operations extend to the Pacific coast.

James Porter was a native of Nova Scotia, being born in the county of Pictou, April 13, 1822. During the early years of his manhood he was actively engaged in the logging and lumbering business in Nova Scotia, and from that drifted into the general contracting business. He was married to Jane Patrick, also of Pictou county, Nova Scotia, in 1848. Mrs. Porter is still surviving, at the age of 73 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter and family came from Nova Scotia to Duluth thirteen years ago. Eleven years ago they celebrated their golden wedding. Their record of more than sixty years of wedded life before the grim reaper came is something unusual and of more than passing interest.

Three daughters and six sons survive James Porter, the daughters, all of whom reside in Duluth are Mrs. James Sutherland, Mrs. Philip Westway and Mrs. H. N. Randall. Of the sons, Andrew R. of Duluth, John D., Richard P. and Johnson P., of Spokane, comprise the firm of Porter Bros., a concern that has, in connection with its other projects, one $3,000,000 contract in the West. Joseph Porter, another son is a mine owner in California, and another son, Joseph W. Porter, is a successful contractor in the state of Montana.

James Porter was a member of the Presbyterian church, of long standing. He was of genial disposition and at times would interest his friends here with recollections of large works that he was connected with before coming to the Head of the Lakes. One of these was the scheme of building a marine railway across the isthmus of Chicago, in Nova Scotia, a distance of twenty-five miles from water to water. The project was one of the largest ever attempted in the maritime provinces and the work was well under way by Mr. Porter when the failure of the enterprise, stopped the construction and the road was never finished. The project was to have the big boats lifted on either side of the isthmus by immense hydraulic power and transport them on cars across the intervening twenty-five miles to water on the other side, thus shortening the route around the peninsula for the coast boats and those in the St. Lawrence river trade. Besides this work Mr. Porter was engaged in a great deal of railroad building throughout the maritime provinces.

The funeral of Mr. Porter was held from the family residence at 4402 Cook street, Thursday, Feb. 1, and the remains were interred at Forest Hill cemetery.

PAULINE HALL IN "DORCAS."

The engagement of Pauline Hall and her big opera company at the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday promises to be a most interesting event. "Dorcas" is the work of Harry and Edward Paulson, authors of "Emmeline" in the stellar role of which Miss Hall won great success. So great was the success of that opera that the public refused for a long time to accept Miss Hall in anything else. After repeated efforts and the reading of innumerable operatic offerings Miss Hall finally secured "Dorcas" from the Messrs. Paulson, who spent three years in writing it. When produced in New York it proved to be one of the greatest operatic successes of recent years. Containing a stellar role written especially for her, "Dorcas" not only affords the widest range to Miss Hall's voice, but it affords her almost unlimited opportunities for the displaying of the histrionic powers she is known to possess. The new opera has been staged in an elaborate manner.

The question of the selection of a postmaster at Duluth is still under consideration. The board of county commissioners held its regular monthly meeting next Wednesday, at which time it is probable that some action will be taken toward selecting a site for the new courthouse.

Three of the five persons appointed to the board of courthouse commissioners have been sworn in, and it is expected that the remaining two will assume office the day that the county guaranty necessary to secure water extensions to the hill district, the amount to be divided between the Franklin and South street schools. The former building was in the district in question and the latter will be located there.

A number of routine matters were disposed of by the board, and some supplies purchased.

PLANS ARE APPROVED

School Board Calls for Bids on Two New Buildings.

Hot Lunches for Pupils and Teachers at High School.

Bids for the two new school buildings, which will be erected by the board of education during the coming spring and summer, will be opened at the next meeting of the board, to be held on the first Friday in March.

At the regular meeting of the board held last evening, A. Terryberry presented his corrected plans and detailed specifications for the new West Duluth school building, which is to cost in the neighborhood of $50,000, and Germain Lignell presented their detailed plans for the new Sixth street grade school building, which will cost about an equal amount.

The clerk was instructed by the board to advertise for bids for both schools and the bids will be received and opened by the board at the next meeting to be held in March.

If the bids are satisfactory the contracts for both buildings can be let at that meeting, and work will be commenced on the two new structures just as soon as the snow is off the ground.

Hereafter pupils and teachers at the Central high school will be able to secure a warm lunch during the brief recesses of twenty minutes allowed under the present arrangement of studies. The installation of a lunch counter in the basement was recommended by Supt. Denfeld several months ago, and it has always been a pet project of Chairman C. L. Coddling.

Under the present system the pupils and teachers have no time to leave the building at noon, and they are compelled to eat only cold lunches, which must be rather hastily bolted. Teachers and parents of the children have complained of the effects on health, and the board has been urged to make some change which would allow a hot lunch at noon.

As a result of the action of the board last evening, a lunch counter will be installed in the basement of the building, where hot drinks and warm lunches will be served at cost to the children and teachers. It was stipulated by the board that not more than $250 was to be expended in equipping the lunch room.

The board pledged $100 toward the guaranty necessary to secure water extensions to the hill district, the amount to be divided between the Franklin and South street schools. The former building was in the district in question and the latter will be located there.

A number of routine matters were disposed of by the board, and some supplies purchased.

TAKEN BACK TO SCHOOL.

Girl From Owatonna School Not Allowed to Attend School.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Hannah Swindler, matron of the State School for Dependent Children at Owatonna, came to Fergus Falls, and in company of Sheriff Albertson, went to the town of Ellington, to get a 14-year-old girl, who was placed in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Peters, six years ago by the Owatonna institution. Mrs. Peters died two years ago, and the girl has been doing the housework for Mr. Peters since, but was denied school privileges on account of the work. The neighbors informed the Owatonna school of the situation, and Miss Swindler came up after the girl, who returned with her.

A tramp from North Dakota, who gives his name as Thomas C. Cox, was brought to Fergus Falls yesterday by the school directors of District No. 92, just north of the city, charged with breaking into a school building, and sentenced to the county jail.

The annual district convention of the Swedish Lutheran church, of the Alexandria district, has been in session the past three days in Fergus Falls, ending last night. A large amount of business was done, future meetings arranged for, and the following officers were elected: Foreman, Rev. Mr. Erickson of Evansville; treasurer, Rev. Mr. Erickson of Holmes City.

BLIND JAPS

Made Self-Supporting by Instruction in Art of Massage.

Toledo, Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Japan is the only country in the world that has succeeded in making its blind self supporting. Since time immemorial blind Japs have been instructed in the art of massage, and it is a well known fact that massage is nowhere as effect and cheap as in the mikado's country. The Japs smile when they read of the large expenses imposed upon American and European communities by the care for the blind.

"To make them self supporting is far more important than to teach them to read and write," they say, "what are they to do with their knowledge if, at the same time, they remain charity objects."

The Japs are of the opinion that massage affords a most desirable cure for many ills, and by instructing the blind in massage, even poor Japs are put in a position to avail themselves of this remedy. The government supports institutions for teaching the blind massage, and as a consequence neither state nor local budgets are burdened with the cost of keeping the blind. An American lady residing here said to your correspondent: "In the United States many women refrain from submitting to massage because female massagers are unsatisfactory and they wouldn't think of employing a male person. If, however, the male person is blind, that alters things considerably. I think the Jap method of making the blind self supporting ought to be imitated."

The Normal School Dormitory

NEW DORMITORY OF DULUTH NORMAL SCHOOL.

Work on the new $30,000 dormitory of the Duluth state normal school is now progressing at a rapid rate, following a considerable delay due to bad weather. The walls are completed up to the second story and a few days more will see the brick work complete above that story.

This is an improvement provided for by the last legislature and is located just east of the normal school building and on a slightly slight on the corner of Fifth street and Twenty-third avenue East.

It will be a brick and stone structure, 90 by 45 feet, comprising two stories and a basement. The building will face the normal school and at either end of the structure will be large porches.

It was planned by Clarence Johnson, the state architect at St. Paul, and is intended to be as complete as it is possible for a building of that nature to be. The basement will contain a large kitchen, 25 by 17 feet, pantries, storerooms, a serving room, a lunch room, 10 by 17 feet, and a dining room, 27 by 24½ feet, and well lighted. At the other end of the building will be the bedrooms and toilet rooms for the servants, and across the corridor the laundry, boiler and fuel rooms.

On the first floor will be a long corridor, extending clear through the building. Opening off this corridor will be the parlor, 24½ by 17½ feet, connecting with a suite of rooms consisting of a bedroom, parlor and bathroom for the matron and a spare room that will be utilized for other a store or sick room. On the first floor there are also four other large bedrooms with toilet and bathroom and closets.

The second floor will be utilized entirely for bedrooms and toilets. Each bedroom will be 12½ by 17½ feet and will have two large closets. The attic floor will not be finished at present, but may later be utilized for bedrooms if found necessary.

It is expected that the dormitory will be completed by July next. It will not be put to use until next September. The furnishing and fitting out of the building will be done during the summer months.

"I make a practical experiment," Mr. Pressy left the ministry and with a few associates went to Montana and sought by intensive farming by making the best use of the country, an abiding place in the true sense of the word, to establish a community which would more closely touch the inner things of life. The work in a way is a kind of social settlement work taken in the country. The whole plan has been very successful and the arts

A meeting of the Shoshone Mining Development and Improvement company has just been held here and the reports showed that the affairs of the company were in excellent condition. A good deal of development work has been accomplished during the last year and the conditions of the mine are good. The company owns 1,400 acres of mineral land and 150 acres of coal land in the Big Horn basin, in Wyoming. Only a small force of men is employed at present, but when the spring opens up it is the intention of the company to put on a larger force and to develop the mine.

All Glove Contests to Take Place at Mechan- ics' Pavilion

They Will Be Under Management of Coffroth & Co.

San Francisco, Feb. 3.—The threatened "Flight Trust" has become a reality, and somehow the sports around here seem to think it is a pretty good thing. The permits for the whole year have been granted to a quartet of clubs, ostensibly managed by Jom Croffort, Morris Levy, Eddie Graney and W. F. Britt.

The plan, unpublished facts are that Croffort controls 75 per cent of the flight dates and Levy 25, and that the profits of the year's operations will be divided accordingly. Graney is interested in Croffort's end of it, and Britt, according to inside rumors, is to be taken care of in a small way.

keep the game wholesome and retain the confidence and patronage of the public.

Furthermore, Coffroth knows that many people are of the opinion that boxing will be on the list of forbidden sports when the legislature meets a year from now.

If there is one chance in a hundred of stalling off the inevitable it rests in Coffroth's hands. Coffroth, with his high-priced three years' experience in the ring, is not likely to lose sight of this.

In the new order of things will enable the promoters to present a solid front to the pugilists. In the old days one matchmaker hid covertly against another, for at that time the promoters with pretensions to class were enabled to evade hard bargains. In future, if required to speak truly, the best cards will be required to win the prize money, and to take their wares to some other fight.

In 1906 promoters have been so busy getting their affairs in shape that they have not paid the strictest attention to match making. The ingenious explanation is forthcoming that they didn't care to lay out a program of attractions, as it would take assurance on their part to do so before the new supervisors designated the clubs show, with February a few days distant, no match has as yet been arranged for that month.

Coffroth has offered Tommy Ryan a February match with Jack (Twinn) Sullivan, although Tommy asked for the date, now that it is at his disposal is dilatory about accepting it.

Jimmy Britt, it is understood, would like to box in February, and it is quite likely that a match of some kind will be arranged for him. There are word the young man, for consideration, and the latter, in reply, told him that there is to a go between Britt and himself, and "Young Corner" will be the place for the encounter.

Oakland that he thinks he is better entitled to a match with Britt than the other challengers.

Eddie Hansen, pressing his claims in his usual modest way, Eddie says that he has a backer who will wager $100,000 on him to win the fight with Britt. Herrera has sent a long-distance request for a contest with our champion, and he is waiting for a reply. He says that he is a fighter of light, Frankie Neil wants to "show Britt" that he isn't the only native Californian who can ladle out rips and hits.

At the time of writing Britt is still in Los Angeles. When he arrives here he will probably be met by a crowd of men among the men named. The one thing certain is that Joe Gans will not be present. He is expected on the subject of a return match with Britt, but he is positively afraid.

It is a hard life now, and the sports would go a long way to see him in action with either Britt or Battling Nelson. Manager Nolan is quoted to say that he is not going to let Gans on the score of color, but because the negro lightweight is a "frank nigger" and that he is afraid that he would suffer by contact with Gans.

He has given some of Gans' admirers in San Francisco a chance to mark that the greatest damage to Gans' reputation would be in a pugilistic sense, and he is not to be believed here that Gans is sincere, so as his scheme of reformation is not to be believed.

In the opinion of the majority, of any Gans attaching to Nelson should be considered as a disgrace.

Nelson is what might be termed a one in his class the world over. These ideas will soon dissipate if he steadfastly refuses to box Gans. All Ian's talk of preserving Nelson's reputation unscathed will be considered interference, and instead of battling Nelson being regarded as the lightweight phenomenon of his day, he will be looked upon as a fellow with illusions, one who suspects that a certain chocolate-hued lightweight is his master and is determined not to put the question to the test.

Log business has now reached a stage where the lumbermen are unable to possibly get their contracts completely filled. The mills are now running at 50 per cent expected to last much over six weeks longer. About 100,000 feet of lumber is being cut each week for the Duluth mill and from 80 to 100 carloads per day are being shipped to Duluth.

Attorney and Mrs. D. H. Lawrence left Sunday for their summer home at the north end of the island.

There are no regular trains having logs between here and Duluth, as there are no regular trains between here and two between Knife River and Duluth. The only regular train between here and Duluth is the one between here and Tower Junction.

The fire department was called out Wednesday afternoon by a fire in the building at the corner of Second and Third streets. The fire was caused by some hard catching fire. The fire was extinguished by Mr. Rose, without the aid of the department.

McKinley, Feb. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern has 100 tons of iron ore in the stockpile, being the largest amount at this time last year, owing to the fact that the ore is being sold at a profit. The shaft is now nearly ready for then and it is expected to service the mill for some time to come. The hoisting will be rapid.

A very pleasant and successful man has just left here for the village here Friday evening.

The mill here now has a large amount shipping about ten carloads of lumber per day to Duluth from their spur Mile X 21.

HANS, A BOY OF THE MOUNTAINS and the Result of his Foolish Wish

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

Far up on a high mountain side lived little Hans with his father and mother. Down in the valley nestled a pretty village where a good master kept a school to which Hans' parents sent him to learn as soon as he was of age to go. But Hans did not like to be shut in the schoolhouse for certain hours daily, neither did he love his books. He delighted only in roaming about the wild mountain side, playing with the little squirrels that lived in the woods in such numbers.

One morning as he was on his way to school he sat down under a big oak tree to take a rest and watch his favorite as they frolicked about on limb and ground. "Oh I wish, I wish, I wish with all my heart," said Hans aloud, "that I was a squirrel and did not have to go to school, nor ever have to do anything save romp and play."

Now in that wood there roamed an old witch who possessed the power to grant idle, foolish wishes but who had not the gift to grant good, wise ones. At the very moment that Hans made his wish she happened to be passing behind the tree and heard him. At once she threw her spell over him and caused a sleep to deaden his senses. Then, waving round his head the empty skin of a snake, she spoke some incantation and went her way. In half an hour Hans awoke to find himself changed into the form of a squirrel. At once he tried to rise on his feet, which he found to be paws. Then he discovered that to go on all fours was much easier than to try to walk on two. And a great bushy tail waved over his back and caused him great discomfort. Upon this discovery Hans tried to ejaculate "Oh!" but his tongue had forgotten the cunning of speech.

At this minute the old witch came back to see if her spell had worked successfully. On beholding Hans rise on all fours and look about him in a dazed sort of way she could before him and said: "I am the Witch of Follies, and hearing your wish to be a squirrel I have granted it."

Then it was that Hans realized fully the extent of his folly. A squirrel was he—doomed to go on four feet all his days; a little animal deprived of the power of speech, one that must live in the forest and hunt for his food in the dead leaves and dirt. The thought saddened him, and being unable to reproach the old witch in words he made a leap for her face and bit and scratched her unmercifully. She frantically tore him off and throwing him against the trunk of the tree, he screamed out in tones of rage: "For this ungrateful and violent act you shall remain a squirrel all your life, for there are just two ways by which my spell can be broken; my death puts an end to my power and returns to their original form the victims of my charm; but as there is but one way for me to die—which is through the adulterous act of a certain poison extracted from a secret vine which grows beneath the ground—I am in no danger of death. The other means is through the workings of the Queen of the Air Fairies, who was never known to come to this wood. Therefore, content yourself as best you can by being a squirrel."

Then waving her snakelike tail which went her way again. Hans sat down under the tree and gave himself up in grief. There beside him lay his schoolbooks and his dear little lunchbox filled with the dainty biscuits, cake and cold fowl that he had seen his dear mother fix for his noonday meal to be eaten at the schoolhouse in the village. And as if to bring his sorrowful condition to him more forcibly the happy shouts of his schoolfellows came up the mountain side and filled his ears. Then he heard the bell ring that called the merry children to their books. Oh, how he wished and wished that he might be a boy again and go to the school which now appeared to him in such a happy light. After all, it was pleasant to learn the many things the good master took such pains to teach him.

And through the long day he roamed about the mountain side, having many fights with other squirrels, who seemed to resent the coming of a stranger in their midst. And when at last, late in the afternoon, he returned to the big oak tree to find a parcel of cake and fowl in his basket, for he was very hungry and tired, to his great dismay he found that other squirrels had dared to tear the lid from the basket and had eaten all the luncheon his mother had put in for him. Hans sat down to think over some plan for his future. Feeling cold for the evening wind was growing chill—he tried to reënter the coming of a stranger in their midst. And when at last, late in the afternoon, he returned to the big oak tree to find a parcel of cake and fowl in his basket, for he was very hungry and tired, to his great dismay he found that other squirrels had dared to tear the lid from the basket and had eaten all the luncheon his mother had put in for him.

Just as the sun was dropping behind the mountain top Hans heard the sound of footsteps coming down the path leading from his home to the village. In another minute a hand seized hold of the basket and his father's voice soliloquized: "Strange that Hans should have left his books and basket here all day, for it's plain he did not take them to school with him. Ah, but what have we in the basket?" and Hans felt his father's warm hand stroke his back. "Why, it's a little squirrel, one that Hans has likely made friends with as he went to and from school. Well, I'll carry the books and basket—with Mr. Squirrel, too—up to the house, for it may be that Hans has gone home by another path. And how pleased the little man will be to find a pet squirrel coming for him."

So saying, Hans was taken up the mountain side to his own dear home to become a pet animal. Oh, how bitterly he repented his folly of the morning, and in vain did he try to cry out in the agony of his heart.

As they neared the house Hans peeped over the side of the basket and saw his dear mother sitting just inside the open door knitting a nice, warm pair of leggings for him and watching for her little boy. "Where is Hans? Didn't you find him?" she called out in an anxious tone, seeing her husband alone.

"No, wife," replied the worried man, "I found his books and basket down under the oak tree, and thinking that maybe he had returned home by another path I came back to see and to bring these."

See—here's a pretty pet squirrel, that is as gentle as a kitten, and stayed in the basket to be brought here. Hans will be much pleased with it."

But the anxious mother had little interest in the squirrel or in anything else, till her boy should come home. "Maybe he has been kept after school to complete some task," she suggested, with a sorrowful hope that such was the case.

"Go, husband, to the village at once and see if he is not being detained by the schoolmaster. It is time that he were here half an hour ago. I am much worried."

And Hans heard his poor mother sigh heavily, a sigh that tore his very heart strings.

His father set out toward the village

after kissing the anxious mother, and begging her not to worry, as he would doubtless find that child loitering along the way. So the good woman rose and began to lay the table for the evening meal. But every minute she would go to the door and look for her son. After watching her till his heart seemed bursting, Hans softly leaped from the basket, which his father had placed on the floor, and ran to his mother's feet, rubbing his head lovingly against her feet. The astonished woman stooped down and stroked his fur, saying "You dear little thing, I'm quite sure Hans knows you, and that it is through his gentleness that you have grown so tame."

Then she completed the preparations for supper, Hans seeing her put his own little blue china porridge bowl and silver spoon at his place on the table. "Oh, my darling little one," wailed the good mother, returning from the door for the twentieth time, "I am so fearful some harm has befallen you."

"Then Hans' father, accompanied by several good citizens of the village, came up the mountain without the lost boy. They came into the house with and, but hopeful faces. Hans' mother was told that her son had not been at school that day, nor had anyone seen him. It was probable that he had wandered off over the mountain side, and had lost his way. So a searching party had been formed and were going out to scour the surrounding country for the missing child. Hans' father gave his wife instructions that if the child should return she should give the signal by blowing the great dinner-horn. She would be kept informed of the whereabouts of the hunters, who were to go singly to cover all parts of the mountain as rapidly as possible, by their firing on guns at short intervals to keep them aware of their locations. If one of them should chance upon the boy he was to fire his gun three times in quick succession, whereupon all would gather at the house again.

At this point Hans' father set out equipped with lanterns and guns, and the door and clapping his hands in prayer, her eyes full of misery, went Hans' mother, bending her ears every time she heard a gun, waiting waiting to hear the other two quick reports. But midnight came, and she still listened in vain. At last, exhausted with her grief—for she now had no hope of ever seeing her child alive again—she threw herself on the bed and buried her face in the pillow. Hans, who had kept close beside her feet, walking when she walked, and sitting when she sat for a minute at a time, crept on the bed beside her, his eyes smarting for want of the tears which he could not shed.

But just as he sat there a white-winged figure fitted past the open door and glanced in. Back it passed again, and this time passed beside the open window. Hans' heart gave a bound. Suppose this was the Queen of the Air Fairies! She and she alone could help him. He bounded from the bed, careful not to make any noise lest he disturb his mother, and ran to the door.

As he stood there the most beautiful creature he had ever seen came and bent over him. "Are you the little mountain boy who I wish to become a squirrel, and whose foolish wish was granted by the old Witch of the Woods? If so, I am in quest of you to undo the wrong she did you. All day I have had warning in the air that you were in trouble here and in need of my charm. As I was on my way I heard the old Witch of the Woods wailing in great agony. I went to her in her cave and found her dying. She had distilled some of her poison to kill snakes with and had set it in a basin outside the cave to cool. One of her victims came along, and knowing it to be the drug that could alone kill the bad old witch, he took a part of the poison and poured it in a drinking vessel that held some spring water which the witch had brought to drink. Growing thirsty, the witch took a deep draught from the poisoned water and became violently ill. After I went to her she seemed to become easier, and said she knew that she could not get well and that she wished me to send the happy news to the anxious father and his assisting friends, who were still on the mountain searching with all their might."

In half an hour the searching party reached the mountaineer's cottage, where little Hans was folded lovingly in his father's arms once more. "And where is the pretty little squirrel, wife, that I found in Hans' basket? Bring him to the boy," cried the happy man.

And then it was as they all assembled around the breakfast table, that Hans told them they would never again see the little pet squirrel who had come to their house so willingly; and, to the amazement of all, he related his most unusual experience of the previous day. And not one doubted the truth of his story, for it had been known in that part of the mountains that a very bad old witch roamed hither and thither, but it had not been known the extent of her evil powers.

"Well, dear father and mother," said Hans, putting his arm round his mother's neck, "I'll never wish to be anything again except squirrel. I'm satisfied to be just Hans and to go to school and learn and make myself useful to those who love me."

And it came to pass that Hans was one present shape; that the little fellow was most unhappy and that she could not die in peace with her husband on her conscience. After I promised to find the squirrel she lay down and died, thus ending her evil life and also ending the life of the last witch in this mountain. Now, the little gray squirrel, if you are the one whom I seek manifest it by sitting up and clasping your paws."

It did not take any further bidding from the good fairy to make Hans disclose the truth of his identity. He sat bolt upright and clasped his little paws, turning the most thankful and adoring eyes on the fairy, who waved her silver wand, repeated some pretty words under her breath, touched his forehead and came Suppose this was the Queen of the Air Fairies! She and she alone could help him. He bounded from the bed, careful not to make any noise lest he disturb his mother, and ran to the door.

As he stood there the most beautiful creature he had ever seen came and bent over him. "Are you the little mountain boy who I wish to become a squirrel, and whose foolish wish was granted by the old Witch of the Woods? If so, I am in quest of you to undo the wrong she did you. All day I have had warning in the air that you were in trouble here and in need of my charm. As I was on my way I heard the old Witch of the Woods wailing in great agony. I went to her in her cave and found her dying. She had distilled some of her poison to kill snakes with and had set it in a basin outside the cave to cool. One of her victims came along, and knowing it to be the drug that could alone kill the bad old witch, he took a part of the poison and poured it in a drinking vessel that held some spring water which the witch had brought to drink. Growing thirsty, the witch took a deep draught from the poisoned water and became violently ill. After I went to her she seemed to become easier, and said she knew that she could not get well and that she wished me to send the happy news to the anxious father and his assisting friends, who were still on the mountain searching with all their might."

In half an hour the searching party reached the mountaineer's cottage, where little Hans was folded lovingly in his father's arms once more. "And where is the pretty little squirrel, wife, that I found in Hans' basket? Bring him to the boy," cried the happy man.

And then it was as they all assembled

around the breakfast table, that Hans told them they would never again see the little pet squirrel who had come to their house so willingly; and, to the amazement of all, he related his most unusual experience of the previous day. And not one doubted the truth of his story, for it had been known in that part of the mountains that a very bad old witch roamed hither and thither, but it had not been known the extent of her evil powers.

"Well, dear father and mother," said Hans, putting his arm round his mother's neck, "I'll never wish to be anything again except squirrel. I'm satisfied to be just Hans and to go to school and learn and make myself useful to those who love me."

And it came to pass that Hans was one present shape; that the little fellow was most unhappy and that she could not die in peace with her husband on her conscience. After I promised to find the squirrel she lay down and died, thus ending her evil life and also ending the life of the last witch in this mountain. Now, the little gray squirrel, if you are the one whom I seek manifest it by sitting up and clasping your paws."

It did not take any further bidding from the good fairy to make Hans disclose the truth of his identity. He sat bolt upright and clasped his little paws, turning the most thankful and adoring eyes on the fairy, who waved her silver wand, repeated some pretty words under her breath, touched his forehead and came round the breakfast table, that Hans told them they would never again see the little pet squirrel who had come to their house so willingly; and, to the amazement of all, he related his most unusual experience of the previous day. prayer, her eyes full of misery, went Hans' mother, bending her ears every time she heard a gun, waiting waiting to hear the other two quick reports. But midnight came, and she still listened in vain. At last, exhausted with her grief—for she now had no hope of ever seeing her child alive again—she threw herself on the bed and buried her face in the pillow. Hans, who had kept close beside her feet, walking when she walked, and sitting when she sat for a minute at a time, crept on the bed beside her, his eyes smarting for want of the tears which he could not shed.

But just as he sat there a white-winged figure fitted past the open door and glanced in. Back it passed again, and this time passed beside the open window. Hans' heart gave a bound. ## SENATOR PATTERSON DENOUNCES ATTEMPTED COERCION BY CAUCUS

Colorado Democrat Creates Sensation by Introducing Resolution.

Claims Dictation is a Violation of Rights of Senators.

Matter Arises From the Caucus on Dominican Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Mr. Patterson caused a sensation in the senate by introducing a resolution relative to the rights of senators in voting upon treaties.

Mr. Patterson's resolution recited that the action of the Democratic caucus in dictating to senators how they should vote was a plain violation of the spirit and intent of the constitution of the United States, that each senator was entitled to one vote, and any attempt to coerce him was an invasion of the rights of a state; that any senator who permits himself to be coerced, weakens and degrades his state; that for any senator to vote otherwise than as his sense of duty dictates, degrades his high office and assails the dignity and standing of the senate.

The resolution was listened to with great interest by the senators. Mr. Lodge prepared a resolution similar to that of Senator Patterson, declaring that a treaty like the Dominican should not be made the subject of party action, but withheld it when he heard that Mr. Patterson had prepared a resolution. This he heard from the lips of the Colorado senator, who claimed the privilege of presenting the matter. Mr. Lodge conceded the superiority of Mr. Patterson's claim.

Mr. Tillman objected to the present consideration of the Patterson resolution unless it was a question of personal privilege, and said that he would discuss the resolution tomorrow.

HILL ON WAY TO MAKE A FORTUNE

West the Field, But All Depends on the Man.

New York, Feb. 5.—James J. Hill thinks there are plenty of openings for young men of the right stamp to make fortunes in America, but he says there is no royal road to success.

"I presume," said Mr. Hill, in an interview, "that nearly every young man would like to make a fortune."

"And how is the best way to do it?"

"What? To make a fortune? Why, earn it—work for it. The man who does not work for his object will never achieve it."

"To my way of thinking, all the wealth of the world comes from four sources."

"And those four sources are what?"

"The farm, the forest, the mine and the sea. But as to the best field of opportunity, that all depends upon the man, and I am sure that good men are in greater demand than the world needs."

"Of course, Mr. Hill, you look upon the West, as does nearly everyone else, as the great field of endeavor for young men?"

"Naturally, being a Western man myself. There are three vital questions to be considered in the making of our West, and which every young man, whether he wishes to enter a business or agricultural life, should understand."

"And what are those three problems?"

"Irrigation, colonization and co-operation. I put irrigation first, because if it is properly and correctly done, you can add 100,000 farms to the population of North Dakota alone and provide each of the new settlers with a farm of 200 acres. With rainfall under his control, the North Dakota farmer can easily produce as much from 200 acres as he can from 500 acres. One of the greatest fertilizers known to the world is water."

"The West is a magnificent country for endeavor. The self-made man has there his grand chance. Nearly all the men at the head of our big enterprises in the West arrived at their position by hard work and building steadily. This is the story of the West, and I imagine the same conditions exist in the East, although I am not a New Yorker. There are scores of men who have gone to the West without a dollar and who have made their way to become the most citizens. Marshall Field, whose memory we all revere, did it for one."

"And you did something of that kind yourself?"

"Mr. Hill indulged in another of his silent laughs and went on to express his eyes shooting for targets all over the room."

"Whatever I may have accomplished has been due to taking advantage of opportunities. I suppose that is the secret of my success and I have never been watching the clock." "Is the accumulation of great wealth advantageous to a man's mind?"

"I have never met a man that thought so."

OUTLOOK HOPEFUL

Ambassadors Believe Franco-German Issue Will Be Settled.

Private Conferences Are Constantly Going On at Algiciras.

Algiciras, Spain, Feb. 5.—The French delegation at the Moroccan conference was reinforced this morning by the arrival of Count St. Rene Talleyrand, who was the French minister at Pez during the Franco-German crisis last summer. Count Talleyrand came over on the French cruiser La Londe of the French navy.

Later the count had talks with Ambassador White and other delegates. His presence is considered to relate to the private discussions going on between the delegates on the main Franco-German issue. Although the conference is not meeting formally, private conferences are constantly proceeding, with the view of adjusting the conflicting views. The ambassadors say that the outlook continues hopeful, but they admit that the efforts of the disinterested powers are not yet resulting in securing an exact basis for accord. The German delegates declare that the reports that they are not in favor of a moderate policy are unwarranted and that it is they who are most desirous of conciliation. The French, however, insist that the Germans maintain an attitude lacking in preciseness.

TO ARRANGE MEETING FOR YOUNG COLORED MAN

Washington, Feb. 5.—The executive committee of the colored young people's religious congress will meet in this city on Feb. 14 to complete arrangements for the meeting of the congress here next August.

At the meeting of the congress in Atlanta, Ga., three years ago, the delegates and friends numbered about 7,000, and it is claimed that over that number will attend the coming meeting.

Bishop W. J. Gaines and Prof. I. Garland Peim, are leading the movement, while Dr. Booker T. Washington, Bishop G. W. Clinton, Rev. C. T. Walker, Dr. J. A. Sanders and other noted men in sympathy with the objects of the congress will attend its meetings. The body will be in session nearly one week, and the music will be furnished by some of the most noted singers and musicians of the race.

GERMANY OPPOSED

To Placing Control of Morocco's Peace In France's Hands.

Berlin, Feb. 5.—Germany's attitude towards the proposition to place the control of the Moroccan peace in the hands of France and Spain is one of firm opposition, since the arrangement would, according to the German view, amount practically to giving France full authority over the peace which Germany hitherto has steadily resisted. The foreign office says that the gates to the conference at Algiciras will devote the next few days while the conference is not sitting to informal exchange of views on the subject of management of peace. In an attempt to shape some acceptable plan for adjusting this vexed question.

The train was an hour late and in turning a sharp curve caught the buggy in which the Sorensons were riding. The occupants were mutilated beyond recognition.

RETIRE AFTER A LONG PASTORATE

Rev. W. S. Rainsford.

New York, Feb. 5.—The Rev. Dr. W. S. Rainsford, for twenty-two years rector of St. George's Protestant Episcopal church in this city, has resigned the rectorship owing to continued ill health, and the Rev. Hugh Birkhead, the assistant rector, has been elected by the vestry to succeed him.

The resignation of Dr. Rainsford was in the form of a letter to J. Pierpont Morgan, senior warden of the church, from Carlo, Egypt, dated Jan. 7, last. Dr. Rainsford wrote that while his health was better than it was a year ago, he had definitely concluded that he had not the strength to continue in the rectorship.

San Francisco, Feb. 5.—Army officers who arrived here on the transport Logan yesterday reported that the prospect of trouble in China is the chief topic of discussion of army circles in Manila. The Thirteenth Infantry and two squadrons of the Eighth cavalry have been ordered to prepare themselves for field service. The destination of these troops remains a headquarters secret, but the only reasonable explanation of the order is that they are to be held in readiness for a China expedition at the first warning of an outbreak.

Those who came on the Logan asked first for news from China as they said that the most of the information on the subject which was current in the Philippines came by the way of Washington.

The officers of the troops under field orders have made preparations to leave on twenty-four hours notice and their expectation is that they will be sent to Peking.

The bodies of twelve persons can be seen in the ruins, and it is believed that many others were killed.

OUR TRADE WITH THE ITALIANS

Almost Equally Divided Between Imports and Exports in 1905.

Washington, Feb. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Trade between the United States and Italy is of unusual interest in view of the fact that Italy has contributed more than 500,000 citizens to our population since 1890. A statement just prepared by the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, shows that the commerce between Italy and the United States in the fiscal year 1905 aggregated $77,500,000, almost equally divided between imports and exports.

As a market for American products Italy outranks Belgium, Cuba, Australasia or Argentina, and exceeds by over 100 per cent the market offered by the entire continent of Africa. In the matter of imports Italy ranks ahead of Belgium, Netherlands or Switzerland, in Europe; China or India, in Asia, and the combined imports from Australasia and the Philippine Islands, Australia and the Cape of Good Hope, as the entire continent of Africa. Exports from the United States to Italy in the last fiscal year were valued at $38,740,067, compared with $39,475,741 to Belgium; $38,380,601 to Cuba, $26,353,311 to Australasia, and $18,500,000 to Africa. Our imports from Italy in the same year were valued at $38,628,578, against $34,296,146 from India, $27,884,515 from China, $25,882,455 from Belgium, $21,718,748 from Netherlands and $11,345,622 from Africa.

In our trade with Italy exports exceeded imports during the year by about $100,000, our total exportations to that country being $38,740,067, and our imports therefrom $38,628,578. It is only within the last decade that our exports to Italy have averaged more than our imports therefrom. In the decade ending with 1875 imports from Italy aggregated $67,500,000 in value, while exports thereto were but $62,000,000; in the next decade, ending with 1885, imports from Italy were valued at $106,500,000 and exports thereto $94,500,000; in the decade ending with 1895 imports from Italy exceeded by $64,000,000 the value of exports to that country, the former being $202,000,000, the latter $138,000,000; while in the decade just ended exports to Italy exceeded by over $20,000,000 the value of imports from that country, the aggregate value of the exports being for the ten years ending with June, 1905, $257,500,000, and that of imports $277,500,000. Thus, in thirty years our trade with Italy has aggregated considerably more than $1,000,000,000, of which $386,000,000 represented imports and $593,000,000 exports.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 5.—Snow has been falling throughout Northern Ohio for more than twenty-four hours, with the result that traffic on many of the steam and electric roads was seriously delayed today. From six to eight inches of snow on the level have fallen along the lake shore. The accompanying high wind has caused much drifting.

According to the weather bureau reports, the temperature will again fall to near the zero mark tonight.

Des Moines reports 6 degs. below early today, with a gradual rise in temperature. A high wind accompanied the cold wave in Iowa, causing considerable suffering to stock.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 5.—The thermometer today registered 7 deg. above zero, with a strong breeze blowing. Reports from over Central Ohio show that stock is suffering from the unexpected severe weather and snow.

Appleton, Wis., Feb. 5.—Last night was the coldest of the winter. The temperature was 15 below zero. Lack of wind averted suffering by stock.

Omaha, Feb. 5.—The coldest weather of the winter in Omaha prevailed at 8 o'clock this morning, when the mercury stood at 4 below zero.

Janesville, Wis., Feb. 5.—The thermometer here ranged from 2 to 10 deg. below zero today, according to location.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF "JACK THE SLASHER."

Washington, Feb. 5.—Mrs. W. M. Barton, wife of a local physician, was the victim of a "Jack the slasher" while walking through a department store here Saturday afternoon.

The man followed Mrs. Barton for some time before slashing her black velvet dress. He inflicted a clean, even cut about two feet long, the blade of the weapon, which was evidently a long, sharp one, extending almost to the flesh.

Every effort will be made to apprehend the assailant, as former experience with a slasher in this city was not only costly, but a large number of women were terrorized.

ASKS FOR A DIVORCE

Countess de Castellane Enters Formal Plea in French Court.

Efforts of Judge to Arrange Conciliation Unsuccessful.

Paris, Feb. 5.—Countess Boni de Castellane, formerly Anna Gould, entered a plea for divorce today. Representatives of the countess and the court appeared before a judge who, according to the French law, endeavored to arrange a conciliation before allowing a definite suit to proceed. It is said that the judge's efforts were not successful, and that the suit will proceed but, owing to the secrecy in divorce proceedings here, it is difficult to confirm this report.

Rumors have been current for a long time that the countess had decided that any further continuation of her relations with her husband was impossible and her removal from the Castellane residence to a hotel in the center of Paris gave support to the belief that she had finally decided to apply for a divorce.

Sensational reports have been circulated with reference to the count's conduct, and the name of a prominent society leader of Paris, a woman of very high standing, has been mentioned in connection with the affair. But the greatest reticence has been maintained by all the parties concerned relative to the progress of the negotiations looking to a conciliation, and even this morning a favorable result was expected, especially as the countess returned to her residence. It now appears that the efforts of those interested in bringing about a settlement of the differences between the countess and the count, with an appeal to the courts, have been unavailing. The count is said to be in the southeast of France.
